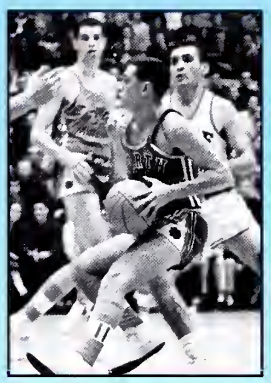
HONORING THREE DECADES OF CAROLINA BASKETBALL MEMORIES UNDER

Coach Dean Smith

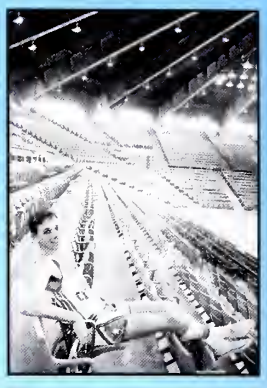
1961-62: After serving as assistant to Frank McGuire for three years, Dean Smith, at age 30, takes over leadership of the Tar Heel basketball program



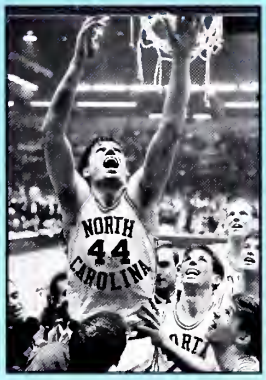
1962-63: Guard Larry Brown led Coach Smith's second team to a 15-6 mark, including road victories at Kentucky and Notre Dame; a year later, he led the Americans to a Gold Medal in Tokyo

1963-64: High-flying Billy Cunningham, the "Kangaroo Kid," was All-ACC three times, a first-team All-America twice and an academic All-America during a distinguished Tar Heel career

1964-65: Smith's first assistant, Kenny Rosemond, freshman star-to-be Larry Miller and Smith survey the progress on Carolina's new home, Carmichael Auditorium

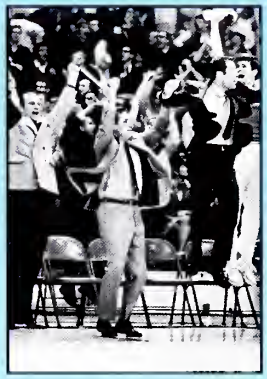


1965-66: Bob Lewis leads the Tar Heels into their new Carmichael Auditorium home; in 21 seasons, Carolina was 169-20 in the venerable edifice



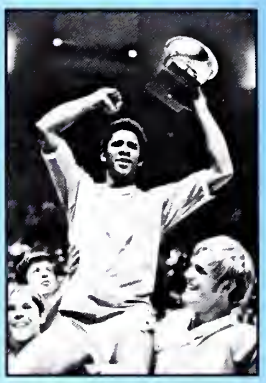
1966-67: Miller's MVP effort paces UNC to its first ACC Tournament and regular-season titles & NCAA Final Four under Coach Smith

1967-68: Smith led a veteran Tar Heel team of Bill Bunting, Dick Grubar, Rusty Clark, Charlie Scott and Miller to another ACC title and a berth in the NCAA title game

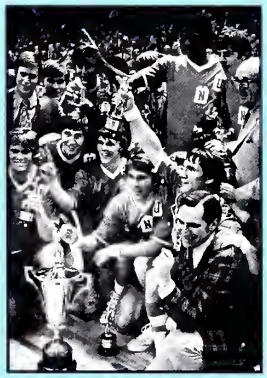


1968-69: Pandemonium reigns supreme as Scott's last-second shot against Davidson at College Park sends UNC to a third straight Final Four

1969-70: The first black scholarship athlete in the South, Charlie Scott was ACC Athlete-of-the-Year, first-team All-America and three times All-ACC during his brilliant career



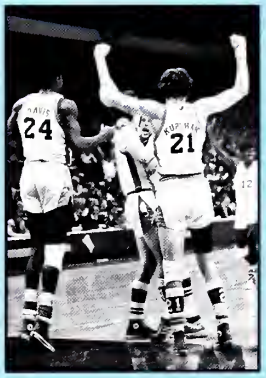
1970-71: Bill Chamberlain's Most Valuable Player performance, 34 points and 10 rebounds key Tar Heels past Georgia Tech for the NIT championship



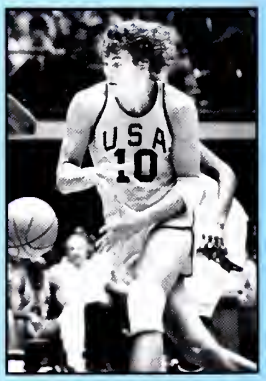
1971-72: Carolina wins five tournament championships en route to another ACC title and a fourth Final Four trip under Coach Smith

1972-73: Defensive whiz Bobby Jones leads Tar Heels to Rainbow Classic championship and semifinals of NIT during an All-ACC season

1973-74: Walter Davis' half-court shot against Duke caps college basketball's greatest comeback— 8 points in 17 seconds



1974-75: Carolina upsets defending national champion N.C. State in finals of closest and most exciting ACC Tournament in history



1975-76: Mitch Kupchak joins Davis, Phil Ford, Tommy LaGarde and Coaches Smith and Bill Guthridge in helping Americans recapture Olympic Gold Medal in Montreal

The tribute to Dean Smith's three decades at Carolina continues on the inside back cover.

Basketball Media Information

The sports information office at the University of North Carolina welcomes your interest in the Carolina basketball program and will make every effort to make your coverage of the Tar Heels easier. Following are some brief guidelines you should be aware of in your coverage of the UNC basketball.

CREDENTIALS: Working press and photo credentials for Carolina home games in the Smith Center, with the exception of the December 6 game with Connecticut, can be obtained in writing from Assistant Athletic Director for Sports Information and Public Relations Rick Brewer. Please make your request at least two weeks in advance on your company's letterhead stationery. Brewer's mailing address is P.O. Box 2126, Chapel Hill, NC 27515-2126. Requests are screened to ensure a working press row at the Smith Center. Children, spouses and pets are not allowed in compliance with the working code of the U.S. Basketball Writers Association. Credentials are usually mailed approximately 10 days prior to each game or, if time does not permit, are held at the Smith Center press will call on the North side of the building.

FILING COPY: The sports information office furnishes an ample number of telephones for writers to use in moving their copy in the press room of the Smith Center. Anyone desiring a private line should contact Southern Bell Telephone in Raleigh at 919-780-2800 to make arrangements. Please use Rick Brewer or Lee Snyder as the contact person in the sports information office for placement of your phone in the press room. No courtside phone hookups are allowed at the Smith Center. The Carolina sports information office has one fax machine available on a first-come, first-served basis after each game. Please contact one of Carolina's sports information student assistants to arrange for its use.

PRESS ROW SERVICES: Press seating at the Smith Center is at floor level, either at the scorer's table (limited seating) or in the two end zones. Radio and film crews and overflow press seating is on the mezzanine level on the Smith Center's North concourse. The Smith Center press room is located on the ground level of the arena on the back hallway across from the visiting team locker room.

Programs, media guides and game notes will be available in the press room before each game. A halftime box score will be provided in the press room as well as a full post-game book consisting of final and halftime box scores, a full play-by-play and coaches quotes from each team. The head coaches from both teams will be brought to the press room following the game for brief press conferences. Locker rooms will be open in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Atlantic Coast Conference. A luncheon or dinner will be available to the media in the press room approximately two hours before tipoff of each game.

INTERVIEWS: Player interviews should be arranged through Rick Brewer in the sports information office. Please give at least one day's notice. Coach Smith is available each Tuesday beginning January 8, 1991 on the Atlantic Coast Conference teleconference from 11:30-11:40 a.m. You can also call Coach Smith's personal secretary, Linda Woods, at 919-962-1154 to arrange a one-on-one phone interview with Coach Smith. Coach Smith does not hold a regular weekly press conference, but is available from time to time during the season. Please check Carolina's weekly press release for these opportunities.

RADIO NETWORK & TELEVISION SHOW: The Tar Heel Sports Network, under the management of the Village Companies in Chapel Hill, organizes one of the most comprehensive basketball radio networks in all of collegiate sports. Woody Durham is in his 20th year as the play-by-play voice of the Tar Heels and Mick Mixon handles the color commentary. Out-of-state Carolina fans can listen to Tar Heel Sports Network broadcasts by calling 1-800-225-5551 and charging the call to their major credit card.

The Dean Smith Television Show is televised across the state of North Carolina each Sunday. The show, produced by Jefferson-Pilot Teleproductions, features Charlotte broadcasting veteran John Kilgo as host.

CONTRIBUTORS: Former sports information student assistant Martin Armes, now an intern in the sports information office at Florida, and student assistant Lamar Chance updated the records section of this year's media guide. Student assistants Mark Kautz and Kelley Goodyear compiled the opponents section on pages 88-97. Sports information student assistant Emily Watkins compiled the box scores on pages 46-50. Student assistants Sonja Allison and Pamala Jeffries wrote the staff bios on pages 35-39. The scores versus opponents section on pages 99-104 is the combined effort of Chance, Watkins and sports information student assistants Brad Bankston and Jared Forman. Kay Thomas, secretary in the basketball office, compiled the lettermen's section on pages 132-135. Many thanks to all these individuals who assisted in this team effort. Also, many thanks to Steve Kirschner for providing me with the idea for the inside front and back covers.

PHOTOGRAPHY: Bob Donnan of Raleigh, N.C. took the front cover as well as the current player and coach coat-and-tie shots. Scott Sharpe of Raleigh, N.C. provided the color slides for the back cover. Jim Bradley Photographers of Dallas, Texas took the current uniform mug shots. Most of the current black-and-white action pictures were taken by Robert Crawford of Winston-Salem, N.C. and Jim Hawkins of Mt. Airy, N.C. The section divider pictures were taken as folows—Crawford, pages 4 and 25; Hawkins, pages 43 and 87; Sally Sather of Chapel Hill, N.C., page 105. The picture of Michael Jordan on page 129 is courtesy of Rocky Widner and the Chicago Bulls. Other pictures used throughout the book were credited where the format permitted.

DESIGN AND PRINTING: Anderson Press, Inc. of Charlotte, N.C. Many thanks to Tony Klubert of Anderson Press for his invaluable assistance in the publication of this media guide.

North Carolina Basketball Outlook

The University of North Carolina heads into its 1990-91 basketball season with as many question marks as any Tar Heel team in the past two decades.

Although Carolina finished the 1989-90 season with "just" a 21-13 record, it was still another very good campaign for Coach Dean Smith's team. Playing what was perhaps the most difficult schedule in the nation, the Tar Heels won at least 21 games for the 20th straight season, extending their own NCAA record string, and they reached the Final 16 of the NCAA Tournament for a 10th successive season. That's the second-longest skein of Final 16 appearances, exceeded only by UCLA's 13-year run from 1967 through '79.

But two key players, starting center Scott Williams and starting big guard Kevin Madden, as well as three other lettermen, have been lost to graduation. Finding replacements for those veteran players will be a key con cern as the Tar Heels begin the upcoming campaign. In addition, there are concerns about rebounding, defense, ball handling and the dearth of experience.

Still, the picture is far from being completely bleak. Carolina returns three starters from last year's team—senior forward Pete Chilcutt, senior swing man Rick Fox and senior point guard King Rice. Also back are a pair of players who both saw a considerable amount of game action in 1989-90—junior guard Hubert Davis and sophomore forward George Lynch. With these five players forming a strong nucleus, the Tar Heels could again be a challenger in the Atlantic Coast Conference race in the upcoming season. Last year, Carolina finished tied for third in the ACC standings with eventual NCAA Final Four participant Georgia Tech. That marked the 26th successive year the Tar Heels have finished third or higher in the ACC standings, including 23 seasons in which UNC was either first or second.

Replacing Williams and Madden will be a difficult thing to accomplish, however. The quickness, size and shot-blocking ability of Williams will be sorely missed. He was Carolina's leading rebounder last year at 7.3 caroms per game and he was second on the team in points per game at 14.5 and in field goal percentage at 55.4.

Madden's importance to UNC became very evident after he suffered a season-ending knee injury in practice prior to Carolina's NCAA Midwest Regional semifinal game with Arkansas. Madden was coming off his finest two games of the season in Tar Heel wins over Southwest Missouri State and Oklahoma in the NCAA's first and second rounds. With Madden on the bench, the Tar Heels were eliminated from the post-season by the Razorbacks. Although he averaged 10.1 points per game and led the team in field goal percentage at 56.9, Madden's biggest contributions came in the little things he did. He was the team's best screener, had an outstanding assist-error ratio and played with great savvy on both ends of the court.

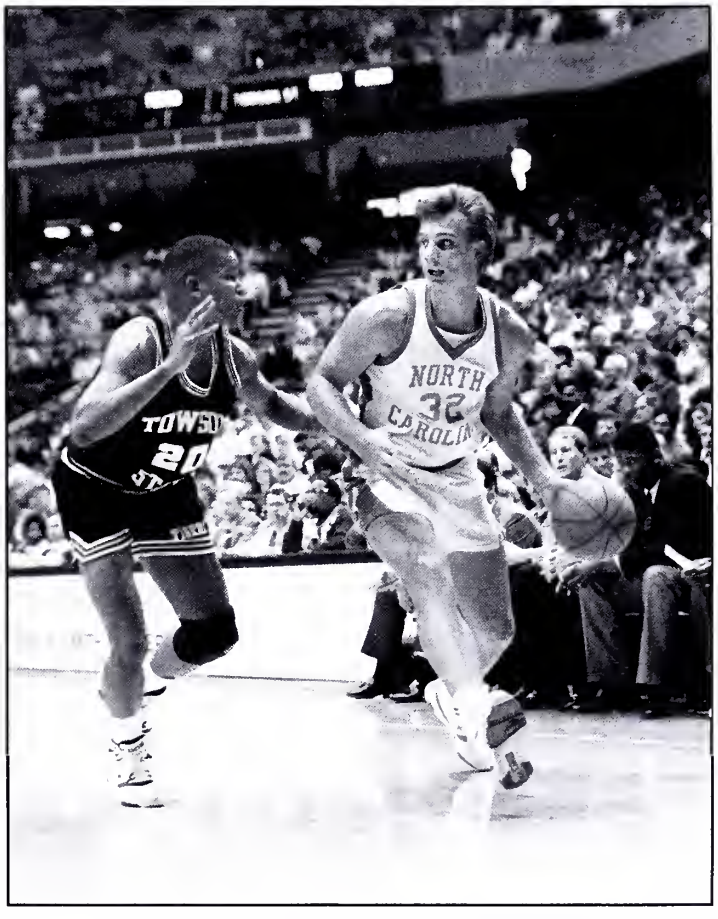
With those major losses and the fact 11 of Carolina's 15 players will be either sophomores or freshmen in 1990-91, this year's team will be a very inexperienced one.

"I'm very concerned about our inexperience and, because of that, our defense," says Smith. "That's usually where inexperience hurts you the most. Plus, we've lost two outstanding rebounders and that's always a concern of mine.

"We also must work to take better care of the basketball and shoot a better percentage from the field than we did last season."

The 1989-90 Tar Heels shot 49.8 percent from the field last year, the first time a Carolina team had dropped below the 50 percent mark since 1970. Ironically, that percentage was still good enough to lead the conference statistics, but the Tar Heels had to finish the season strong to do that.

Smith always counts



Forward Pete Chilcutt is expected to deliver in his leadership role as a senior. The Eutaw, Ala. native is Carolina's best returning rebounder and has a soft shooting touch around the basket. (Photo by Robert Crawford) heavily on his seniors for both leadership and good play. Because of this particular team's tremendous youth, the senior class will be relied on even more than usual.

That group is headed by Fox, a 6-7 1/2, 231-pound swing man from Nassau, The Bahamas. He led UNC in scoring at 16.2 points per game and in steals with 54 last year while shooting 52.2 percent from the field and 73.5 from the line. After being named third-team All-Atlantic Coast Conference last season, Fox figures to be one of the top players in the ACC and a leading candidate for all-star honors this year.

"Rick has really improved defensively and his confidence in his shooting has increased a great deal," says Smith. "His passing judgement is becoming what we hoped it would be and he is an excellent competitor. He only learned to play the game at a late age, but he has come on and improved rapidly."

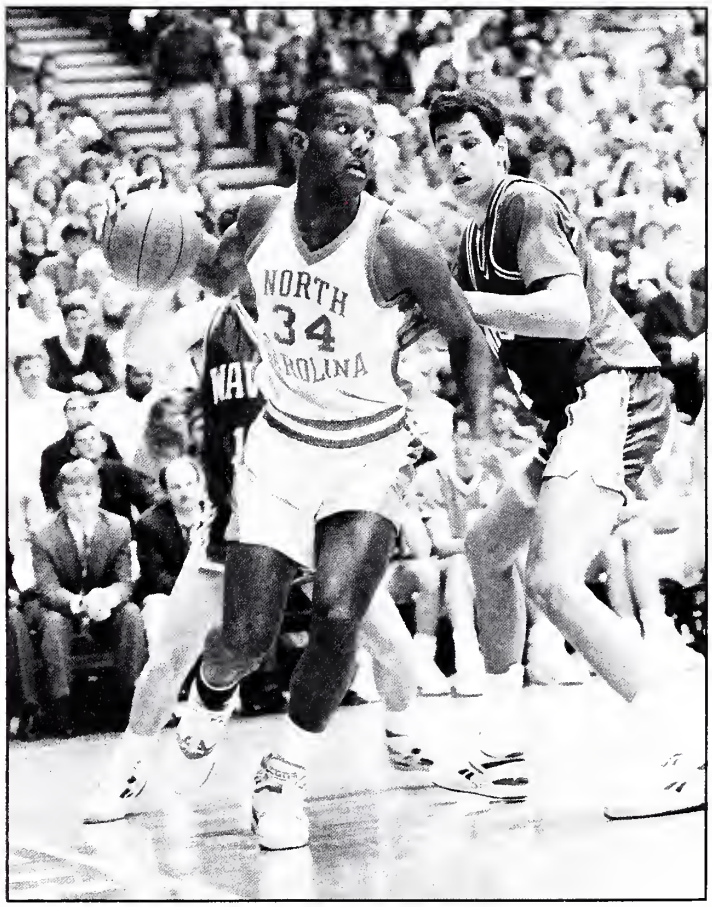
Chilcutt is a 6-10, 232-pound forward from Eutaw, Ala. He was the team's second-leading rebounder last year with 6.6 per game and he also scored at a 9.0 per contest clip. He is one of the team's more consistent players, has good hands around the basket and has made steady improvement on defense since his arrival at Carolina.

Rice, the returning starter at the point, is a 6-0, 193-pounder from Binghamton, N.Y. In his first season as the full-time starter at the point, he performed admirably last year. He handed out a team-leading 217 assists, tied Fox for team leadership in steals with 54 and scored 9.2 points per game. The only player in Carolina history to have more than 217 assists in a season was Kenny Smith, who had 235 in 1985.

Davis, a 6-4, 177-pound junior from Burke, Va., was a top reserve in the backcourt and also started on occasion last season. He averaged 9.6 points per game in that role and also led the team in free throw percentage at 79.7.

Lynch, 6-7 and 214 pounds, is from Roanoke, Va. He is a solid rebounder and a good scoring threat inside. However, because of the size of some of Carolina's sophomores and freshmen, he will move outside this year. That will be a major adjustment for him offensively. He did play some on the perimeter defensively last season, so he does have experience in that phase of small forward play. As a freshman, Lynch averaged 8.6 points in a reserve role and was the team's third-leading rebounder at 5.4.

Another sophomore who saw a good deal of action late in the 1989-90 season is Henrik Rodl, a 6-7 1/2, 200-pound swing man from Heusenstamm, Germany. He could play either in the frontcourt or at big guard. Two other players who saw spot



George Lynch made great strides as a freshman last year. The Roanoke, Va. native, who played mostly at power forward in his first season, will attempt a move to the small forward/big guard slot for his sophomore campaign. (Photo by Jim Hawkins) playing time last season were Kenny Harris, a 6-1, 180-pound sophomore guard from Petersburg, Va. and Matt Wenstrom, a 7-1, 250-pound sophomore center from Katy, Texas. Rounding out the list of upperclassmen is Scott Cherry, a 6-4, 172-pound sophomore guard from Ballston Spa, N.Y.

Junior Hubert Davis was a part-time starter at the big guard position last season when he led the Tar Heels in free throw shooting with a 79.7 percentage. (Photo by Robert Crawford)

Joining the squad are red-shirt freshman Kevin Salvadori, a 7-0, 217-pound center from Pittsburgh, Pa., and five incoming freshmen. This group includes Eric Montross, a 7-0, 251-pound center from Indianapolis, Ind.; Derrick Phelps, a 6-3, 175-pound guard from Pleasantville, N.Y.; Brian Reese, a 6-5, 205-pound swing man from the Bronx, N.Y.; Clifford Rozier, a 6-10, 222-pound forward from Bradenton, Fla.; and Pat Sullivan, a 6-8, 210-pound forward from Bogota, N.J.

"We think we have young talent which should improve over the course of the season," Smith comments. "But, I'm glad we started practice on October 15 and not later. Because of our inexperience, we really had to put in so much. Defense will be our emphasis and I hope we can be a good defensive team by February. We'll spend a lot of time on it. You have to build habits defensively and that comes with work.

"It's hard to judge which of the freshmen will pick things up the quickest and be of help the earliest. But, I don't ever want to be dependent on a freshman to carry a major load and I don't anticipate that will be the case this year.

"Our two large back-to-back recruiting classes give us depth. But, because of television timeouts, it's hard to use depth these days. Georgia Tech proved last year that teams can win with just six players."

Smith feels that Tech and Duke, both of whom reached the NCAA Final Four last season, will get most of the attention in the ACC race. However, he says the league should have great balance with Clemson, Virginia and N.C. State all returning key players and Wake Forest being a vastly improved team.

Carolina will also play a rigorous non-conference schedule which includes games with defending Big East Conference champion Connecticut, Kentucky, Alabama, Notre Dame and DePaul. The Tar Heels will also play at Purdue, one of the toughest road atmospheres in the country, and will play South Carolina for the first time since 1972, in the first round of the Diet Pepsi Tournament of Champions in Charlotte.

And what does Smith think of his own team?

"I hope our record will be better than last year's and that we will play as well in the NCAA Tournament as last season's team did until Madden got hurt," he says.

"And, our goal is to make the NCAA Tournament. Everybody laughed when I said that last year, but I doubt if they'll be laughing this year."

King Rice took over the starting point guard responsibilities last season and turned in an excellent campaign. He averaged the fewest turnovers per game of any point guard in the ACC, a league filled with top-flight players at that position. (Photo by Robert Crawford)

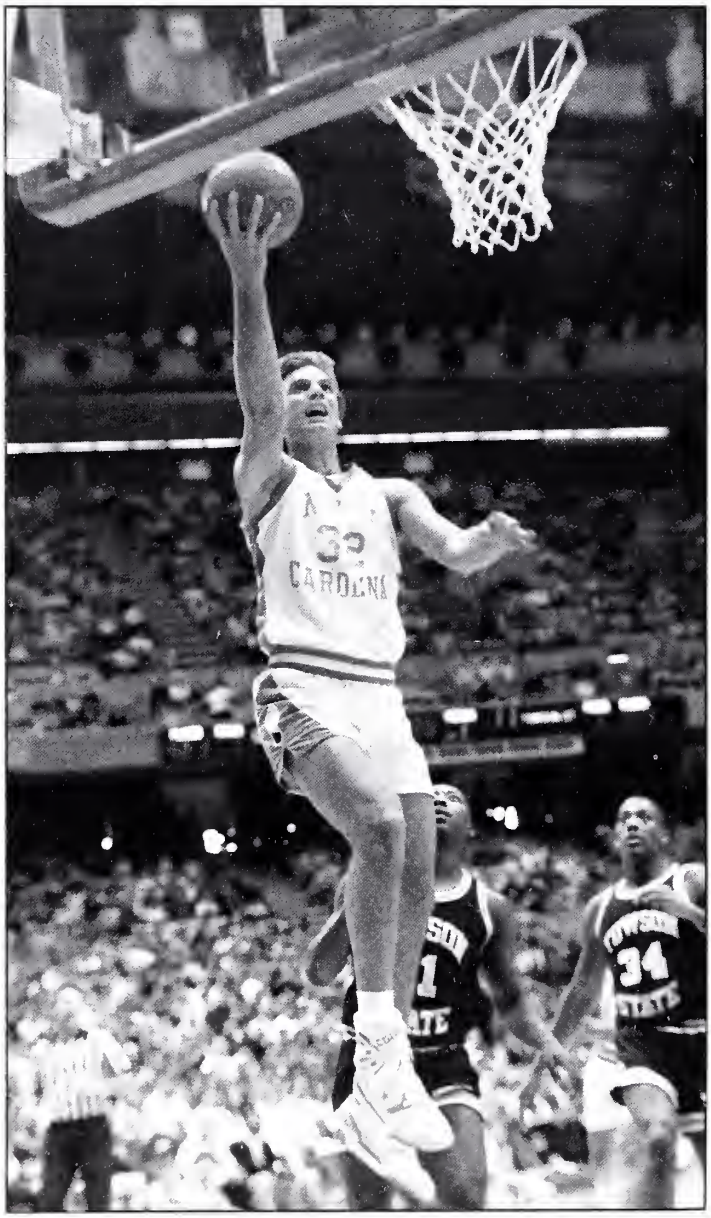
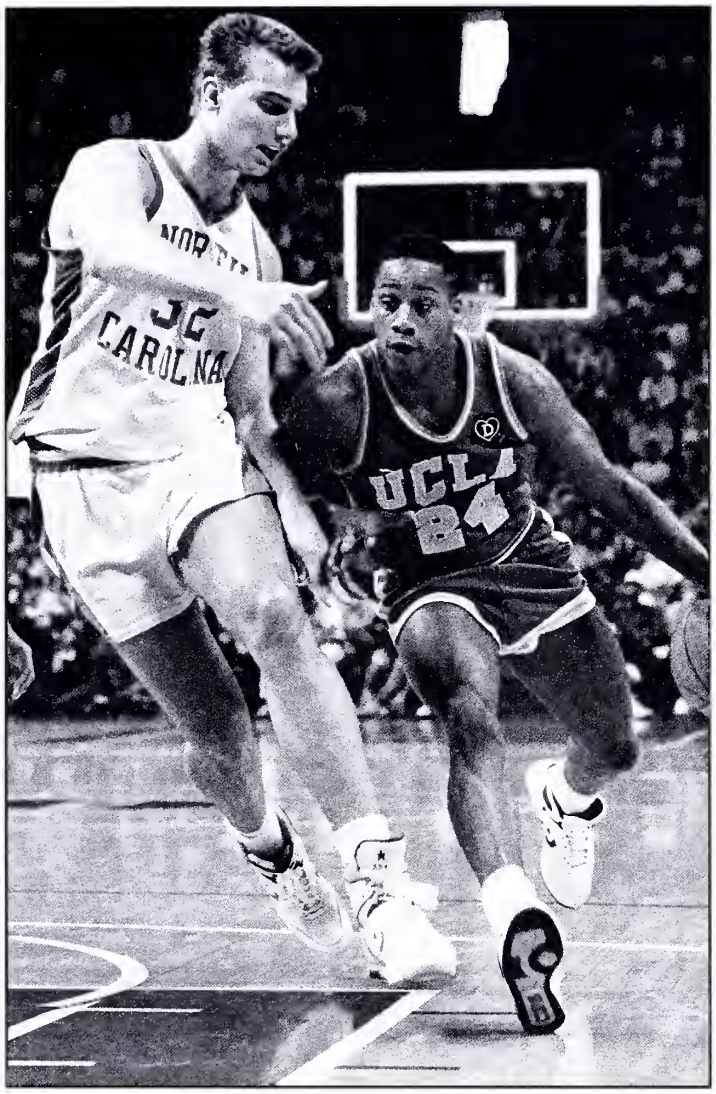
Birthdate and Place: September 14, 1968 in Sumter, S.C.

General Info: One of three returning starters for the Tar Heels ...in his fifth year at Carolina after red-shirting in 1986-87...will start at power forward or center position...being counted on as a leader in his senior season...an outstanding offensive player with a good touch around the basket...enters 1990-91 season as 23rd best field goal shooter in Tar Heel history at 53.20 percent...has played in 105 consecutive games as a Tar Heel, missing nary a one since the first game of his red-shirt freshman season..fellow seniors King Rice and Rick Fox have accomplished the same feat, making them a real "iron man" trio...played on Atlantic Coast Conference all-star team in Greece in summer of 1989...competed in basketball competition at U.S. Olympic Festival—'87 in Chapel Hill.

Junior Season: Started most of the year at the power forward position...played in all 34 games, averaging 9.0 points per contest ...was second on the team in rebounding with 6.6 per game and third in steals with 41...shot 51.4 percent from the field and 71.4 from the line...stayed away from foul trouble... did not foul out of any of the 34 games he played in...scored in double figures on 19 occasions...matched career high with an 18-point effort in win over Pepperdine, shooting eight-for-nine from the floor that game ...had four double doubles on the season—11 points and 10 rebounds at Kentucky, 15 points and 11 rebounds against Miami, 10 points and 10 rebounds at Wake Forest and 11 points and 11 rebounds versus Arkansas ...had one of his best performances of the season as Carolina knocked off #1-ranked Oklahoma in the NCAA's second round ...scored 17 points, had five rebounds and shot six-of-10 from the floor in 34 minutes against the Sooners... had 14 points in the first half as Carolina led 40-38 at the break... also had a crucial three-point play with 2:55 to play which staked Tar Heels to 73-69 lead...had 12 rebounds January 13 against Virginia, equaling Scott Williams' team season high against Central Florida and Virginia in the ACC Tournament ...had a season-high five assists in same game against Cavaliers ...had a team season-high six steals in win over DePaul, equaling the six King Rice had versus Georgia Tech...led team in rebounding 13 times in 34 games...that tied Scott Williams for the most of any player on the squad.

Sophomore Season: Saw action in all 37 of the team's games in 1988-89...averaged 6.9 points per game and was third on the team in rebounding with a 5.4 average...started in 13 of the 37 games and shot a solid 53.7 percent from the floor (110-205)...





scored in double figures on nine occasions and reached same plateau in rebounding four times...although he was not a big scorer in the Tar Heels' post-season games, he came up big on the boards repeatedly...he grabbed 10 rebounds in an ACC Tournament quarterfinal win over Georgia Tech and then pulled down seven the next day as Carolina ousted Maryland in the semifinals ...with Carolina playing without J.R. Reid against UCLA in the second round of the NCAA Tournament, he picked up the slack, grabbing eight rebounds even though he failed to score in the game...had a double double in a January 28 win over Georgia Tech at Smith Center...shot six-for-nine from the floor and scored 12 points and had a team-high 12 rebounds against Yellow Jackets that day...against Towson State at Hershey, Pa., he established a career high for assists with eight...also equaled his career high for rebounds in that same game with 13...was at his best as Carolina swept to the championship of the Diet Pepsi Tournament of Champions in Charlotte...against Arizona in the semifinals, he had a season-high 16 points, shooting 8-of-11, and also pulled won 11 rebounds...had 10 of those points and nine of the boards in staking UNC to a 28-24 halftime lead over the Wildcats...came back to pull down 11 more rebounds the next night in championship game win over Missouri...hit six-of-six from the floor and scored 14 points in win over Stanford...like his junior year, he was basically a foul-free player...committed only 31 fouls in 37 games and had only as many as three in a game twice.

Red-shirt Freshman Season: Had an all-around good freshman season as a top frontcourt reserve in 1987-88...played in all 34 games, averaging 4.9 points per game and 3.2 rebounds...shot 56.4 percent from the field and 70.6 from the line as a first-year player...ended up starting the first game of his Carolina career, one of only eight freshmen under Dean Smith to do that, as a shorthanded Tar Heel team played #1-rated Syracuse in the 1987 Tipoff Classic at Springfield, Mass. ...he responded in tremendous fashion as he scored 14 points and grabbed a career-high 13 rebounds against the Orangemen...he hit six-of-eight from the field that day but none was bigger than the turnaround jumper he hit in the lane as the buzzer sounded to send the game into overtime where Carolina eventually won 96-93...had another double double that year in a game at Nevada-Reno...had career-high 18 points and pulled down 10 boards in win over Wolf Pack...also had 16 points as Carolina crushed The Citadel in Charlotte.

Freshman Season: Sat out his true freshman year as a medical red-shirt...missed most of pre-season practice with a sprained ankle and after discussions with the coaching staff he decided to sit out the season because he was so far behind the rest of the players...was able to practice with the team for a while before breaking a finger in drills in January...he was then sidelined the remainder of the season.

Prep: Graduated in 1986 from Tuscaloosa Academy in Alabama...his high school coach there was Scott Brenizer.

Biggest Sports Thrill: Winning ACC Tournament championship in 1989
Interesting Fact: I was born in Canada, attended high school in Indiana and live in the Bahamas
Birthdate and Place: July 24, 1969 in Toronto, Ontario, Canada

General Info: One of the premier players in the Atlantic Coast Conference and a top candidate for national all-star honors in his senior year...one of three returning starters for the Tar Heels... primarily a swing man, he can play the small forward or big guard role...coming off an outstanding junior season...has lost 10 to 12 pounds since last year in an effort to increase his quickness and endurance...like fellow seniors Pete Chilcutt and King Rice, he has never missed a game in his Tar Heel career... has a career three-point field goal percentage of 43.4 (86 of 198), the third best mark in Tar Heel history...the 86 three-point field goals made also rank him third in Carolina history in that department...ranks 10th in Carolina history in career steals with 127 entering 1990-91 season...is 14th in Tar Heel annals in field goal percentage at 55.74 percent and 32nd in free throw percentage at 73.00... played on the Canadian National Team last summer in the World Championships in Argentina...started in the backcourt for the Canadians...was eligible to play for that team since his mother is Canadian and he was born in Toronto.

Junior Season: Was named the team's most valuable player in 1989-90...also won the award as the team's overall statistical leader...was a third-team All-Atlantic Coast Conference selection ...a selection to the U.S. Basketball Writers Association District All-America Team and to Basketball Times' All-Seaboard Region Team...led team in scoring average at 16.2 and in three-point field goal percentage at 43.8...his 70 three-point baskets were the third most in a season in Carolina history...also tied for the team leadership in steals with King Rice at 54...shot 52.2 percent from the field, 73.5 percent from the line and averaged 4.6 rebounds a game...had the dubious distinction of leading the team in turnovers with 108...hit for double figures in scoring in 28 of 34 games last year, including 12 of 14 ACC regular-season contests...had 10 games in which he scored at least 20 points...led team in scoring on 16 occasions and in rebounding and assists thrice each...was brilliant in the Oklahoma game that knocked the top-ranked Sooners out of the NCAA Tournament...scored 23 points, making five-of-seven three-point field goal attempts...hit a desperation three-pointer with 55 seconds left as the 45-second clock was running out to stake Tar Heels to 76-74 lead over OU ...then with score tied at 77, he drove the lane for an off-balance, buzzer-beating, bank shot which provided the winning points in UNC's upset...during the season, he had career-high point outputs of 26 against Colorado and at Maryland...he hit for 20 of the 26 against the Golden Buffaloes in the second half and made six-of-10 three-point field goals against Maryland...had his only double double of the season in loss to Colorado State with 15 points and 10 rebounds (his season high for boards)... named to all-tournament team at Mile High Classic after scoring 41 points and grabbing 16 rebounds in games against CSU and CU...while leading the Tar Heels in scoring, he also shot particularly well from the field...he shot 50 percent or better 21 times, including three outings better than 80 percent and 12 better than 60 percent ...was seven-for-seven from the field and scored 21 points in win at N.C. State...was eight-for-nine (88.9) from the field as Tar Heels beat Villanova in Maui Classic...named to all-tournament team at Maui Classic after averaging 18.3 points in three tourney games...passed for a career high seven assists in loss at Clemson.

Sophomore Season: Was one of six players to average in double figures, scoring at 11.5 per game...led team in steals with 47 and was third on squad in field goal percentage at 58.3...also averaged 3.8 rebounds per contest...improved his free throw shooting dramatically over his freshman year...hit 79.0 percent (83 of 105) after shooting 50.0 percent from line as frosh...opened the season with a bang by scoring a then career high 25 points against Tennessee-Chattanooga in first round of Dodge Pre-Season NIT, making 11 of 14 field goal attempts...had a career rebounding high of 11 against Nevada-Reno...came through with top-flight performances in some of Carolina's biggest games of the season ...had 18 points in a come-from-behind NCAA second-round win over UCLA when Tar Heels played without a suspended J.R. Reid ...was a second-team All-ACC Tournament selection, missing the first team by just one vote...scored in double figures in all three games as Carolina won the championship...had 13 against Georgia Tech, 12 against Maryland and 11 versus Duke... made 13 of 21 shots from the field in the tournament... scored in double figures in 14 straight games before having streak ended by Michigan in NCAA Southeast Regional semifinals...made 80 of his last 130 field goal tries that season (61.5 percent) and 42 of his last 51 free throws (82.4 percent)...other outstanding games included Old Dominion, Iowa and Missouri...had 24 points at ODU, shooting 10-of-13 from the floor...was named CBS Player-of-the-Game against Iowa after scoring 20 points, shooting 7-of-12 from the field, making all five free throws, pulling down seven rebounds, passing for five assists and blocking three shots in one-point loss to Hawkeyes...had 24 points against Missouri in championship game of Diet Pepsi Tournament of Champions and was named tourney's Most Valuable Player afterwards.

Freshman Season: Had a fine freshman year...won Butch Bennett Award as the team's most inspirational freshman player ...also won Mary Frances Andrews Award as squad's top field goal percentage shooter with a 62.8 mark (59 of 94)... played in all 34 games, averaging 4.0 points per game and 1.9 rebounds...was forced into an important role in the team's season opener...with Tar Heels playing shorthanded against #1-ranked Syracuse in Tipoff Classic at Springfield, Mass., he was inserted into the starting lineup at the last minute, becoming one of only eight freshmen under Dean Smith to start his first game...he scored 12 points in the first half to help keep Tar Heels in the game and finished with season-high 15 on seven-of-eight shooting, while also grabbing a season-high seven rebounds as UNC upset the Orangemen, 96-93, in overtime...came off the bench to score 11 points in 97-80 win at Georgia Tech, clinching ACC regular-season championship for UNC...scored 12 points in the win at Clemson, going four-of-four from both the field and the line...had eight points (four-of-four shooting), four rebounds and four assists in win over Loyola Marymount in NCAA second round...finished his first year hitting 35 of his last 49 field goal attempts over a 16-game period, a percentage of 71.4,

Prep: A native of the Bahamas who attended high school in Indiana as an exchange student set up by a church mission... played at Warsaw Community High School for Coach Al Rhodes ...only played one year for the Tigers...the Indiana High School Athletic Association banned him from playing his senior year because of an eligibility technicality...was able to practice with the team and play AAU ball...despite not playing as a senior, he was chosen for the prestigious Indiana high school all-star team which annually plays a two-game series against Kentucky's all-stars... behind Fox, the Hoosiers swept both games from their Blue Grass counterparts in 1987.

Interesting Fact: All my favorite sports teams are from New York
Birthdate and Place: December 14, 1968 in Binghamton, N.Y.

General Info: Carolina's returning starter at point guard...in a league filled with outstanding point guards, he ranks as one of the best...had an outstanding junior year...made numerous big plays throughout the year...seemed to be at his best in some of Carolina's biggest games...an iron man, he has never missed a game in his Carolina career...fellow seniors Pete Chilcutt and Rick Fox also hold the distinction of playing in 105 successive games... enters senior year with 422 career assists, seventh on Carolina's career list...is the 13th best free throw shooter in Tar Heel history, shooting at a 78.28 clip in his first three years...was one of the leaders of the ACC all-star team which toured Europe last summer ...he averaged 9.3 points per game as the ACC team swept all six games on the tour.

Junior Season: Assumed the starting point guard role after Jeff Lebo had graduated...turned in a very productive season... won the Carmichael-Cobb Award as the team's outstanding defensive player...he led the squad in assists with 217 and tied with Rick Fox for the team leadership in steals with 54...those 217 assists equaled the second-most in a season in Tar Heel history ...Phil Ford also had 217 in 1977 and only Kenny Smith with 235 in 1985 had more...Rice's 6.4 per game assist average was the fourth best season average in Tar Heel history...he also averaged 9.2 points per game and made 75.4 percent of his free throw attempts...led Carolina in assists in 24 of the 34 games...also scored in double figures on 18 occasions...finished the season with an outstanding 2.15-to-1 assist-turnover ratio...it is in this area he excelled when compared to the other high-profile point guards in the ACC...although Rice finished only fifth in the league in assist average at 6.4, he had the lowest turnover-per-game average of anyone in the league at 2.97...Clemson's Marion Cash was the league's second best with 3.28 turnovers per game...had a career game in UNC's win over Kentucky...achieved career highs in scoring (22), rebounding (five) and assists (13)...made 10 of 12 free throws in that game against the Wildcats...was outstanding in the Tar Heels' NCAA second-round upset of #1 Oklahoma...scored 12 points, making five of eight field goals, and had seven assists...passed for eight or more assists in 12 games, including 12 in a win at N.C. State and 11 against Virginia in the ACC Tournament quarterfinals...finished the season strong, scoring in double figures in 11 of Carolina's last 18 games and averaging 7.6 assists in the last nine contests of the year... began the season in very memorable fashion, hitting a bank shot in the lane as the buzzer sounded to beat James Madison 80-79 in the quarterfinals of the Maui Classic...Carolina had trailed by nine points in that game with just over a minute to play...preserved a home win over Wake Forest January 22, scoring nine points in the last four minutes and making six straight free throws in the game's final 1:25...was brilliant in both wins over Duke...in Chapel Hill, he had 13 points and nine assists and at Durham, he hit for 20 points, shooting 7-of-9 from the floor and 6-of-7 from the line, and had eight assists.

Sophomore Season: Started 21 times in 1988-89...averaged 5.2 points per game and was second on the team with 150 assists (4.1 average)...was the team's second-best free throw shooter at 82.2 percent (60-73)...had a better than two-to-one assist-turnover ratio with 150 assists and only 72 turnovers...was limited in his playing time in the ACC Tournament by a sprained hand... played only 18 minutes in the first two games combined before coming off the bench to make some big plays against Duke in the finals...connected on both ends of one-and-one opportunities with 29 and 10 seconds remaining to help seal a 77-74 win...ironically, those were his only four points of the game...played well in both wins over Wake Forest...in the game at Greensboro, he subbed for the injured Lebo and had a season-high nine assists in Carolina's 88-74 win...tied his season-high with nine assists later against Old Dominion, another game Lebo missed with a sprained ankle...his two most clutch performances of the year, however, came in back-to-back games in mid-January at Duke and at home against N.C. State...after Lebo badly sprained an ankle at Virginia, Rice was forced to start three days later as Carolina traveled to play the #1-ranked and undefeated Blue Devils on their home court...he had a season-high 14 points in the game and handed out seven assists...he made 10-of-11 free throws in the game, including eight in a row in the game's final 1:01...committed only one turnover in the last 17:46 of that contest...came back three days later to score 14 in 84-81 win over State, marking the first time in his career he scored in double figures in back-to-back games...was deservedly named the ACC Player-of-the-Week after those two performances.

Freshman Season: Was the backup point guard to Lebo...had solid campaign...played in all 34 games...hit only 39.4 percent from the field for the season, but shot 50 percent in the season's last 16 games...his free throw percentage was a solid 80.0...averaged 2.1 points per game...had 55 assists and made 21 steals... got his only start in overtime win over Fordham at Greensboro Coliseum...Lebo was out that game with an injured finger...had season highs of 14 points and seven assists against the Rams... played 44 of the 45 minutes that night as another Tar Heel guard, Ranzino Smith, also couldn't play...made some big defensive plays down the stretch as Carolina rallied to beat Syracuse in overtime in the Tipoff Classic at Springfield, Mass....fired a perfect pass to Scott Williams for a wide open dunk with 11 seconds remaining in overtime to help clinch a 75-73 overtime win over N.C. State in Chapel Hill.

Prep: An alumnus of Binghamton High School where he was both an outstanding football and basketball player...his basketball coach there was Tom Corgel...competed for the South team in the U.S. Olympic Festival—'87 basketball competition at the Smith Center in Chapel Hill after his senior year in high school.

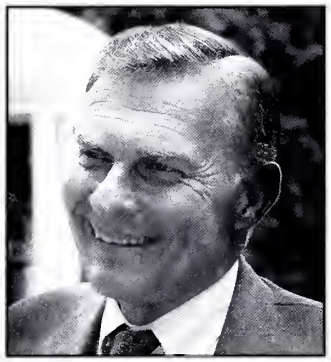
The Carolina Brain Trust

Chancellor Paul Hardin



Chancellor Paul Hardin

Paul Hardin, seventh chancellor of The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, is widely recognized as one of the foremost leaders in American higher education today.

Hardin, a 22-year veteran at the helm of institutions of higher learning, continues to advance the University's time-honored mission of vital teaching, cutting-edge research and distinguished public service. In carrying out that responsibility, the chancellor's chief goal is to ensure that Carolina remains among the nation's finest public research universities in the 21st Century.

Hardin's first two years at Carolina have been marked by determining how the University can serve the people of North Carolina better than ever before. Top priorities currently include effectively managing the University's resources, improving teaching, bolstering research activities and nurturing relationships with key campus constituencies. The chancellor also continues to distinguish himself as a leading national spokesman on the most important issues now facing higher education.

Under his leadership, the University continues to play a key role in generating dialogue across the state about the need for greater flexibility in the management of both funds and people throughout the university system. Hardin also is making changes in his own administration to improve the University's ability to manage itself productively. A reorganized Office of the Provost, for example, now allows the University's chief academic officers to address critical issues cutting across all parts of the University. Several other initiatives aimed at strengthening internal planning and budgeting processes continue.

Under Hardin's guidance, the University is making a commitment to enrich the quality and relevance of undergraduate, graduate and professional teaching programs. The campus also is taking numerous steps to improve the institution's ability to procure competitive grants and contracts for research and scholarship.

The chancellor is extensively involved in forging strong relationships with individuals, groups and organizations important to the University. He devotes a significant portion of his time to tapping the University's potential to raise the private funds that will ensure excellence in the future. His close work with other state university, government and local officials is ongoing.

Nationally, Hardin is one of 25 national leaders in business, education and government who are members of the Board of Trustees of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. The Princeton, N.J. policy center is headed by Dr. Ernest L. Boyer and is devoted to strengthening America's colleges and schools. Recent issues the foundation's board has addressed include the crisis facing urban education in America and a blueprint to save troubled inner-city schools. Although its work is primarily focused on the United States, the foundation maintains international perspective and involvement.

Hardin, who was named one of the nation's 100 most effective university presidents in a 1987 study, has provided leadership to numerous other international and national education-related organizations. The chancellor was co-chairman of the Japan-U.S. Conference of University Presidents and a member of the Board of Higher Education in New Jersey and the Board of Directors of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities. He twice served as president of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the United Methodist Church and was chairman of the National Commission on United Methodist Higher Education.

Such service is among the reasons Rider College, in presenting Hardin one of the seven honorary degrees he holds, called Carolina's leader "one of the finest college executives in these waning days of the 20th Century." The New Jersey school also cited the UNC chancellor's ability to produce "informed and sustained progress" at all of the institutions he has headed.

Hardin has served as a university chancellor or college president since 1968 and has been associated with campuses since he enrolled at Duke University at the age of 17. The North Carolina native came to Chapel Hill in July 1988 after 13 years as president of Drew University in Madison, N.J. He also was president of Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas from 1972 to 1974 and president of Wofford College in Spartanburg, S.C. from 1968 to 1972.

The study of law — in all of its national and international forms — has been a guiding force in Hardin's entire career. After graduating with Phi Beta Kappa honors from Duke in 1952, Hardin entered the Duke law school. He edited the law review and graduated first in his class. After two years in the U.S. Army, Hardin practiced law in Alabama before returning to Duke in 1958 to teach on the law school's faculty for a decade.

During that tenure, Hardin won a four-year Ford Foundation grant for summer study in comparative law and traveled to universities in Canada, Jamaica, Nigeria and Scotland. He also has published numerous articles on legal topics and is the co-author of two books, "Cases and Materials on the Administration of Criminal Justice" and "Evidence: Cases and Materials." Hardin's other writings have addressed civil and criminal trial procedures in Scotland, executive privilege in the federal courts and college campus unrest. In addition, he has been a visiting professor at the law schools of the universities of Pennsylvania, Texas and Virginia. He remains a professor of law at Carolina.

In the community, the chancellor is a member of the Chapel Hill Rotary Club, serves as vice president of the Public Private Partnership and attends the University Methodist Church. Hardin has been involved in politics, running for mayor of Durham in 1967 and serving as the second chairman of the city's Human Relations Council. He also is a former member of Duke's Board of Trustees.

Born in Charlotte, Hardin and his wife, Barbara, call several places in North Carolina home because they were the children of Methodist ministers. During his youth, he lived in Asheboro, Concord, High Point, Shelby, Wadesboro and Waynesville. She grew up in Goldsboro and lived in several other eastern North Carolina towns. The Hardins have three children: Paul Russell Hardin of Atlanta; Sandra Mikush of Durham; and Dorothy Holmes of Birmingham, Mich. His parents, Dorothy and the Bishop Paul Hardin Jr., live in Asheville.

CAROLINA DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

John D. Swofford

Athletic Director John Swofford

John Swofford is in his 11th year as director of athle-tics at the University of North Carolina with a national reputation as being one of the best administrators in intercollegiate sports.

Swofford, a 1971 Carolina graduate, heads a Tar Heel program which is one of the biggest in the South, fielding 26 varsity teams, and one of the finest in the nation in terms of success on and off the playing field.

In his 10 years as athletic director, Swofford has seen Carolina teams win 61 Atlantic Coast Conference championships and 13 national collegiate titles. In fact, the Tar Heels just recently completed the most successful decade of conference and national championships in school history. In addition, Carolina won more ACC and NCAA crowns than any other league school in the 1980s.

Much of the credit for that success goes to Swofford. He has guided the UNC Athletic Department through a period of tremendous change which has left it both vastly different and vastly better than it was when he took its top job in 1980.

With Swofford in the lead, Carolina successfully completed a $34 million fund-raising drive to construct the Smith Center, a complex which includes a 21,572-seat basketball arena and top-flight collegiate natatorium. He was also the driving force behind the expansion of Kenan Stadium in 1988 and the building of a new press box there. He has a special love for the stadium and made sure its natural beauty would not be damaged before going ahead with the greatly needed alterations.

Swofford planned the construction of the Student-Athlete Development Center as an addition to Kenan Fieldhouse. That building, a one-of-a-kind facility, includes the most modern equipment to aid student-athletes in their studies and physical development.

A Morehead Scholar himself, Swofford has a special interest in the academic side of intercollegiate athletics. The academic center at Kenan is a prototype in its field. He has expanded the academic support staff to function better for the student-athletes who use its services. One of the many results has been the fact Carolina has had more students on the ACC Academic Honor Roll in the last two years than ever before.

Since Swofford became athletic director, a new tennis stadium and clubhouse have been built and an indoor tennis facility is currently being designed; Boshamer Stadium has been expanded and dressing rooms renovated for the baseball team; three new holes have been completed at Finley Golf Course; the football practice fields have been reconstructed and lighted; a new Astroturf playing field has been installed; a new track has been put down at Fetzer Field and the stadium there renovated; and the department has been computerized.

Nationally, Swofford was appointed to the NCAA Football Television Committee in 1982 and was named its chairman in 1984. He handled the committee during the stormy dispute over football television rights. A past chairman of the NCAA Communications Committee, he is now chair of the Special Events/Post-Season Bowl Committee. He served as chairman of the ACC Television Committee when the current basketball contract was signed. This is generally considered to be the most lucrative regional television agreement in college sports.

These accomplishments have not gone unnoticed. In a 1986 Arizona Republic poll of athletic personnel across the country, he was chosen one of the top three athletic directors in the nation. He has elected to turn down several other prominent athletic director positions, as well as inquiries regarding being a conference commissioner, to remain in Chapel Hill.

A native of North Wilkesboro, N.C., Swofford was a two-time all-state football player and a three-sport star at Wilkes Central High School. An honor student in high school, he majored in psychology and industrial relations at Carolina.

Swofford played quarterback and defensive back on Tar Heel football teams in 1969, 1970 and 1971. Those last two teams went to bowl games. He tied a then-school record against Vanderbilt in 1969 by throwing three touchdown passes in one game.

He was named to the ACC Academic Honor Roll and Who's Who in College Athletics. He also served as president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes on campus.

In 1973, he earned a master's in athletic administration at Ohio University.

From 1973 to 1976, he was athletic ticket manager and assistant to the director of athletic facilities at the University of Virginia. He returned to Carolina in May 1976 as assistant athletic director and business manager, handling all the athletic department's business affairs.

Although he remained assistant athletic director, Swofford dropped the business manager title and was named assistant executive vice-president of the Educational Foundation in January 1979. In that job he was in charge of the overall financial structure of the athletic depart ment. His position with the Educational Foundation involved general office procedures and fund-raising. He then replaced Bill Cobey as athletic director on May 1, 1980.

Swofford is a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics and is on the alumni advisory board for the Ohio University Sports Administration program. He received the Distinguished Alumni Award from Ohio University in 1984. He has been inducted into the Order of the Golden Fleece, Carolina's highest honorary society.

In 1989, Swofford became the first athletic director ever added to the Chancellor's Administrative Council at Carolina. He was on the board of directors for North Carolina Amateur Sports which brought the 1987 Olympic Festival to this area.

A regular jogger, Swofford enjoys reading, golf and tennis. He is married to the former Becky Owens of North Wilkesboro. They have two children, Autumn and Chad.

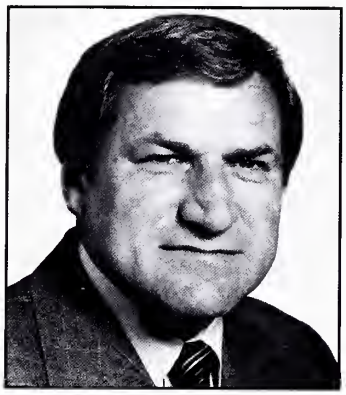
Dean Smith



North Carolina Head Coach Dean Smith

Choosing the greatest of University of North Carolina Head Coach Dean Smith's accomplishments is not an altogether simple task. As he enters his 30th season as Carolina's head basketball coach, Smith has compiled a remarkable list of achievements which prove his program is one of the best in the history of the college game.

Just a sampling of his Tar Heels' accomplishments shows why it is so difficult to select one as the most significant.

*In the past 24 seasons, Carolina teams have finished in either one or both of the major wire service polls' Top 10 at season's end on 19 occasions. Three other times, the Tar Heels finished in the Top 15 of both polls. In an era of remarkable competitiveness in the college game, Carolina has been a Top 15 team 22 of the past 24 seasons.

From 1981 through 1989, UNC was ranked in the Top 10 in the nation in both final polls. That's the second longest skein of Top 10 finishes in college basketball history, exceeded only by UCLA's 13-year string from 1967 to '79.

*Smith has led the Tar Heels to 16 consecutive appearances in the NCAA Tournament, an NCAA mark for successive tourney bids. Carolina's current string of 10 straight appearances in the NCAA Final 16 is the longest in the nation by a wide margin. Atlantic Coast Conference rival Duke has the second longest current streak in the nation, but it is only five years, half as long as Carolina's.

*Smith is not only the winningest active NCAA Division I men's basketball coach, he is also the sixth winningest Division I coach of all-time. His 688 victories in 29 seasons at the helm rank him first among active coaches. Nevada-Las Vegas' Jerry Tarkanian ranks second with 564 wins. And only Kentucky's Adolph Rupp, Kansas' Phog Allen, Oklahoma State's Hank Iba, Western Kentucky's Ed Diddle and DePaul's Ray Meyer rank ahead of Smith on the career coaching victory list.

*Carolina's program, under Smith's leadership, has been among the most consistent in college basketball history and the most consistent over the past two decades. The Tar Heels are the winningest college basketball team over the last 20 years, sporting a 523-128 record from 1970-71 through 1989-90 for a winning percentage of .803. UNLV ranks second in winning percentage in the same two decade period at 413-108 for a .793 percentage.

It is this astounding consistency on the court, coupled with a sparkling 97.8 percent graduation rate among his Tar Heel players, which makes Dean Smith one of the most respected and admired coaches in the history of college basketball. Success, it seems, is forever in his grasp.

In Smith's 29 seasons as head of Carolina's basketball fortunes, the Tar Heels have established a record that is unequalled in the game today. His teams have won 688 games and lost just 203, a staggering winning percentage of .772. That percentage is even more amazing given the fact the Tar Heels annually play the toughest non-conference schedule in the ACC and one of the toughest in the nation and also are the "targeted" school within the league, the rival which every other school wants most to beat. The fact that Carolina is the "big game" on everyone's schedule makes the Tar Heels' consistency under Smith an even more amazing feat.

Numbers, however, fail to fully tell the extent of Smith's respect in the coaching fraternity. The results of a 1986 Dallas Morning News poll of college head coaches reveal such admiration, however. In a survey of head coaches at that season's NCAA Final Four, Smith received 49 votes as the nation's top collegiate basketball coach. Indiana's Bobby Knight finished second with 33 votes. No other coach received more than 20 ballots.

Smith's Tar Heel teams have won at least 20 games for the past 20 seasons in succession and in 23 of the past 24 seasons. The 20 straight seasons of 20 or more wins is an NCAA record. The one year the Tar Heels failed to win 20, they were very close, going 18-9 in 1970. Carolina is also the winningest team in NCAA Tournament play over the past 11 years, a testament to Smith's skill in a sport labeled by many "a tournament sport." Since 1980, Carolina has won 27 games in the NCAA Tournament, one better than second-place Georgetown. It is these sterling credentials which make his coaching peers rave.

"I think he is the number one guy in America," said then Michigan coach and current Arizona State head coach Bill Frieder after his Wolverines were beaten in the 1987 NCAA Tournament by Smith's Tar Heels. "He's always there. It isn't like Louisville or Villanova, where they win it all one year and they're way down the next. Even Indiana finished way down in our league a couple of years ago. But with Dean and Carolina, year after year, they're there."

California head mentor Lou Campanelli shares the same respect Frieder has for Smith. "When you play North Carolina and Dean Smith, that's the best," he said after his James Madison team lost to UNC in the 1983 NCAA Tournament's second round. "That's the epitome of college basketball. They represent everything you want — dedication, class, attitude. As we built our program at James Madison, we've paid a lot of attention to that. If that reflects in our style of play, that we resemble North Carolina, then I consider that a compliment."

Smith-coached teams have won championships at every level, including an NCAA championship in 1982, a National Invitation Tournament title in 1971 and a gold medal at the 1976 Summer Olympic Games in Montreal. Only two other coaches in history have duplicated that winning troika —Pete Newell of California and Knight.

Smith, who played for the legendary Allen at Kansas in the early 1950s, is also one of only two men, the other being Knight, to both play on and coach an NCAA championship team. Smith was a member of the Jayhawk squad that won college basketball's top prize in 1952. A year later, KU almost made it two straight, losing in the 1953 championship game to Indiana by a point.

As a collegian, Smith knew success in post-season play. His 29 Tar Heel teams have been no different. Particularly in the last 24 seasons, March and April in the Smith household has meant, "Tournament Time." Carolina has one of the most amazing records in all of college sports in the post-season and that is largely due to Smith. Carolina's record in ACC Tournament and NCAA Tournament play is even more amazing given the number of freakish injuries which have plagued Tar Heel teams over the years at the most inopportune times.

In 29 seasons as head coach at North Carolina, Dean Smith has led the Tar Heels to 688 victories. That makes him the winningest active NCAA Division I basketball coach and the sixth winningest coach of all-time.

Under Dean Smith, Carolina has won 15 ACC regular-season championships, 10 ACC Tournament titles, seven NCAA regional crowns, one NIT championship and one NCAA championship in 29 seasons.

Under Smith's guidance, the Tar Heels have made seven trips to the NCAA Final Four, second only to UCLA's John Wooden, who guided 12 of his Bruin teams in the 1960s and 1970s to the semifinals of the tournament. Rupp and Louisville's Denny Crum rank third with six appearances each.

Wooden and Smith also rank as the two winningest coaches in the history of the NCAA Tournament. Wooden had 47 tournament victories in his illustrious career. Smith ranks second with 43, while Tarkanian is third with 33 victories.

During the past 24 seasons, Smith's Tar Heels have been amongst the most dominant teams in the history of the game. Carolina has a record of 622 and 156 in that span, winning .799 percent of its games—an average record of 26-6 per year. No school in America won more total games in that 24-year period than did Carolina.

Smith has had 17 seasons in which his teams have won at least 25 games, more than any other college coach in history. Tarkanian has 12 25-win seasons as a coach and Wooden retired in 1975 with 11 to his credit.

One of the highlights of Smith's coaching career came in the form of Carolina's NCAA championship in 1982. Smith's Tar Heels began that year ranked #1 in both wire service polls, ended the regular season the same way and won the NCAA Tournament by beating Georgetown, 63-62, in the title game. Carolina's wire-to-wire first-place finish is one of the few times in college basketball history that has been accomplished. And the championship game with Georgetown is considered one of the best-played and most exciting title contests in the 52 years of the post-season classic.

Smith's teams have also been a dominant force in the ACC over the years. In 29 seasons as head coach, the Tar Heels have a record of 287-103 in ACC regular-season play, a winning percentage of .736. The Tar Heels have finished at least third in the ACC regular-season standings for 26 successive seasons. In 23 of those 26 seasons, Carolina was either first or second in the league standings, including a stretch of 19 successive years from 1967-85.

In 29 years of ACC competition, Smith's teams have finished in the conference's upper division all but one time. That was in 1964 when UNC was fifth and had its only losing record in ACC regular-season play under Smith, 6-8. Contrast that 29-year record of league success with the fact that since 1977, every other ACC school has finished last at least once in the regular-season standings. Carolina's worst finish ever under Smith is fifth and only twice in 29 years has Carolina finished lower than third.

In the past 24 seasons, Carolina has won the ACC's regular-season championship a gaudy 15 times while also winning the ACC Tournament title on 10 occasions. In 18 of those 24 seasons, Carolina has won either the regular-season or tournament title. That level of consistency would be an amazing feat for any college basketball program, but it is particularly significant in a league as competitive as the ACC and for a team like Carolina which serves as the "biggest game" on every other conference foe's schedule.

Carolina has now also gone 24 successive years with a post-season tournament invitation. In 20 of those seasons, including the last 16 in succession, Carolina was invited to play in the NCAA Tournament. In 1970, 1971, 1973 and 1974, Carolina was invited to play in the NIT, winning the championship in 1971 and finishing third in 1973. But those appearances came before the NCAA opened its tournament in 1975 to admit more than one member from each conference.

Sustained success like that was one of the many reasons Smith was inducted into the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass. in 1983. He was also inducted into the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame in 1981.

Such tributes are nothing new to Smith, however. He regularly receives praise from his colleagues in the coaching fraternity.

Utah Head Coach Rick Majerus commented on Smith when one of Majerus' top recruits (when he was head coach at Marquette), Joe Wolf, opted to sign a letter of intent with the Tar Heels instead of the Warriors. "Joe made a good choice. North Carolina may very well be the best program in the country and Dean Smith may very well be the best coach of all time."

Coaches have made similar comments in the past about the consistency of the Tar Heel program, the integrity with which it is run and the academic accomplishments of Smith's players. Nevada-Reno Coach Len Stevens praised Smith before the Wolf Pack's game with the Tar Heels in Reno three seasons ago. "They're not a team of basketball players," Stevens said. "They're a team of true student-athletes. That's why they have always been so successful. They have quality people, not just quality athletes. Some people have had cycles of success that have lasted three, four or five years. Their cycle has lasted from the beginning of time."

A few years ago, former Virginia Head Coach and current Davidson Athletic Director Terry Holland spoke about Carolina's consistency in the ACC in similarly glowing terms. "Because of the league we're in, it's difficult to stay at the top every year," said Holland. "Only one team, North Carolina, has been able to do that. The rest of us have a couple of good years, then we have to fight to put it back together."

One of Smith's best-known accomplishments actually came somewhere other than at Carolina. In 1976, Smith was chosen by the Amateur Basketball Association of the U.S.A. to be head coach for the 1976 U.S. Olympic Team competing in Montreal. Smith promptly named his long-time assistant at Carolina, Bill Guthridge, as well as Georgetown Head Coach John Thompson to be his assistants on the Olympic Team. Smith faced the challenge of regaining the Gold Medal for the Americans after they had finished second to the Soviet Union in the controversial basketball competition at Munich in 1972.

Smith molded a group of college all-stars into a cohesive unit during a few short weeks in that summer of 1976 and led them to the Gold Medal, sweeping through the games undefeated and beating Yugoslavia

Smith is considered one of the great bench coaches in college basketball and one of the game's most skillful recruiters. The aspect of the job he may enjoy the most is the teaching end, driving home the fundamentals of the game in practice. Here, he conducts a pre-NCAA Final Four practice in 1982 at the Louisiana Superdome. in the gold medal game. Emphasizing a tough pressure defense and a fast-breaking, attacking style on offense, the Americans returned the U.S. to the top of the international game.

Four of Smith's Tar Heels played on that 1976 team—Walter Davis, Phil Ford, Mitch Kupchak and Tommy LaGarde. In fact, Smith has had at least one player on each of the last seven U.S. Olympic teams, dating back to the 1964 games in Tokyo when Larry Brown was named to the squad. In addition to the quartet in 1976, this group included Charlie Scott in 1968 in Mexico City, Bobby Jones in 1972 in Munich, Al Wood in 1980 (although the team boycotted the Moscow Olympics), Michael Jordan and Sam Perkins in 1984 in Los Angeles and J.R. Reid in 1988 in Seoul.

Smith's Carolina teams have also had great success in competition against international teams. In fact, in his 29 years as head coach, the Tar Heels have a 30-3 record in games against teams from foreign countries.

Smith's accomplishments at Carolina and as an international coach have a common thread. They were done utilizing the tremendous rapport he has with his players, a masterful teaching ability and a style of play which just plain produces victories.

Former Marquette Coach Al McGuire, now a commentator for NBC Sports, once said of Smith, "If anyone was born to be a coach, it's Dean Smith. He's the Jack Armstrong-type person."

Smith's teams in Chapel Hill have been characterized by their unselfish play, great teamwork and tenacious defense. Although the Tar Heels specialize in a fast-breaking offense, they also are comfortable in a more disciplined style of attack. Smith's teams are always amongst the best shooting squads in America. Last season was the first time since 1970 that the Tar Heels had not made at least 50 percent of their field goal attempts. Still, Carolina ranked first in the Atlantic Coast Conference in field goal percentage at .498.

Among Smith's many innovations are the run-and-jump defense, the mixing of pressure defenses, the point zone, team huddles at the foul line, the free-lance passing game, the four corners offense and the scramble defense.

"Dean is one of the most organized and brilliant minds that I've ever met in basketball," says Thompson. "He shared ideas and thoughts and philosophies with me that people just don't share with people, and I will always be grateful and respect him for that. He did me a tremendous favor. One of the greatest gifts you can share with somebody is the knowledge that you have."

Smith has shared his secrets of the game with a talented group of assistants. Former Tar Heel player and assistant coach Larry Brown led Kansas to the 1988 NCAA championship and rejuvenated the fortunes of the San Antonio Spurs over the past two years as head coach. When Brown left Kansas for the Spurs, KU plucked its new coach from the ranks of Smith's assistants, choosing Roy Williams, who has had incredible success in his first two seasons in Lawrence. Two of Smith's former assistants, John Lotz and Kenny Rosemond, left Carolina to take head coaching jobs in the Southeastern Conference, at Florida and Georgia, respectively. Lotz currently serves as an assistant athletic director at Carolina. Eddie Fogler, like Brown a player and assistant coach under Smith, left Carolina in 1986 to take over the head coaching job at Wichita State. He quickly rebuilt the Wheatshockers' program to national respectability, taking them to the NCAA Tournament his first two seasons and the NIT the third. He moved to Vanderbilt last season, succeeding C.M. Newton as head coach, and in his first season with the Commodores, led them to the NIT championship, even after having been picked to finish eighth in the Southeastern Conference in the preseason. Even Guthridge, Smith's assistant at Carolina the past 23 seasons, has received numerous head coaching offers during his stint at Carolina. Guthridge, however, has made a career decision to stay in Chapel Hill and not pursue head coaching positions.

Smith's talents do not lie solely in tutoring quality college coaches as evidenced by the number of outstanding players who have gone on to professional careers after their days in Chapel Hill have ended. In Smith's 29-year tenure, 39 of his players have gone on to play pro basketball in the NBA or ABA and many more have played in professional leagues on other continents.

Seven of Smith's players have won rookie-of-the-year awards in either the NBA or ABA, including Billy Cunningham, Charlie Scott, Robert McAdoo, Bobby Jones, Walter Davis, Phil Ford and Michael Jordan. In 1988, Jordan swept the NBA's top awards, being named the NBA's Most Valuable Player and the Defensive Player-of-the-Year in the same campaign. Jordan also won MVP honors at the NBA All-Star Game in Chicago that season. Carolina grads thrived all through the 1988 season. Jordan's teammate at Carolina, James Worthy, led the Los Angeles Lakers to the world championship that year and was named MVP of the NBA Finals, and Doug Moe, who was a player at Carolina when Smith was an assistant coach, was named NBA Coach-of-the-Year with the Denver Nuggets.

Former Chicago Bulls Coach Kevin Loughery, who led the Bulls when Jordan came into the league in 1984-85, credits Smith for the manner in which Jordan handled his rather instant and incredible popularity as a pro player. "Michael has had the most media hype I've ever seen in professional basketball, and I was around Dr. J for three years," said Loughery. "He has handled it all extremely well. It is a tremendous tribute to the way Dean Smith, who is one of the greatest coaches of all time, handled this guy. You can see his training. We are very fortunate that he has had that coaching background."

Pat Riley, who coached three world champion teams in the 1980s when Worthy played for the Lakers, paid Smith similar accolades. "I think James' success is based directly on how he was coached in college," Riley said. "We always look for players from North Carolina. If we could draft players every year from North Carolina, we'd do it. You know they know how to play. The players are so full of character like James and Michael Jordan. I have a lot of respect for Coach Smith. I'm the beneficiary of a man who has taught all these guys how to play the game. When they come to the pros, they're refined. They're ready to step right in."

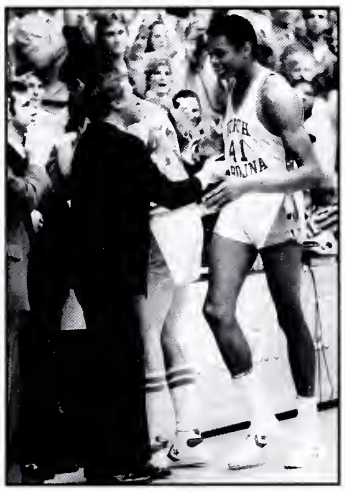
Bobby Jones once gave Smith credit for the success of his professional career in an interview with the New York Times.

"If I had gone to any other school, I would probably not have been in pro basketball," said Jones. "I was a shy and gangly kid, not very well coordinated when I started playing basketball in junior high school. At North Carolina, they gave me the tools to play in the pros and I don't want to forget it."

While many of Smith's players have gone on to great pro careers, it is in college under Smith where many have shone brightest. He has coached more All-America players than any other active coach and four of his players have been named National Player-of-the-Year. This group includes Ford in 1978, Worthy in 1982, Jordan in 1983 and as a unanimous selection in 1984 and Kenny Smith in 1987.

A native of Emporia, Kan., Smith grew up as the son of public school teachers. He graduated from Topeka High School and went on to the University of Kansas on an academic scholarship. He played varsity basketball and baseball and freshman football for the Jayhawks. He was a member of Jayhawk basketball teams which won the NCAA championship in 1952 and finished second to Indiana in 1953.

Smith was an assistant basketball coach and head baseball coach at the United States Air Force Academy in 1958



Dean Smith has always had a tremendous rapport with his players, whether they be a future NBA star or the sub on the end of the bench. His concern for their educational goals is manifested by the fact 175 of his 179 lettermen in his 29 years as head coach have received their college degrees. Here, he greets seniors Matt Doherty and Sam Perkins as they leave their final home game in Carmichael Auditorium in 1984, a 96-83 double over-time victory over arch-rival Duke.

when Frank McGuire asked him to join his staff at Carolina. In three years as McGuire's assi-stant (1959-61), Smith helped lead the Tar Heels to a trio of ACC regular-season championships. The Tar Heels have gone on to win the league's regular-season title 15 times under Smith's tutelage, so he has been involved with 18 of the 20 Carolina teams which have accomplished that feat since the ACC was founded in 1953. Smith served as an assistant under McGuire until the summer of 1961. After McGuire had left to become head coach of the Philadelphia Warriors, Carolina Chancellor William Aycock tapped the 30-year-old Smith to become UNC's head coach. Smith is a great goodwill ambassador for the University and the sport of basketball worldwide. He is called upon to give lectures at basketball clinics all over the globe. Smith is a past president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches and was the only basketball coach among a group of college presidents and administrators who served on the NCAA Select Committee, which is credited with many legislative improvements in college athletics, in the early 1980s. The committee was called upon by the NCAA membership to study many of the problems facing intercollegiate athletics in the modern era.

Smith has won the prestigious Golden Plate Award from the American Academy of Achievement, which honors people from all fields. The only other coaches to ever win the award have been John Wooden of UCLA, Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma, the late Bear Bryant of Alabama, Joe Paterno of Penn State and Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys.

After taking Carolina to the NCAA championship game in 1977, Smith was named National Coach-of-the-Year by the NABC. He received similar honors from the U.S. Basketball Writers Association and Basketball Weekly in 1979 and from Medalist in 1982. He has been named Atlantic Coast Conference Coach-of-the-Year by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association on seven occasions—1967, 1968, 1971, 1976, 1977, 1979 and 1988.

Smith has received honorary doctorates from Eastern College in St. Davids, Pa. and Catawba College in Salisbury, N.C. In 1984, he was cited by his alma mater, Kansas, with the Distinguished Service Citation. This honor is the highest KU can bestow upon an individual to acknowledge outstanding achievements for the betterment of society and on behalf of mankind.

In his spare time, Smith enjoys golf, music and reading. He has a special interest in theology.

Smith's wife, Linnea, is a physician. He has five children. Daughters Sandy and Mrs. Sharon Kepley are Carolina graduates as is son Scott. He has two younger daughters, Kristen Caroline and Kelly Marie. He also has two grandchildren, Drew and Megan Kepley.

Carolina Basketball Coaching Staff

Chief Assistant Coach Bill Guthridge

Beginning his 24th season on Dean Smith's staff at North Carolina, Bill Guthridge is considered one of the premier coaches in all of college basketball.

As Smith's chief assistant coach, Guthridge is involved in every aspect of the North Carolina program. He has a thorough knowledge of all aspects of his profession—teaching, organizational skills, motivation, on-bench decision making, practice plans, recruiting, you name it — Guthridge is thought of as one of the top men in his field in all areas of expertise.

When a major college has a head basketball coaching vacancy, Guthridge's name is usually mentioned even though he has indicated publicly his great love for Carolina and his desire to stay with the Tar Heel program in Chapel Hill. He has turned down several top-flight coaching offers during his 23 seasons at UNC and withdrawn his name from consideration for many others.

"Bill has made a decision to stay in Chapel Hill and not seek head coaching positions," says Smith. "I personally feel he should have taken several of the excellent opportunities he has had, but he's decided that's not what he wants. By staying here, he has certainly given great stability to our program. He's one of the top coaches in America and I'm including head coaches as well as assistants. His record as an assistant, first at Kansas State, and then here, has been tremendous. He has made great contributions to both programs."

Guthridge is a 1960 alumnus of Kansas State University. While an undergraduate there, he was the starting point guard on Wildcat teams which won Big Eight Conference championships in 1958, 1959 and 1960. In his sophomore year, KSU made the NCAA Final Four after winning the Midwest Regional championship. After playing on several excellent teams, he has been a part of some of the greatest teams in both Kansas State and North Carolina history as an assistant coach.

In fact, Guthridge has been involved with eight teams which have reached the Final Four—the aforementioned year as a player at Kansas State, as an assistant coach with the Wildcats in 1964 and as a Tar Heel assistant coach in 1968, 1969, 1972, 1977, 1981 and 1982.

Carolina has been invited to play in a post-season tournament in every season Guthridge has served on the staff, including 19 appearances in the NCAA Tournament and four in the NIT Tournament. The Tar Heels have finished third or higher in the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season standings in each of his 23 seasons, including 14 first-place finishes and another seven second-place finishes. In 17 of his 23 years as an assistant, Carolina has either won the ACC Tournament or finished first in the regular-season standings or done both. He was on a staff which led Carolina to the NCAA championship in 1982 and the NIT title in 1971.

Guthridge was also a key factor in the United States' ability to win back the Olympic Gold Medal in 1976 at the Summer Games in Montreal. Smith named Guthridge and Georgetown Coach John Thompson to his staff for the Games. Besides practice and bench coaching duties at the Olympics, Guthridge was also responsible for scouting the Americans' opponents during the two-week competition.

In his 23 seasons at UNC, Guthridge has worked with both the team's offensive and defensive schemes. He is currently the Tar Heels' shooting instructor. It is no coincidence that Carolina has shot better than 50 percent from the field in 19 of the last 20 seasons. The only season that Carolina failed to accomplish that was 1989-90, but its .498 percentage was still enough to lead the ACC in field goal percentage. In fact, Carolina leads the nation in field goal percentage over the past two decades. That includes a school record .559 percentage in 1986.

A native of Parsons, Kan., Guthridge played high school basketball for Harold Johnson, one of two brothers who innovated the zone press in the 1930s. Besides his basketball exploits at Kansas State, Guthridge was also chosen as one of the University's 13 most outstanding all-around seniors in 1960 based on leadership qualities, extracurricular activities and academic record.

After graduating from Kansas State, he coached at Scott City High School in Kansas for two seasons before returning to his alma mater as an assistant coach for Tex Winter. In five years on Winter's staff, Guthridge helped lead the Wildcats to a 93-43 record, to a pair of Big Eight Conference crowns and to the aforementioned 1964 NCAA Final Four.

Guthridge came to Carolina prior to the 1967-68 season. He replaced Larry Brown on Smith's staff after Brown left to play for the New Orleans Buccaneers in the newly-founded American Basketball Association. He came to Carolina as freshman coach and co-assistant varsity coach with John Lotz. In his first six seasons at UNC coaching the freshman team, he led the novice Tar Heels to a 72-25 record and four Big Four championships, quite an outstanding feat in those days.

Besides working with Smith and Winter, two of the great names in the history of coaching, Guthridge also coached in the Puerto Rican AAU Summer Leagues twice, earning Coach-of-the-Year honors. So impressive was the job he did on the island, he was invited to coach the 1968 Puerto Rican Olympic Team.

But, of course, Guthridge's greatest fame has come from his work with the Tar Heels. Smith gives Guthridge much of the credit for helping develop the players who have kept Carolina at the top of the college game over the past two and one-half decades.

"Bill is highly respected by the players who have been through our program," says Smith. "He is sincere in his recruiting and I think that has made him a favorite of prospective student-athletes and their families. He is a man of great integrity."

Unlike many coaches, Guthridge says he actually enjoys the recruiting part of the job.

"Some people say recruiting is undesirable, that it's the worst part of being a college coach," says Guthridge. "But my experiences have been very enjoyable. I think that has had a lot to do with the type of young man which our university attracts."

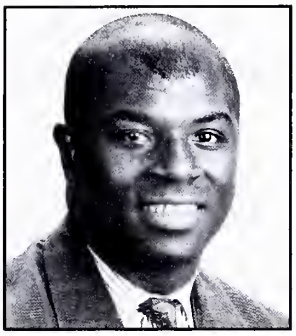
Guthridge, whose Bachelor of Science degree from Kansas State is in mathematics, received a master's degree in education from KSU in 1963. He has also taken courses towards a Ph.D. at Carolina.

His excellent sense of humor makes him one of the most popular after-dinner speakers in the Carolina athletic department.

Bill and his wife, Leesie, have two sons, Jamie and Stuart, and a daughter, Megan.

Carolina Basketball Coaching Staff

Assistant Coach Phil Ford



Phil Ford, a three-time first-team All-America point guard during his playing days at North Carolina and the 1978 National Player-of-the-Year, begins his third year on Dean Smith's staff as an assistant coach.

"It's a dream come true to coach at my alma mater and a great thrill to work with Coach Smith," says Ford. "He has played a very important role in my life and there is no one better with whom I can begin my career."

Besides the obvious wealth of practical basketball knowledge and innate talent Ford brings to his job as assistant coach, he has also proven himself to be a very valuable addition as a recruiter in his first two years on the job. He has been a part of a recruiting process which brought six players into the program in the 1989-90 school year and another five freshmen this season. Ford and chief assistant coach Bill Guthridge join Smith as the three designated representatives of the Tar Heel basketball program who can go on the road and visit with prospective players.

Ford, a native of Rocky Mount, N.C., will always be known as one of the greatest players in college basketball history. Recruited out of Rocky Mount High School, where he was both an outstanding basketball player and National Honor Society member, Ford eventually narrowed his choices to Carolina and North Carolina State in his senior year of 1974, basically because both schools were near his hometown. He says he eventually chose the Tar Heels because of Coach Smith.

The 6-2 backcourt star played on Carolina teams which won 99 of 124 games in his four years and went to the NCAA Tournament four times, advancing to the championship game in his junior year. He won the coveted John Wooden Award as a senior and was also named the National Player-of-the-Year in 1978 by the United States Basketball Writers Association, the National Association of Basketball Coaches and The Sporting News.

During his senior season, he became the Tar Heels' all-time leading scorer with 2,290 career points, a record he still holds today. He saved what was perhaps his greatest career performance for his final home game in Carmichael Auditorium, scoring a career-high 34 points in leading the Tar Heels to an 87-83 win over Duke, clinching the 1978 Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season championship for the Tar Heels by a one-game margin over the Blue Devils.

Ford also held Carolina's single-game, season and career records for assists for close to a decade until Kenny Smith and Jeff Lebo came to Chapel Hill.

During Kenny Smith's stay at UNC from 1984-87, he broke both the season and career assist marks that Ford had set. Then, in what ironically was Ford's first game sitting on the bench as a Tar Heel assistant coach, Lebo shattered Ford's single-game assist mark, passing for 17 in a 111-94 win over Tennessee-Chattanooga on November 18, 1988.

Although freshmen became eligible to play varsity sports under NCAA rules during the 1972-73 school year, Ford was actually the first freshman during Smith's tenure to start in the first game of his Carolina. That came on November 30, 1974 against Biscayne. He capped an outstanding freshman year as a Tar Heel by leading the Tar Heels to the 1975 ACC Tournament championship with wins over both Wake Forest and Clemson in overtime and then an upset of defending NCAA champion North Carolina State in the finals. In the process, Ford became the first freshman in ACC history to win the Everett Case Award as the Most Valuable Player in the ACC Tournament.

Ford was named first-team All-ACC in 1976, 1977 and 1978. He was first-team All-ACC Tournament in 1975, 1976 and 1977 and second-team in 1978. He was named to multiple All-America teams in earning first-team status in 1976, 1977 and 1978.

He was voted the Atlantic Coast Conference Player-of-the-Year in his senior season and in both 1977 and 1978 he was named the recipient of the Anthony J. McKevlin Award as the ACC Athlete-of-the-Year.

Ford was chosen to play on the 1976 U.S. Olympic Team which competed in Montreal, winning the Gold Medal. Ford started on that team and was named one of its co-captains. Two of his coaches on that Olympic Team were gentlemen he now shares offices with in the Dean Smith Center—Smith and Guthridge.

Despite all his shooting and playmaking heroics, Ford is probably best remembered for the manner in which he ran Carolina's famed four corners offense to perfection. Time and again in the waning moments of a crucial game, he would make the pass for a back-door layup, hit the heart stopping free throw or kill the final seconds off the clock to help protect a Tar Heel lead. His enthusiasm for the game both on and off the court in his playing days was nothing short of infectious. It was not lost on Coach Smith either.

"People ask me why I play Phil so much," Smith commented jokingly during Ford's senior year. "Well, all his cheering and jumping get in the way on the bench."

After finishing at Carolina in 1978, Ford was taken as the second player in that year's NBA draft, a pick of the Kansas City Kings. He had a magnificent first year in Kansas City, being tapped the 1979 NBA Rookie-of-the-Year as well as second-team All-Pro. Ford spent a total of four seasons with the Kings and also played one year each with the New Jersey Nets and Milwaukee Bucks and two seasons with the Houston Rockets.

After leaving professional basketball, Ford worked for North Carolina National Bank and for Jefferson-Pilot Teleproductions. He had been named as the color commentator for the radio network organized by the new Charlotte Hornets NBA franchise in 1988, but resigned that post after being named that summer to his position at Carolina.

Ford has come a long way from his backyard basketball court in Rocky Mount where he learned to play the game in the late 1960s and early 1970s. The middle child of school teacher parents, Ford has a brother who is a doctor in Greensboro and a sister who teaches in Durham. It is interesting to note that Ford, probably the greatest point guard in Carolina's illustrious history, was tutored in the game by Smith, a point guard himself in college at Kansas and also the son of school teachers.

Family ties have always been important to Ford. During his senior year at Carolina, he told a reporter from the Washington Post what he considered his greatest thrill.

"When someone tells my parents I'm a nice guy," Ford said.

Ford was married in July 1988 to the former Traci Vample, a Salem College graduate and native of Durham, N.C. The two celebrated the birth of their first child June 8, 1990 at Durham County General Hospital, an eight-pound, two-ounce baby girl named Tyler Smith Ford.

Carolina Basketball Coaching Staff

Assistant Coach Randy Wiel

Formerly a Tar Heel player in the late 1970s as well as a graduate assistant coach in the mid-1980s to Head Coach Dean Smith, Randy Wiel begins his fifth year on the Carolina staff as an assistant varsity coach and the head junior varsity coach.

A native of Curacao in the Netherlands Antilles, Wiel played on Carolina teams from November 1975 through March 1979, earning four varsity letters as a swing man. He graduated from Carolina in 1979 with an A.B. degree in education. He went on to receive a Master of Science degree in education from UNC in 1987. In addition to his basketball coaching duties, he also serves as an instructor in the Department of Physical Education at Carolina.

After graduating from Carolina, Wiel played professional basketball for six years in Europe. In the Netherlands, he was his league's Rookie-of-the-Year in 1980 and its Most Valuable Player in both 1981 and 1984. He twice led the league in scoring. He was also a member of the Dutch National Team for a period of six years.

An accomplished all-around athlete, he participated in the sprint events in track and field and also swam on a competitive basis. He represented the Netherlands Antilles in the Pan American Games at Winnipeg, Manitoba in 1967 as a swimmer and in the Olympic Games in Mexico City in 1968 as a track and field specialist.

Wiel is also an accomplished linguist. He speaks no less than six languages fluently—English, Dutch, Spanish, French, Portuguese and Papiamentoe, the native language of the Netherlands Antilles.

"As a player at Carolina, Randy always represented the University well and was a great senior leader on our 1979 Atlantic Coast Conference champion team," says Tar Heel Head Coach Dean Smith.

Smith is also effusive in his praise of the work Wiel has done with Carolina's junior varsity program.

"Randy has done an amazing job as head coach of the junior varsity program," he explains. "His teams are consistently overmatched in size, speed and quickness, but somehow they're in every game. They are able to win with consistency over junior colleges who give scholarships.

"It's a real credit to Coach Wiel and the type of young men on our junior varsity team that we're able to compete as well as we do. Furthermore, Coach Wiel always has the team playing very hard. They play a smart game and they play together. We're proud of the junior varsity program and feel it represents the University well."

Wiel married the former Connie Hicks in the summer of 1986. She is also a UNC graduate with a master's degree in education.

Assistant Coach Dave Hanners

Dave Hanners, a former University of North Carolina backcourt player, is entering his second year on Coach Dean Smith's staff as a varsity assistant basketball coach as well as the program's administrative assistant. Hanners replaced Dick Harp, who retired at the end of the 1988-89 season.

"We are delighted to have Dave return to our staff where he assisted Coach Eddie Fogler so ably with the junior varsity while getting his master's degree," said Smith upon hiring Hanners in the summer of 1989. "We were looking for an experienced assistant coach for this position and found one in Dave, who is also so familiar with our program."

A native of Columbus, Ohio, Hanners graduated from Walnut Ridge High School where he played with Brad Hoffman and Ed Stahl, both Tar Heel teammates in the mid-1970s. A guard at Carolina, Hanners earned four letters and was a tri-captain of the 1976 team with Mitch Kupchak and Bill Chambers. As a senior, he led the team to a 25-4 overall mark and a 13-1 record in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Hanners earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in education from Carolina in 1976. Following graduation, he worked on the Tar Heel staff for two years as a graduate assistant coach, helping Eddie Fogler with the junior varsity program. Hanners earned his Master of Arts degree in education from UNC in 1978.

He then worked two years as a high school head coach—in 1978-79 at the University School in Milwaukee, Wis. and in 1979-80 at Westover High School in Fayetteville, N.C.

Hanners then entered the collegiate ranks, serving as an assistant coach at UNC-Wilmington for three years, at Furman for one year and at East Tennessee State for four years.

His work at ETSU truly helped Les Robinson, now the head coach at N.C. State, build his program there. Hanners headed up the Buccaneers' recruiting efforts and in 1988-89, ETSU won the Southern Conference championship and came within one point of knocking off NCAA Southeast Regional top seed Oklahoma in the first round of the tournament.

"Coach Hanners headed up the great recruiting effort at ETSU," says Smith. "That helped them with their near upset of Oklahoma in the NCAA Tournament. Dave takes great pride in picking out so-called sleepers in high school recruiting. He surely did this at UNC-Wilmington and Furman before the amazing job he did at East Tennessee. He chooses to watch all tapes on our prospects and gives us valuable feedback.

"In Dave, we have one of the most hard-working and organized people I have ever been associated with. It's good to have him back on our staff."

Hanners echoes Coach Smith's words about his return to his alma mater.

"I enjoyed my time at East Tennessee a great deal," says Hanners. "However, I could not pass up the opportunity to come back to North Carolina and work for Coach Smith. Any coach in the country would love to spend time with him and Coach Guthridge. This will be a great learning experience for me and I hope I can make an important contribution."

Carolina Basketball Support Staff

Harley Dartt
Strength, Fitness and Video Operations Coordinator

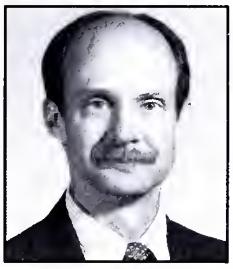
Formerly serving as the assistant strength coach at North Carolina for all 26 varsity intercollegiate sports from 1982-88, Harley Dartt now serves as the strength, fitness and video operations coordinator for the men's basketball program here at the University.

A native of Wilmington, N.C., the 33-year-old Dartt finished his A.B. degree at Carolina in 1978 and received a Master of Science degree from the University in 1980. He was named Region II National Strength and Conditioning Association Director of the Year in 1987. He is an NSCA certified strength and conditioning specialist.

Dartt started working with the men's basketball program in 1988. His duties involve being at practice to assist with the strength and fitness part of the players' workouts, coordinating off-season and in-season fitness programs for the entire team and coordinating the program's entire film needs, including filming duties during games and keeping up-to-date files on films of other teams for scouting purposes.

Dartt, a bachelor, is an avid guitarist and also enjoys fishing.

Marc Davis
Head Basketball Trainer



Marc Davis serves as the head trainer for North Carolina's men's basketball team, a position he has held since the 1977-78 season.

Davis received his Bachelor of Science degree in physical therapy from Carolina in 1974. After graduating from Carolina, he worked as a physical therapist at Danville Memorial Hospital in Danville, Va. from October 1974 to May 1975. He began his current tenure on the sports medicine staff at UNC in July 1975.

The 39-year-old Davis, a native of Wilmington, N.C. and alumnus of New Hanover High School, is a member of the American Physical Therapy Association and the National Athletic Trainers Association.

Davis' duties at Carolina consist of providing physical therapy and athletic training services to Carolina athletic teams. He also provides similar services to members of the general student body who are recommended to him by Student Health Service physicians. He also works with the basketball coaching staff to coordinate team travel.

Davis is married to the former Paula Gee.

Carolina Athletic Administration

Dick Baddour
Senior Associate Director of Athletics

A former Carolina student and an employee at the University since 1967, Dick Baddour currently serves as Senior Associate Director of Athletics.

In this role, Baddour, 46, oversees departmental personnel, handles compliance matters with the NCAA and ACC, supervises the UNC drug education and grant-in-aid programs and serves as the departmental contact with the admissions and financial aid offices.

In 1966, Baddour received his A.B. degree in economics from Carolina. In 1975, he was awarded a Master of Arts degree in education with a major in student personnel administration and a minor in business administration.

The Goldsboro, N.C. native and 1962 Goldsboro High School alumnus served as Assistant Dean of Men at the University from 1967-71. He then moved on to be Assistant Director of Undergraduate Admissions at UNC from 1971 to 1983. Before coming to the athletic department, Baddour served as Assistant Dean at the UNC School of Law from 1983-1986. He was named an associate AD at Carolina in April 1986 and was promoted to Senior Associate AD in July 1990.

The East Chapel Hill Rotary Club recently presented Baddour with a Paul Harris Fellowship in recognition of his service to the Rotary Club and the community. He is currently a member of the Chapel Hill Library Committee, which is planning a new $7 million library for the town, and he serves as vice chairman of the Chapel Hill Parks and Recreation Commission.

Baddour's wife Lynda is a first-grade teacher at Durham Academy. The Baddours have two sons, Allen, 19, a sophomore at Carolina, and David, 17, a senior at Chapel Hill High School, and a daughter Jennifer, 16, a junior at Chapel Hill High.

Jeff Elliott
Associate Athletic Director and Director of the Smith Center

Jeff Elliott serves as Associate Athletic Director and Director of the Smith Center at the University of North Carolina. Elliott took over his current duties this past July after coming to UNC in the summer of 1988 as Assistant Athletic Director and Director of the Smith Center.

In his role at UNC, Elliott schedules, supervises and directs all operations of the Smith Center and oversees the use of all UNC athletic facilities, including the planning and construction of new facilities. He also coordinates all concession operations and oversees the areas of games operations, business and finance, tickets and Finley Golf Course.

Elliott, 43, received a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration in 1969 from Louisiana State University and an MBA in 1972, also from LSU.

Prior to working at Carolina, the Monroe, La. native served as an administrative assistant in the LSU athletic department for two years. He also served as business manager of the LSU Assembly Center from 1973-76 and as the Center's assistant director from 1976-81. From 1981-88, Elliott was the director of the LSU Assembly Center.

Elliott served as tournament director of the 1988 Southeastern Conference Men's Basketball Tournament, as tournament manager for the 1986 NCAA Southeast Regional Men's Basketball Tournament first and second rounds, as meet coordinator for the 1979 NCAA Men's Gymnastics Championships and as operations director of the 1983 International Summer Special Olympic Games. He is a member of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics, the International Association of Auditorium Managers, the Carolina Building Managers Association and the East Chapel Hill Rotary Club.

Elliott is married to the former Karen McCarter, past captain of the LSU women's tennis team and formerly the head women's tennis coach at her alma mater. They have two children, Jeremy, 9, and Ashley, 7.

Beth Miller
Associate Athletic Director for Non-Revenue Sports

Beth Miller was promoted this past July to the role of Associate Athletic Director for Non-Revenue Sports at North Carolina. In her present capacity, Miller is responsible for supervising the highly-successful 24-sport non-revenue program at UNC. She has handled similar duties under different titles since 1985.

Miller is a 1968 alumna of Appalachian State University with a B.S. degree in health and physical education. She also earned an M.A. from ASU in the same fields a year later. She went on to receive a Doctor of Arts degree in physical education at Middle Tennessee State University in 1974.

From 1969-72, she served as head women's volleyball and basketball coach at ASU while also serving as an instructor in the PE and health department there. She came to Carolina in 1974 as an assistant professor of health and phys ed and an assistant women's basketball and volleyball coach. She was named head women's volleyball coach in 1975 and led the Tar Heels to four successive Atlantic Coast Conference titles from 1980-83 and five post-season tournament appearances. She also coached softball at Carolina for one year in 1984. In 1978, she took on added duties as athletic business manager at Carolina. She retired from coaching volleyball after the 1983 season, but continued to handle all financial affairs for the department through 1987. In 1985, she was also put in charge of the non-revenue program.

Miller is a member of the Council of Collegiate Women Athletic Administrators, National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics, UNC Housing Advisory Board, the NCAA Volleyball Committee and the Board of Directors of North Carolina Amateur Sports.

Bob Savod
Associate Athletic Director and Director of Marketing

Bob Savod, a native of New York City, serves as Associate Athletic Director and Director of Marketing at the University of North Carolina. He was promoted to his current position this past September. He has worked in various capacities in the UNC athletic department, primarily with marketing and promotions, at the assistant and associate athletic director level since 1976.

Savod's major duties involve designing and implementing major marketing campaigns for the sale of UNC football and basketball tickets. He is also responsible for athletic department sponsorships, assisting Athletic Director John Swofford with radio and TV affairs, serving as departmental liaison with the Tar Heel Sports Network, Carolina Blue and the University trademark licensing program and as marketing director for the Dean Smith and Mack Brown TV and radio shows, coordinating halftime shows for football and basketball games, negotiating football and basketball game program contracts and managing special events, including Carolina's Pro-Alumni basketball games, exhibition games, the 100th anniversary of Carolina football commemoration and UNC's football and basketball trading card programs.

Prior to taking the job at Carolina, Savod served as a personnel director for Ethan Allen Furniture Corporation for five years and was executive vice president of Electronic Computer Programming Institute, Inc. for 10 years. Savod is an alumnus of City College of New York, where he earned a B.A. degree double majoring in radio, television and motion pictures and business administration.

Savod was one of the first full-time sports marketing directors in intercollegiate athletics, introducing the concept of the multi-media blitz to market football tickets on the collegiate level. He designed and implemented the "Carolina Fever" campaign in the late 1970s which helped double season ticket sales and sell out Kenan Stadium 12 consecutive years. In 1981, the UNC athletic department was named North Carolina "Marketing Organization of the Year" by the American Marketing Association. He is a frequent speaker on blitz advertising at sports marketing seminars. Savod also coordinated and edited Dean Smith's book, "Basketball Multiple Offense and Defense."

Savod and his wife Judy have two children, Suzanne, 23, a recent UNC graduate in RTVMP who interned with the Sally Jesse Raphael Show and is now an assistant TV producer in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and Jason, 21, a junior at Franklin & Marshall and linebacker on the Diplomat football team.

Carolina Athletic Administration

Willie Scroggs
Assistant Athletic Director for Operations

Willie Scroggs is in his 10th year as the Assistant Athletic Director for Operations at the University of North Carolina. Scroggs, who retired last spring after 12 years as Carolina's head lacrosse coach, now devotes his entire attention to his duties in athletic administration. He oversees all game operations for football, men's basketball and the 24 non-revenue sports at Carolina as well as supervising all outdoor facilities and the athletic dining hall.

The Baltimore, Md. native came to Carolina in 1978 as head lacrosse coach after being an assistant football and assistant lacrosse coach at his alma mater, Johns Hopkins University, for six seasons. At Carolina, Scroggs worked as assistant business manager and assistant to the athletic director for three years before accepting his present position. He was also assistant director of the Smith Center from 1986-90.

But it is in coaching lacrosse that Scroggs gained his greatest fame. His 12 teams compiled a record of 120-37, a winning percentage of .764. He led Tar Heel teams to their first NCAA and ACC championships in the sport, winning national crowns in 1981, 1982 and 1986 and ACC titles in 1981, 1982, 1985, 1988, 1989 and 1990. Eleven of his 12 teams finished in the national Top 10 and nine were ranked in the top five. The 1981 National Coach-of-the-Year, Scroggs led his Tar Heels to 11 NCAA Tournament appearances and a 17-8 tourney record from 1980-90. His teams reached the Final Four of the NCAA Tournament nine times.

Scroggs served on the NCAA Men's Lacrosse Committee for six years, including as chairman in 1987-88. He is a 1965 alumnus of Baltimore's City College High School and a 1969 Johns Hopkins graduate. He played lacrosse on three Blue Jay national championship teams as a midfielder. He coached lacrosse at the Gilman School in Baltimore for three years before going to Hopkins in 1972.

Scroggs is married to Karen Shelton, Carolina's head field hockey coach. The couple have a son, William Alexander, born last March. Scroggs also has two daughters, Betsy, 16, and Emily, 13, from a previous marriage.

John Lotz
Assistant Athletic Director for Campus and Community Relations

John Lotz is now in his 12th year as an assistant athletic director at the University of North Carolina. He presently serves in the role of Assistant Athletic Director for Campus and Community Relations. He was an assistant AD in charge of UNC's men's non-revenue sports from 1980-85.

In his present role, he coordinates a speaker's bureau for the UNC Department of Athletics. Lotz, who speaks at banquets and basketball camps, including Dean Smith's Carolina Basketball School, throughout the United States, has been called one of the nation's foremost motivational speakers.

Lotz received both his bachelor's and master's degree from East Texas State University. He has long been associated with successful athletic programs. On the college level, Lotz began his career serving as the top assistant basketball coach at Carolina to Smith for eight years. During his tenure, the Tar Heels won four Atlantic Coast Conference championships, four NCAA Eastern Regional titles, one NIT title and made four trips to the NCAA Final Four.

In 1972, the Flushing, N.Y. native was named head basketball coach at the University of Florida. It was at Florida that he received numerous honors and awards. In 1973, he was named Southeastern Conference Coach-of-the-Year in his rookie season with the Gators. In 1977, his Florida team went 17-9 and he was honored with the SEC Coach-of-the-Year award from UPI while his fellow coaches also voted him the prestigious Adolph Rupp Award given to the league's top coach. In addition, he was honored by the Fellowship of Christian Athletes as that organization's Coach-of-the-Year.

Lotz attended Baylor University before transferring to ETSU. Lotz and his wife, Vicki, have two daughters, Corrie and Laci, and they reside in Chapel Hill.

Martina Kendrick Ballen
Director of Athletic Business and Finance

Martina Kendrick Ballen is in her fourth year as Director of Athletic Business and Finance at the University of North Carolina. She is responsible for developing and implementing basic operating procedures pertaining to appropriate financial controls for the department. She supervises the control of departmental budgets, the payment and receiving of all departmental funds and the business office staff. In addition, she must approve all departmental expenditures.

Ballen, 32, earned her Bachelor of Science degree in business administration at North Carolina in 1980 and her Master of Business Administration degree from the Babcock School of Management at Wake Forest University in 1984.

Ballen worked as a credit analyst at NCNB National Bank of North Carolina in Raleigh in 1984 and then was a commercial branch manager at the Chapel Hill office of NCNB from 1985-87.

The Southern Pines, N.C. native is married to Dwayne L. Ballen, a sportscaster for WTVD-TV, the ABC affiliate in Durham, N.C.

Ken Brown
Director of Ticket Operations

Ken Brown has been the Director of Ticket Operations at the University of North Carolina since 1983. In this role, he supervises all ticket operations for Carolina athletic and Dean E. Smith Center events.

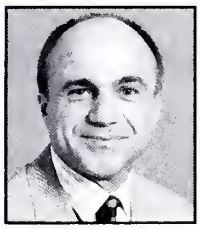
The Cincinnati, Ohio native grew up in Rising Sun, Ind. near the Indiana/Ohio border. He earned a Bachelor of Science degree in mathematics at Eastern Kentucky University in 1975, a master's degree in educational administration at Xavier University in 1979 and a master's degree in sports administration from Ohio University in 1981.

Brown, 37, began his career as a secondary school math teacher in the Ohio County (Ind.) School System from 1976-80. He later became the ticket manager for the Louisville Redbirds, a AAA baseball team affiliated with the St. Louis Cardinals in the American Association, from 1982-83.

Brown and his wife, Mary Sue, have five children, Adam, 11, Andrew, 7, Jake, 5, Erin, 3, and Meghan, six months.

Carolina Sports Information Staff

Rick Brewer
Assistant Athletic Director for Sports Information and Public Relations



Rick Brewer is in his 23rd year in the Carolina Sports Information Office and his 16th as its director.

Brewer is a native of North Carolina, growing up in Winston-Salem and Greensboro. He is a 1971 Carolina graduate with a degree in journalism.

A student assistant in the sports information office for three years, Brewer was named the school's first assistant SID upon graduation. He held that position for four years and then was named sports information director in 1975. He was promoted to assistant athletic director for sports information and public relations last July.

Brewer is directly in charge of publicity for Carolina's football and men's basketball teams. In addition, he oversees the publicizing of the University's entire 26-sport program.

In 1984, Brewer served as a press officer for the United States Olympic Committee at the Summer Olympic Games in Los Angeles. In that role, he served as a liaison between the media covering the Games and the American athletes and coaches. He has handled similar duties at two U.S. Olympic Festivals—at Indianapolis in 1982 and on the Carolina campus in 1987.

For the past eight years, Brewer has been a member of the Media Coordination Committee which assists the media at the Final Four of the NCAA Men's Basketball Championships. He is a member of the Football Writers Association of America, the U.S. Basketball Writers Association, the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association and the College Sports Information Directors of America.

Brewer, a bachelor, is regarded as one of the world's finest parallel parkers and worst dancers.

Steve Kirschner
Assistant Sports Information Director

Steve Kirschner is in his first year as the Assistant Sports Information Director at North Carolina.

Kirschner's major responsibilities include handling the publicity needs of the women's soccer, track and field, wrestling and baseball teams. In addition, he edits the football game programs, the football media guide and football spring prospectus, as well as assisting Rick Brewer with the day-to-day publicizing of UNC's men's basketball and football teams.

A 1988 graduate of the University of Connecticut, Kirschner, 24, earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in sports studies with an emphasis in sports marketing and management. He worked in the Huskies' sports information office for four years as a student assistant before being a sports information intern at Carolina during the 1988-89 school year. Last year, Kirschner was the assistant sports information director for men's spring sports at the University of Florida.

A native of Bristol, Conn., Kirschner won five publications awards at the 1990 College Sports Information Directors of America convention, including two best in the nation certificates. During his career, he helped host two NCAA men's basketball subregionals at UConn and was the media coordinator for the 1988 NCAA Women's Soccer Final Four at UNC and the 1990 NCAA Men's Golf Championships at Florida. He also accompanied Carolina's baseball team to the 1989 College World Series as its media liaison.

Kirschner, who is single, is a member of CoSIDA and from 1977-88 served as clubhouse and equipment manager for the Boston Red Sox' AA franchise in New Britain, Conn.

Dave Lohse
Associate Sports Information Director

Dave Lohse is in his 14th year as a member of the Carolina sports information staff. He was promoted to the position of associate sports information director last July.

Lohse's major responsibilities include editing the men's basketball media guide and game programs, serving as the office's chief assistant in publicizing the men's basketball and football teams and handling all publicity needs for the sports of lacrosse, men's and women's swimming and diving, men's tennis, men's soccer, men's and women's golf and men's and women's fencing. He has won 28 national and district editing and writing awards from CoSIDA (College Sports Information Directors of America). That includes a best in the nation writing award in 1988 for an individual event preview and a best in the nation award for his 1990 lacrosse media guide in the single sport brochure category.

The U.S. Olympic Committee chose Lohse to serve as a press officer at the 1988 Summer Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea, working the American diving and yachting teams. He has also worked for the USOC at three U.S. Olympic Festivals—in Houston in 1986, on the Carolina campus in 1987 and in Minneapolis last summer.

In his time at Carolina, Lohse, 35, has coordinated publicity for seven Tar Heel teams which have won national championships—three in lacrosse and four in women's soccer.

A 1977 graduate of Purdue University with a B.A. degree in political science, Lohse worked in the Boilermaker sports information office for three years as a student assistant. He was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa there.

Lohse, a Griffith, Ind. native, spent two years as a graduate assistant in the Carolina Sports Information Office before being named assistant SID in August 1979. Lohse is a member of CoSIDA, the Football Writers Association of America, the U.S. Basketball Writers Association and the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

A bachelor, Lohse has been nicknamed by a friend in Indiana as "The Patron Saint of Lost Causes" because he is a diehard Chicago Cubs fan and lifelong liberal Democrat. In his spare time, Lohse enjoys old movies, trivia games, politics and reading almanacs.

Sheri West
Assistant Public Relations Director

Sheri West is in her first year as the Assistant Public Relations Director at North Carolina.

A 1988 Clemson University summa cum laude graduate with a B.S. in management, West, 24, assists John Swofford and Rick Brewer in planning and implementing publicity campaigns and overall departmental public relations. She also handles all publicity needs for the sports of volleyball, field hockey, women's basketball, gymnastics, women's tennis and softball as well as assisting Brewer with the day-to-day publicizing of football and men's basketball.

West, a native of Columbus, Ga., worked as a student assistant in the IPTAY office at Clemson for a year and then was a student assistant and graduate assistant in the Tiger sports information office for two years. She also worked on a master's degree in recreation management at her alma mater. West went on to work at the Atlantic Coast Conference as a service bureau intern in 1989-90.

West's 1989-90 ACC women's basketball media guide was judged best in the nation by the College Sports Information Directors of America in the conference publications contest. Her 1989 Clemson swimming brochure was voted third in the nation.

West, who is single, is a member of CoSIDA and is a national member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. She serves as an advisor to the UNC chapter of FCA.

Carolina's Sports Medicine Staff

Dr. Joseph DeWalt
Director of Sports Medicine

Dr. Joseph DeWalt is responsible for the delivery of medical care to the 26 intercollegiate athletic teams at the University of North Carolina in his position as Director of Sports Medicine.

DeWalt, a 1950 graduate of Carolina with a B.A. degree in chemistry, also sees students from the general student body with orthopedic injuries. He has been associated with the Student Health Service at the University since 1963, has worked in the area of sports medicine since 1965 and was named to his present position in 1971.

After serving in the infantry at Fort Bragg, N.C., DeWalt, 63, was in the first four-year graduating class from the UNC School of Medicine in 1954. He began his medical career as a post-doctoral trainee for four years in internal medicine and a year in fellowship. He then worked in private practice in Sea Level, N.C. for five years before assuming his role with the Student Health Service.

A native of Aberdeen, S.D., DeWalt is married to the former Mollie Hood DeWalt. They have three daughters—Mollie DeWalt Keller, whose husband is a gastroenterologist in Eustis, Fla.; Susan DeWalt Brown, married to former Carolina soccer player Chris Brown, now a space biologist with NASA in Titusville, Fla.; and Paula DeWalt Symanski, whose husband is a resident in internal medicine at North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill. Dr. DeWalt is also an avid golfer in his spare time.

Dr. Timothy Taft
Director of Orthopaedic Sports Medicine

Dr. Timothy Taft serves as the team orthopaedic surgeon and Director of Orthopaedic Sports Medicine at the University of North Carolina. Taft has worked at Carolina for the past two decades and admits, proudly, that it's the only job he's ever had.

Taft, 48 and a native of St. Louis, Mo., received his A.B. degree from Princeton University in 1964 and his M.D. from the University of Missouri in 1969. He completed his residency in orthopaedic surgery at Carolina in 1974.

Taft holds one of only two endowed professorships in sports medicine in the United States, the Max Novich Distinguished Professor of Sports Medicine chair. He is a member of the American Orthopaedic Society for Sports Medicine, the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons, the Committee on the Medical Aspects of Sports for the North Carolina Medical Society and is an examiner for the American Board of Orthopaedic Surgery.

Taft served as team physician for the 1979 U.S. Pan American Games Team and the 1980 U.S. Olympic Team and as head physician for the 1981 U.S. World University Games Team. He has served as a team physician for U.S. basketball teams which have competed in the 1980 Olympics, 1981 World University Games, 1982 FIBA International Tournament, 1986 Men's World Championships and 1990 Women's World Championships.

Taft and his wife, Judy, have two children — Todd, 16, and Becky, 11, all professing to be be avid Tar Heel fans.

THE

Educational Foundation

What is the Educational Foundation? The Educational Foundation, Inc. is the oldest foundation on the UNC campus and holds a status comparable to the Business Foundation, the Medical Foundation and other fund-raising organizations working for the benefit of the University.

What is the purpose of the Educational Foundation? The Educational Foundation was established to offer financial aid to worthy student-athletes seeking an education at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and to support the University's athletic program by providing services and funds for the construction of facilities or purchase of equipment.

How much support does the Educational Foundation actually provide? Since its founding in 1938, the Educational Foundation has provided scholarships, either partial or full, to over 6,000 student-athletes at UNC. Nearly 400 will be awarded scholarships during the 1990-1991 academic year at a cost of approximately $2.75 million.

Is the Educational Foundation similar to a booster club? Absolutely not. It is a foundation in every sense of the word. The Educational Foundation operates in compliance with all rules and regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Atlantic Coast Conference. It is a tax-exempt entity as recognized by the Internal Revenue Service.

What are the different levels of giving to the Educational Foundation? The following are the various categories of annual giving:

Educational Foundation Member ($50) — Receives periodic newsletters, invitations to annual Foundation functions and the opportunity to purchase basketball tickets on a game-by-game basis or a mini-season package. Minimum Foundation contribution is $50 per year, however, contributions of any amount are welcome.

Little Ram ($150) — In addition to that above, a Little Ram donor has the opportunity to purchase 4 season football tickets, the location of which is subject to the point system.

Ram ($300) — In addition to that above, a Ram donor has the opportunity to purchase 2 season football tickets in a selected location; additional tickets may be purchased, the location of which is subject to the point system.

Big Ram ($600) — In addition to that above, a Big Ram donor has the opportunity to purchase 4 season football tickets in a selected location and receive an assigned parking space.

Super Ram ($1,200) — In addition to that above, a Super Ram donor has the opportunity to purchase up to 8 season football tickets in a selected location and receive an assigned parking space.

Can a donor contribute in ways other than through the annual giving program? Yes. Carolina was one of the first schools in the nation to set up an endowment program for athletics. This program consists of $15,000 and $30,000 life memberships as well as $75,000 endowed scholarships which may be set up through various giving vehicles.

Does the Foundation have chapters at the local level? There are currently 40 local Educational Foundation chapters which meet once a year. Many of the coaches attend these chapter gatherings, giving donors the early opportunity to hear about recruiting, prospects for the upcoming season and schedules.

Who provides the leadership for the Educational Foundation? The Foundation's outside officers include a President, three Vice-Presidents, Secretary, Treasurer, Counsel and Past President. These officers, together with the at-large members and an Investment Committee, comprise the Executive Committee. The Executive Committee is the decision-making body of the Educational Foundation and reports its actions to the Board of Directors.

The leadership within the Foundation office is provided by Moyer G. Smith. He is in his fourth year as Executive Vice-President. He was appointed to the position in December 1986, replacing Ernie Williamson, who currently heads up the endowment program. There are also three directors within the office: John D. Cherry, Director of Administration, Neal B. Harrell, Director of Membership Services and Sue Walsh Stankavage, Director of Operations.

Where are the Educational Foundation offices located? The offices of the Educational Foundation are located in the Maurice J. Koury Natatorium adjacent to the Dean E. Smith Center.

How can one become a contributor to the Educational Foundation? By contacting the Educational Foundation office at (919) 962-2393, or by writing P.O. Box 2446, Chapel Hill, NC 27515.

THE UNIVERSITY OF

North Carolina at Chapel Hill

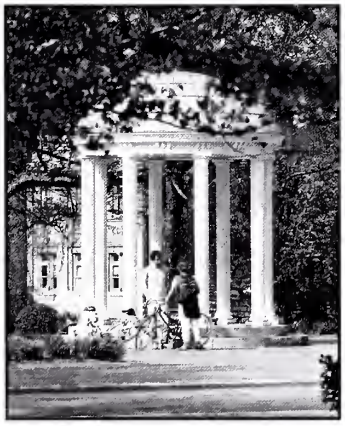
The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is one of the nation's leading teaching and research universities and part of the 16-campus University of North Carolina.

The University has earned that reputation through its continuing commitment to vital teaching, cutting-edge research and distinguished public service.

Guided by William Richardson Davie of Halifax, the North Carolina General Assembly voted to charter the University in 1789. Four years later, on October 12, the University laid the cornerstone for Old East, the first building on campus. With only one building and two professors, the University became the first state university in the nation to open its doors to students when Hinton James arrived from Wilmington on February 12, 1795. Chapel Hill was also the only public institution in the United States to award degrees in the 18th century.

Today, Carolina is among the most comprehensive institutions in the nation and belongs to the select group of 59 major universities that form the American Association of Universities. The University's 14 colleges and schools provide instruction in more than 100 fields, offering 66 bachelor's, 90 master's and 62 doctoral degrees, as well as professional degrees in dentistry, medicine, pharmacy and law. Carolina is one of the few national universities with five health schools on the same campus as academic affairs schools and departments.

The University is consistently ranked as one of the very best major public universities in the nation. In recent years especially, the University has received much public praise for the quality of its undergraduate and graduate programs, its faculty, its research and its public service programs.



The Old Well is the most recognizable landmark on Carolina's 200-year-old campus.

In 1989, for example, U.S. News and World Report magazine ranked Carolina fourth overall among public institutions and 18th among all universities. In separate polls, the schools of business and law also were listed among the nation's top 25 graduate programs by the magazine. The rankings were based on academic reputation, student selectivity, ability to retain students and quality of the faculty. UNC made strong showings — particularly among public institutions — in other U.S. News rankings in 1988, 1987 and 1985.

According to the 1989 book, "The Insider's Guide to the Top 25 Colleges," Carolina is the top public institution in the nation, ahead of the University of Virginia and the University of California at Berkeley. Overall, the book placed UNC 12th in the nation. Also in 1989, the University was second in Sports Travel magazine's list of the top 10 athletic-academic programs in the nation.

A variety of national publications are calling the University one of the top high-quality, low-cost schools in the nation. Money magazine's 1990 poll picked UNC as America's eighth best educational bargain. In 1986, Richard Moll, author of "The Public Ivys: A Guide to America's Best Colleges and Universities," said UNC was one of eight public institutions equivalent to a traditional Ivy League school. He also judged Chapel Hill to be "the perfect college town."

Each fall, the beautiful 689-acre Chapel Hill campus attracts more than 23,000 students from all North Carolina counties, the 50 states and more than 70 foreign countries. Many of those students win major honors for their academic performances. In 1989, for example, Ryan K. Balot became the sixth UNC student chosen as a Rhodes Scholar in the 1980s. Twenty-nine winners of that honor have come from the Chapel Hill campus since 1902. A total of 5,782 students received degrees last year from the University, a new all-time high.

Carolina's students study under a faculty of more than 2,200, who are considered leaders in American higher education. They either hold or have held major positions in virtually every national scholarly or professional association. The most recent comprehensive evaluation published by the National Academy Press rated the UNC faculty tops in the Southeast and one of the best in the nation.

The University is also internationally recognized for its cutting-edge research, some of which occurs at the 36 interdisciplinary centers and institutes on the campus. Research is conducted in all disciplines — the sciences, arts, humanities and social sciences. Among those projects, several focus on North Carolina's four major health problems — cardiovascular disease, cancer, low birthweight infants and injuries from accidents. Carolina continues to receive record levels of research funding — more than $144 million in 1988-89 — from private and public sources.

Public service also has a long and distinguished history in Chapel Hill. The University invests a larger proportion of its budget in direct service to the state than any of the other leading public research institutions. Best-known examples include the Institute of Government, the Area Health Education Centers, the public clinics of the health schools and the growing contribution of the continuing education programs to North Carolina's social and professional development.

The University has trained many of the state's leaders, including nearly half of its governors as well as national leaders in virtually all walks of life. Alumni include a U.S. president — James Knox Polk — as well as author Thomas Wolfe, journalist Charles Kuralt, the late U.S. Senator Sam Ervin, Jr., pollster Lou Harris, actors Andy Griffith and George Grizzard, civil rights leader Julius Chambers, cartoonist Jeff MacNelly, athlete Michael Jordan and fashion designer Alexander Julian. The University's more than 181,000 living alumni reside in all 50 states and 125 foreign countries. More than half live in North Carolina.

The approaching Bicentennial season, which will include an observance and a fund-raising campaign, offers the entire University community a crucial opportunity to recognize the birth of public higher education in America and to plan for the future.

The Bicentennial Observance will commemorate the 200th anniversary of the University and examine its history and traditions, its present position as a leading national university and its future role in higher education and the state. Plans for the observance include public events ranging from convocations with national and international speakers to an open house for all alumni and North Carolina citizens. The observance is designed to underscore the historic relationship and strengthen bonds between the University and the state.

A public institution, Carolina receives 59 percent of its funding from the state of North Carolina. Private giving is a vital part of the University's future. Gifts from alumni, friends, corporations and foundations help to keep the University competitive. The upcoming Bicentennial Campaign for Carolina, a major fund-raising effort extending through 1995, will provide new resources to strengthen the University's ability to teach, to learn and to serve. Campaign priorities will include support for students, faculty, undergraduate programs, the libraries, campus life and facilities.

Both the observance and the campaign will be a time to honor Carolina's rich history and great traditions. However, the University also will use its past to form a vision of a better future, one that will serve the state, nation and world with excellence and distinction for a third century and beyond.

The 1989-90 Season in Review

Season Review

By Lamar Chance
Sports Information Student Assistant

To many North Carolina fans and basketball analysts, the 1989-90 University of North Carolina basketball season may be described as atypical by looking at one glaring statistic—13 losses.

But, if those who have characterized the 1989-90 edition of the Tar Heels as atypical of past teams would look a little deeper in the stat book, they would find that last year's squad did a good job of carrying on the "typical" tradition of basketball excellence at Carolina.

In his 29th year at the helm of the Tar Heels, Head Coach Dean Smith directed the squad to its 20th consecutive 20-win season and its 10th straight appearance in the NCAA Sweet Sixteen, despite playing a rugged schedule that included the likes of nationally-ranked Alabama, Colorado State, Iowa, Georgetown, Missouri and Villanova, all away from home, and the always-tough Atlantic Coast Conference foes. It should also be pointed out that by winning 20 games again, Carolina extended its own NCAA record string of successive 20-win seasons and by advancing once more to the Final 16, Carolina extended its streak to 10 years in a row. Only UCLA from 1967 through 1979, with 13 years, has a longer streak of Final 16 appearances in NCAA history.

However, although the schedule was challenging, Coach Smith said that the 1989-90 Tar Heel team was young and inexperienced going into the season and would need time to jell as a team to have a successful year. And nothing typified Coach Smith's thoughts better than the opening two weeks of the basketball season.

The Tar Heels, without the services of starting center Scott Williams, opened the season in the Maui Classic against the Lefty Driesell-coached James Madison Dukes and had to overcome a nine-point deficit with 1:15 to play to garner an 80-79 victory. The next night, with Williams back in the lineup, Rick Fox's 23 points led Carolina to a 78-68 win over Villanova. But the Tar Heels ran into a tough Missouri Tiger team, which would garner the #1 position in the polls later in the season, in the championship contest, losing 80-73.

After the trip to Maui, Carolina returned to Chapel Hill, only to travel two days later to Tuscaloosa, Ala., to play the Crimson Tide in Pete Chilcutt's homecoming game. But, the Southeastern Conference champion Tide, clicking on all cylinders in the second half, handed the Tar Heels their second loss of the season by a 101-93 score. The Tar Heels, however, got an opportunity to work on team chemistry the following weekend in victories over Central Florida and Towson State.

Up next for Carolina was the much anticipated match-up with the Georgetown Hoyas in the ACC/Big East Challenge in East Rutherford, N.J. The Tar Heels and the Hoyas had not met since the 1982 NCAA championship contest which Carolina won 63-62, but this night belonged to Georgetown as the Hoyas won 93-81 despite 19 points from both Williams and standout freshman George Lynch. Two days later, Carolina endured a snow storm, flight delays and lost luggage en route to Iowa City and came away with an 87-74 loss to the Hawkeyes to show for it.

With the loss to the then nationally-ranked Hawkeyes, the Tar Heels were off to their worst start since the 1982-83 season when Carolina held a 3-3 mark after six contests. But, Coach Smith continued to stick by his young team, saying the squad would reach its potential. The early-season schedule, after all, would have put the most veteran of teams to a stern test.

And the team responded, reeling off six wins in its next seven games. Three of the Tar Heel victories in this stretch were over DePaul, Kansas State (both of which were on national television) and a three-point bombing Kentucky Wildcat squad in Louisville. DePaul and Kansas State were invited to post-season tournaments later. The only loss in the stretch was to NCAA Tournament participant Colorado State by a 78-67 count in the Mile High Classic in Denver.

As Carolina entered early January, Williams seemed to hit his stride. It couldn't have come at a better time. In the Pepperdine contest, he shot an incredible 12-of-13 from the field en route to a game-high 29 points. After UNC's loss to a vastly-improved Maryland squad to open the ACC season, Williams continued his return to form, scoring 31 points and putting together an almost perfect performance in a rout of Virginia. He was 12-of-12 from the field and 7-of-8 from the line as he tied former Tar Heel teammate J.R. Reid for the most points ever scored in the Smith Center by a Carolina player. He followed that performance a week later with a 27-point, 10-rebound game in Raleigh, helping Carolina defeat the Wolfpack, 91-81.

But, as is characteristic with all Smith-coached teams, the squad was extremely team-oriented, as others contributed during Carolina's five-game winning streak early in the ACC season. In a 79-60 win over Duke at the Smith Center, Fox led the Tar Heels with 19 points and King Rice added 13 points and nine assists as Carolina stifled the Blue Devils with a magnificent team-defense performance. Two contests later, Carolina placed five players in double figures in a 73-61 win over Wake Forest.

However, just as the Tar Heels were seemingly putting everything together, the inexperience of the squad began to show once again after a 102-75 defeat administered by the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets in Atlanta. After a sluggish 87-74 win over Miami of Florida, Carolina lost its second straight conference game, falling victim to N.C. State in Chapel Hill. The 88-77 win was the first for the Wolfpack in Chapel Hill since 1976. The Tar Heels rebounded with a win over Wake Forest the following Sunday, but Carolina then lost three consecutive ACC games, the first time that has occurred since the 1963-64 season when the Tar Heels lost four straight in the ACC to end the regular season. The three-game losing streak was also the first time since 1982-83 that Carolina had lost three in a row.

With the team entering the regular season's last week, the Tar Heels posted consecutive victories over eventual NCAA Final Four participants Georgia Tech and Duke. The win at Duke provided the Tar Heels with their eighth victory over the Blue Devils on Duke's home court in the last 11 years and garnered Carolina a third-place tie in the ACC with eventual NCAA semfinalist Tech. The third-place finish also marked the 26th successive season that Carolina had finished third or better in the ACC standings, including 23 seasons when it was first or second.

The Tar Heels entered the ACC Tournament at Charlotte with renewed confidence, but a hot-shooting Virginia team knocked Carolina out in the first round with a 92-85 overtime win.

Two days later, the Tar Heels were invited to their 16th consecutive NCAA Tournament, extending their tourney record for successive bids. After opening play with a win over a feisty Southwest Missouri State squad, Carolina defeated top-ranked Oklahoma, the tournament's #1 seed, 79-77 in what will be remembered as one of the classic contests of the 1990 NCAA Tournament. Fox's off-balance bank shot at the buzzer provided Carolina with the winning points. The win also assured the Tar Heels of their 10th straight trip to the Sweet Sixteen. However, the Carolina season ended in Dallas as Arkansas, an eventual Final Four participant, beat the Tar Heels 96-73, ending the college careers of Williams, John Greene, Marty Hensley, Jeff Denny and Kevin Madden, whose services were lost for the Razorback contest due to a knee injury suffered in practice three days earlier.

Carolina closed the season with a 21-13 record. Maybe it is the mark of a good program that so much was made of UNC's record in 1989-90. The media focused much attention on Carolina's double-digit loss total. But this was still a team which won 21 games and finished third in America's toughest college basketball conference. It was simply another very good North Carolina basketball team.

Carolina Basketball Tradition

Carolina's Basketball Tradition

By Dave Lohse
Associate Sports Information Director

There is probably no greater compliment that can be paid by a student than to praise his mentor long after the student has made the long trek to adulthood. A mature individual can oftimes reflect back on the positive effect a particularly favorite teacher made in his life with much greater ease than someone still actively involved in the learning process.

If there is one thing that has been consistent about the basketball program at the University of North Carolina, it is the quality of educational experience. Coach Dean Smith and his staff are not merely involved with the business of winning basketball games. Their greatest strength is in helping mold complete people. Their vehicle of achieving this is intercollegiate athletics.

Last summer, Michael Jordan, possibly the best known sports figure in the world today, looked back on his years as a player at Carolina from 1982-84 and talked about the benefits he reaped from being involved in Coach Smith's program.

"Any fundamental, whether it be rebounding, defense, one-on-one play, I give credit to Coach Smith," Jordan said. "Every day, Coach Smith prepared me to deal with people. I was very naive about it all. Coach Smith educated me on how to get along in life, how to adapt and to understand people.

"He was a great influence on my life."

Jordan's words, coming from a true superstar in the world of sports, could not ring more true. Smith's program is simply the best in the nation. No question about it. It is a program which not only wins basketball games at the best rate in the country over the past quarter century, but also looks out for the best academic interests of its student-athletes, operates in an atmosphere of complete class and integrity and is the best good will ambassador the University of North Carolina has going for it.

Adhering to these same basic philosophies since Carolina first fielded a basketball team in the 1910-11 season, the University of North Carolina has consistently upheld a tradition of greatness unparalleled in the sport.

Here are some of the numbers to prove it:

7 — The number of Atlantic Coast Conference opponents the Tar Heels have winning series records against. That translates to everybody in the league. The ACC was founded in 1953 and has been college bas-

*Denotes Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament Champion
Note: South Carolina was a member of the ACC from its founding in 1953 through the 1970-71 school year. Georgia Tech joined the ACC prior to the 1979-80 school year.

Carolina has been one of the great post-season success stories in college basketball history. Among UNC's prizes are three national championships, nine NCAA regional titles, eight Southern Conference crowns, 11 Atlantic Coast Conference championships, 28 regular-season tournament titles and the 1971 National Invitation Tournament crown. Here, senior Lee Dedmon cuts down the net at Madison Square Garden after Carolina had routed Georgia Tech in the finals of the 1971 NIT.

ketball's best conference over the past four decades. Carolina has dominated play in the conference since the beginning. In fact, the closest series Carolina has with any league foe is against Duke. Beginning with the ACC's founding prior to the 1953-54 season, the Tar Heels are 64-38 against the Blue Devils, a winning percentage of .627. And never fear, even when Florida State joins the ACC next year, this record will still hold true. Carolina is 10-1 all-time against the Seminoles.

7 (again) — Number of National Players-of-the-Year who have worn Carolina uniforms, the latest being Kenny Smith in 1987.

7 (yet again) — Number of NCAA regional championships won by Smith's teams. Exceeded only by UCLA Coach John Wooden's 12 titles.

9 — Number of times Carolina has reached the NCAA Final Four in its history. That ties the Tar Heels with Kentucky for second on the list. Only UCLA, with 14 appearances, has been to the Final Four more often.

10 — Number of successive times North Carolina has made the Final 16 of the NCAA Tournament. That's the second-longest streak in NCAA history, topped only by UCLA's 13 straight Final 16 appearances from 1967-79. Duke has the second-longest current streak with five.

10 (again) — UNC has won 10 ACC Tournament championships under Smith. That's the most in league history. Everett Case of N.C. State and Vic Bubas of Duke rank second with four each.

15 — Number of times Carolina has won the ACC regular-season championship under Coach Smith. Frank McGuire's six regular-season titles at North and South Carolina ranks as the second most.

16 — Number of consecutive trips to the NCAA Tournament made by North Carolina, still running. That's the longest streak in NCAA Tournament history. UCLA had the second-longest streak of 13 years, from 1967-79. Georgetown has the second-longest current streak with 12.

17 — In 29 years as head coach at Carolina, Dean Smith has led his team to 25 or more wins in a season 17 times. That is an NCAA record for 25-win seasons by a coach. Jerry Tarkanian of UNLV ranks second with 12 25-win seasons and former UCLA coach John Wooden is third with 11.

19 — Number of times Carolina has finished in the Top 10 of a major wire service poll (AP or UPI) in the last 24 seasons. In addition, Carolina has been in at least one Top 10 in 15 of the last 17 seasons and in both Top 10 rankings in nine of the last 10 campaigns. Smith leads all coaches in the number of times his teams have posted Top 10 finishes. Adolph Rupp is second with 18.

20 — Number of consecutive years in which Carolina has won at least 20 basketball games. That is an NCAA record.

20 (again) — Number of times Dean Smith has taken the Tar Heels to the NCAA Tournament. That ties him with Adolph Rupp of Kentucky for most tourney appearances by a coach. Rupp went 20 times between 1942 and 1972.

24 — Number of post-season tournament bids Carolina has garnered in the last 24 seasons. Twenty of those trips have been to the NCAA Tournament and four were to the NIT. The four NIT trips came in an era when only the winner of the ACC Tournament was eligible to receive an NCAA bid.

26 — Number of times in a row that Carolina has finished at least third in the ACC regular-season standings, a streak still intact. In 23 of those seasons, Carolina finished either first or second, including first 15 times. The 1986 team, which was one of the three third-place finishers, was ranked eighth in the country that year in the final polls.

27 — Number of NCAA Tournament games won by Carolina in the last 11 years. That's the most in the country. Georgetown is second in the same period with 26 and Louisville is third with 24.

28 — Number of times in history that Carolina has finished the season ranked in one of the major wire service's Top 20. That includes 22 Top 10 finishes. The AP poll began in 1949 and the UPI poll in 1951.

29 — Total number of Carolina players who have been named All-Americas, the latest being J.R. Reid in 1988.

39 — Number of Dean Smith-coached players who have played professional basketball in either the NBA or ABA.

52 — The number of ACC regular-season road games Carolina has won in the past 11 seasons. The second-most road wins in that time is 32 by Virginia and Duke. In fact, Carolina's 52-25 record on the road in the ACC in the past 11 years is better than every school's home record except the Tar Heels' own 66-11 and Virginia's 56-21.

73.1 — Carolina's all-time winning percentage in the sport of college basketball. Based on 80-year record of 1479-544. Percentage ranks second only to Kentucky in history of college basketball. The Wildcats have won 75.1 percent of their games.

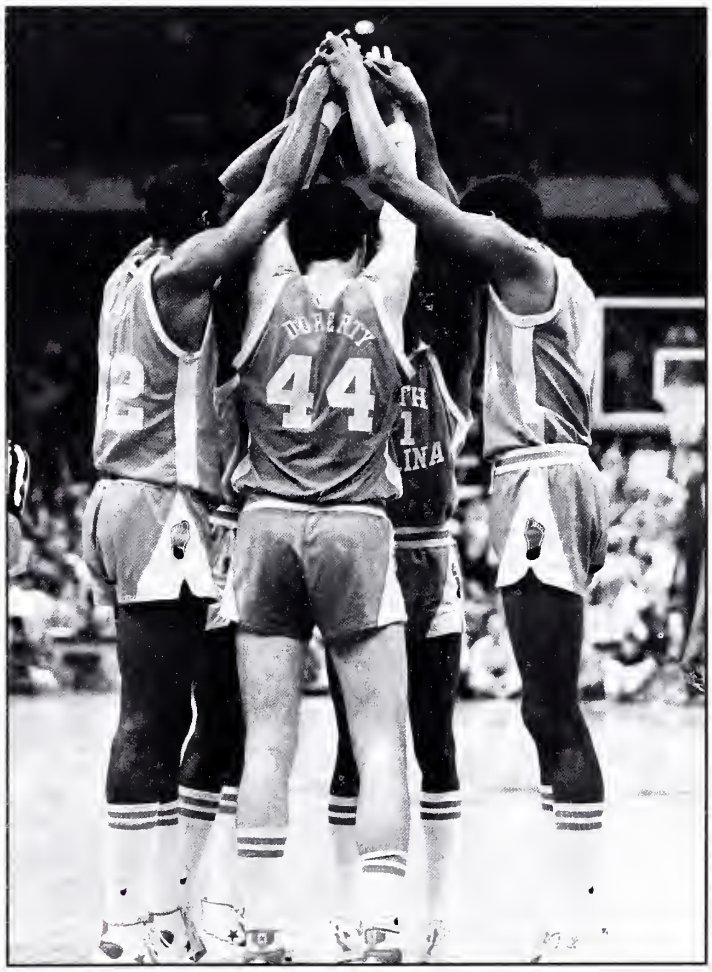
80.3 — Carolina's winning percentage in the last 20 seasons (1970-71 through 1989-90). That's the best in the country over the past two decades. Nevada-Las Vegas ranks second with a winning percentage of 79.3. Carolina has accomplished this feat playing annually what is one of the most difficult schedules in the country.

87.9 — Carolina's winning percentage in games played in the Dean Smith Center since it opened in January 1986. Carolina is 51-7 on its home court in five seasons of play.

89.4 — North Carolina's winning percentage in games it played at Carmichael Auditorium from December 1965 to January 1986. The Tar Heels were 169-20 in the venerable old arena.

97.8 — Percentage of basketball lettermen under Dean Smith who have earned a college degree (175 of 179).

118 — Number of ACC regular-season games Carolina has won in the last 11 years. Virginia ranks second in the same period



Teamwork has been the key to Carolina's phenomenal basketball success over the past three decades under Dean Smith. The Tar Heels' ever-present team chemistry and unselfishness have helped lead Carolina to 19 Top 10 national poll finishes, 15 ACC regular-season championships, 10 ACC Tournament crowns and seven NCAA Final Four appearances over the past 23 seasons. with 88 victories, 30 behind the Tar Heels.

246 — Number of ACC regular-season games Carolina has won in the last 24 seasons. N.C. State ranks second during the same period with 174 victories.

523 — Number of basketball games Carolina has won in the last 20 season. That's the most in the country in that period of time. Louisville ranks second in the same time frame with 483 victories, 40 wins behind Carolina.

688 — The number of games Carolina has won in Dean Smith's 29 seasons as head coach. That makes him the winningest active NCAA Division I basketball coach and the sixth winningest of all time.

1,479 — Number of victories Carolina has compiled in its 80 seasons of intercollegiate basketball history. North Carolina and Kentucky are tied for first place in all-time wins at this number even though the Wildcats have played seven more seasons than UNC.

Needless to say, that is quite an impressive array of numbers. But numbers don't even begin to paint the complete picture of Carolina basketball. What they can tell you is that Carolina's program is the most consistent in the nation, year-in and year-out.

That consistency begins with dominating one's own conference and the Tar Heels have done just that in the ACC over the past three decades. "Carolina is always there," said former Duke All-America Johnny Dawkins. "State had its run, but Carolina was right there. Maryland did the same thing. Duke, Virginia, Tech — they all had their moments, but Carolina was always there. They've been great every year. They cast a shadow over the league."

In the league's 37-year history, Carolina has won the regular-season championship 20 times, or 54 percent of the time in an eight-member league. That includes 13 outright championships and three undefeated 14-0 seasons. Carolina's 11 ACC Tournament titles are also the most in league history with N.C. State in second with 10 tourney crowns.

Since the conference was founded in the 1953-54 school year, Carolina has a 371-128 league record for a .743 winning percentage. Second-place Duke is more than 70 victories behind at 298-198, a winning percentage of .600. One has to go back to 1963-64 to find a season in which Carolina finished lower than third place in the ACC standings. Carolina has never finished lower than fifth in the regular-season standings, has had only two losing conference seasons in 37 years and has finished in the upper division of the ACC standings 35 of 37 times. Simply defined, that is being dominant.

The Tar Heels' success in the ACC is even more amazing given UNC's leading role in the league. Playing Carolina is always the biggest game on an opponent's schedule each and every year. There is no question that Carolina will receive the best shot from its ACC foe. Carolina, because of its national reputation, also faces that dilemma in non-conference games as well. This status as a "hunted" opponent makes Carolina's record over the past several decades even more amazing.

But league dominance is only the beginning of a basketball tradition which predates the ACC's founding by over 40 years. Carolina goes into the 1990-91 season tied with Kentucky as the all-time winningest college basketball program with 1,479 victories. The Tar Heels have also won their share of titles. The 1924 team went 26-0 and was voted as the national champion. Carolina also won NCAA championships in 1957 and 1982 and the NIT title in 1971. Carolina has also won nine NCAA regional championships and is one of only six schools in the country to have won both the NCAA and NIT titles. The 1957, 1982 and 1984 teams were also voted #1 in the final national wire service polls.

In post-season play, Carolina has won 50 NCAA Tournament games in 24 appearances and has an additional seven NIT wins in four appearances. The 50 NCAA Tournament wins ranks third in that event's history behind UCLA's 64 and Kentucky's 55. Forty-three of those victories have come under Dean Smith. He ranks second only to UCLA's Wooden who won 47 games in tournament history.

Carolina continued adding to those numbers with an NCAA-record 16th successive tournament trip in 1989-90. UCLA has the second longest streak of appearances with 13 (1967-79). Carolina's string would be longer but for the fact that prior to 1974-75, only one team from each conference was eligible to appear in the tournament. Thus in 1970, 1971, 1973 and 1974 some outstanding Carolina teams had nowhere to go but the NIT. Under the current setup, all four of those teams would have been "locks" for at-large bids to the NCAA Tournament. It is interesting to note that since the NCAA opened up its tournament to more than one team from each league in 1974-75, Carolina has made the tournament field each and every year.

It should also be pointed out that no Carolina freshman class since 1963 has missed out on playing in a post-season tournament during its stay in Chapel Hill.

Carolina's prominence and consistency is probably best reflected by the fact that the Tar Heels have finished in the Top 10 of at least one of the two major wire service polls in 19 of the past 24 seasons, including nine of the last 10 years and 15 of the last 17. Ten times in those 24 seasons, Carolina finished ranked amongst the top four teams in the country. In three of the five seasons when Carolina didn't make a Top 10, it was still ranked in the Top 15. While other teams' fans are ecstatic if their team finishes in the Top 10 once, a spectacular season like that is often taken as status quo by Carolina fans.

UNC achieves this kind of success by just plain playing basketball well. Nineteen of the past 20 teams have shot at least 50 percent from the field for the year, a streak stopped only last year when UNC hit on .498 percent of its shots. Still, that figure was good enough to lead the ACC in field goal percentage.

The major key, however, to Carolina's success lies not with its offense, but with its stifling defenses. The Tar Heels combine the innovative scramble defenses with powerful man-to-man matchups which can suffocate opposing offenses. And the famous saying that "the best offense is a good defense" certainly holds true for the Tar Heels. Steals, easy layups and breakaway dunks often account for a significant percentage of the Tar Heels' points, and are three of the reasons why the Tar Heels have the best cumulative field goal percentage in the nation over the past quarter century.

Other reasons for Carolina's success are the discipline, unselfishness and maturity UNC players have exhibited over the course of the years. Carolina is actually often criticized for actually passing the ball too much in an effort to get the best, highest percentage shot available. Sometimes this will result in a turnover. But the criticism is invalid. Yes, it may on occasion lead to a lost possession, but in the long run it promotes good team basketball, something the North Carolina program is famous for.

College basketball is often referred to as a "tournament sport," the assertion being that tournament performance is the strongest indicator of overall success. Whether that is the case or not and there is surely much conjecture in this area, Carolina has always excelled in tournament settings. Including post-season and regular-season play, Carolina has won over 60 tournaments in its illustrious history. The 1971-72 team won five by itself. Carolina has won such prestigious regular-season tournaments as the Great Alaska Shootout, the Rainbow Classic, the ECAC Holiday Festival, the Far West Classic, the Cable Car Classic and the Tournament of Champions.

Carolina has had the distinction of placing at least one player on every U.S. Olympic basketball team since 1964. Beginning with Larry Brown that year in Tokyo, Carolina Olympians have included Charlie Scott in 1968, Bobby Jones in 1972, Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Phil Ford and Tommy LaGarde in 1976, Al Wood in 1980, Sam Perkins and Michael Jordan in 1984 and J.R. Reid in 1988.

Chapel Hill has been home to many All-America players, 19 in the Dean Smith era alone. Players who have been named either first or second-team All-Americas in the last 29 years have included Billy Carolina has also had seven players named as National Players-of-the-Year, four during the Dean Smith era. This illustrious group includes Jack Cobb in 1926, George Glamack in both 1940 and '41, Lennie Rosenbluth in 1957, Phil Ford in 1978, James Worthy in 1982, Michael Jordan in 1983 and '84 and Kenny Smith in 1987.

The Tar Heels also have a great place to practice and play basketball, a key element in any successful basketball program. In 1986, the University christened the 21,572-seat Dean E. Smith Center with a thrilling 95-92 victory over Duke when the Tar Heels were ranked #1 and the Blue Devils #2 in the nation. The multi-purpose facility was built because ticket demands had far exceeded the 10,000-seat capacity of Carmichael Auditorium for many years. Legendary Carmichael was UNC's home from 1965-86 and the Tar Heels won an astounding 169 of 189 games played there.

But the need for a new arena was evident. Now, twice as many people as before can see the Tar Heels play their home basketball games in one of the premier sports edifices in the country. Members of the Educational Foundation who had contributed money to the athletic program for years, but who couldn't get a seat in Carmichael, now have the opportunity to see UNC play in person. In addition, seating allotments for the University's faculty and staff and student body were greatly increased with the move to the new building. Carolina has a five-year record of 51-7 in the $34 million structure, all of which was raised through private donations.

Even those fans who aren't lucky enough to get a ticket in the Smith Center still have a good chance to see the Tar Heels play. Carolina is one of the top television attractions in the entire country. This season, Carolina has three regular-season games on network television, 12 on national cable on ESPN and six more on the regional ACC network. This means 21 of Carolina's 27 regular-season games will be seen by fans in the ACC area and 15 will be available nationally. In addition, all games in the ACC Tournament are televised nationally either on CBS or ESPN and if Carolina advances to the NCAA Tournament, those games will be shown on CBS as well.

Carolina basketball is also carried over a 60-station network in the Southeastern United States, broadcast under the auspices of the Tar Heel Sports Network. Woody Durham, now in his 20th year as the "Voice of the Tar Heels," brings the play-by-play of every Carolina basketball game to thousands of listeners each winter. Several times each season Carolina games are also carried on the Armed Forces Radio Network, carrying the news of Carolina basketball worldwide.

Carolina is also unequaled in its production of successful professional basketball players. In Smith's 29 seasons, 39 players have gone on to the professional ranks. Some of these include such modern day superstars as Worthy, Perkins, Daugherty and the incomparable Jordan.

However, those players who haven't gone on to careers in basketball have graduated to success in other professions. Equipped with the all-important college degree, Smith graduates include doctors, military officers, businessmen, lawyers, bankers, you name it. Carolina's sterling record of graduating its basketball lettermen is virtually unequaled in all of college sports.

Perhaps Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino summed it up best at the 1985 NCAA Southeast Regional in Birmingham as his team was preparing to play the Tar Heels in the championship game.

"North Carolina has a great team and a great tradition," noted the veteran Big East mentor. "North Carolina is what college basketball is all about, academically and athletically."

Just another in the long list of compliments so richly deserved and generously heaped on this entity called Carolina basketball.

History of Carolina Basketball

By Dave Lohse
Associate Sports Information Director

The University of North Carolina is known world-wide for producing basketball teams laden with talent and integrity. From the casual sports fan to the basketball connoisseur, the Tar Heel monicker evokes memories of classic performances, stunning comebacks and thrilling victories.

Carolina's 80 seasons in the intercollegiate ranks have produced an overall record of 1479-544, making the Tar Heels, along with Kentucky, the winningest college basketball programs of all-time. The Wildcats have compiled a record of 1479-489-1 while playing 87 seasons of intercollegiate basketball, seven more than Carolina. Ironically, these two teams meet December 10 this season in Chapel Hill. There's a good chance the two schools could still be tied in the victory column going into that game. UNC and Kentucky also rank 1-2 in the history of the college game in winning percentage with the Wildcats first at .751 and the Tar Heels second at .731.

Only nine of the 80 Tar Heel teams have suffered through losing seasons and no Carolina coach has ever retired with a cumulative losing mark. The closest was Nat Cartmell who went 25-24 in 1911-14. From 1911 through 1952, the UNC pro-gram has 13 different head coaches. None stayed for more than six years. Since then, the program has had only two coaches — Frank McGuire for nine years and Dean Smith for 29. Each led Carolina to an NCAA championship.

The first UNC team played in 1911. It was part of physical education classes at the University, but student Marvin Ritch led the drive for an organized team. Nathaniel Cartmell, then UNC's track and field coach who was internationally known in his own right as a sprinter, coached that first team.

Carolina played its first game February 3, 1911, beating Virginia Christian 42-21. The team played its games in Bynum Gymnasium, now the site of the University cashier's office. Carolina went 7-4 that first season, playing the likes of Tennessee, the Woodberry Forest School of Virginia and the Durham and Charlotte's YMCA's. At the time, a crowd of 50 spectators for a game was considered enormous.

Cartmell was to coach the Tar Heel cagers to a 25-24 record over his four seasons. His 1912 team was only 4-5, but several thousand fans came to see the Heels play Virginia Tech in the Raleigh Auditorium, a sign that interest in and support of the sport was growing.

In 1915, Charles Doak became the coach of the Tar Heels. His 1916 squad went 12-6, the best record in the first decade of the sport in Chapel Hill. Doak had been the baseball coach for Carolina before taking over the basketball duties.

In 1917, Carolina scored its first victory over then arch-rival Virginia in 13 tries, 35-24. That Tar Heel team was led by George Tennent, captain of both the 1917 and '18 Carolina squads. Luther Hodges, later to be governor of North Carolina, was a substitute on the 1917 team. Howell Peacock coached the Tar Heels for three seasons beginning in 1917 and racked up a 23-14 mark in that time.

In 1920, Fred Boye took over as head coach at Carolina. He stayed two years and compiled an 18-17 ledger.

The 1922 squad played without an official coach and went 14-6. Carolina went to Atlanta and swept the Southern Conference tournament, winning five games in five days. The Heels captured the final over Mercer, 40-25. The '22 squad was led by Cart-wright "Cart" Carmichael, who was then a sophomore. He went on to be one of Carolina's all-time great players. He became UNC's first All-America in any sport in 1923 and '24, and he was an All-Southern Conference pick from '22 through '24.

The five-year period beginning in 1922 was actually a glorious one for Carolina despite the fact the Tar Heels played with no coach in 1922 and '23 and with three different coaches the following three years. Carolina went 93-14 in the five-year span and won four of five Southern Conference titles and the national championship in 1924.

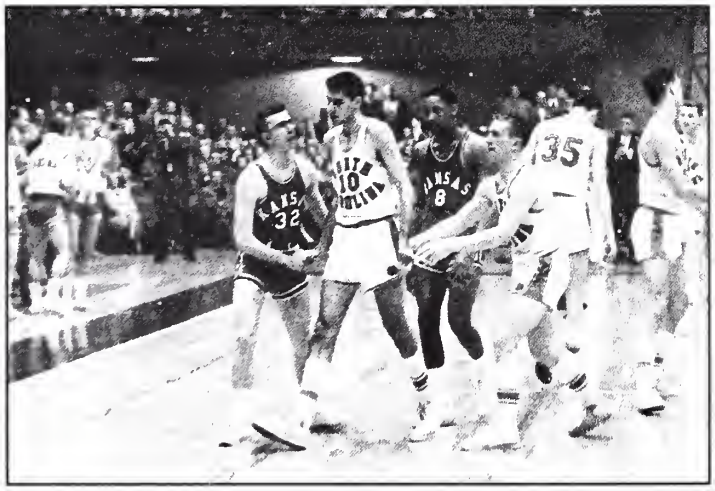
The 1923 team set the stage for that magnificent '24 squad by going 15-1, losing a 34-32 thriller to Ole Miss in the Southern Conference tourney final.

The '24 team proved to something else. Led by Jack "Spratt" Cobb, Carmichael and Bill Dodderer, it rolled to a 26-0 record and was named national champion by the Helms Foundation.

Carolina's eight-man squad played for the first time in 1924 in the Indoor Athletic Center, better known as "The Tin Can." It stood on the site of what is now Fetzer Gymnasium.

Norman Shepard coached the Tar Heels in '24. It was his only season as Tar Heel mentor. He left the next year to pursue business ventures abroad. Carolina students waited at the telegraph office to hear the score of the Southern Conference championship game, and when it was heard that UNC had beaten Alabama, 26-18, the celebration began with bells ringing at the Old South building for an hour.

In 1925, Monk McDonald coached a Cobb-led Tar Heel squad to another Southern Conference title and an 18-5 record. Harlan Sanborn coached the '26 squad to a 20-5 mark. That team was led by National Player-of-the-Year Cobb and Dodderer, an All-Southern Conference



After a great final performance in which he scored 20 points and pulled down five rebounds, 1957 National Player-of-the-Year Lennie Rosenbluth walks dejectedly from the court after fouling out late in regulation time of the 1957 NCAA championship game with Kansas. Rosenbluth is consoled by teammate Tommy Kearns and Kansas players Bob Billings and Maurice King. Despite Rosenbluth's absence, the Tar Heels outlasted the Jayhawks in triple overtime, 54-53, to win Carolina's second of three national championships. (Photo by Joe Douglas, Jr.)

choice from '24 through '26. Cobb, who averaged 15 points a game, unheard of in that day, was named an All-America for the third straight year. Thousands gathered in Memorial Hall to hear a telegraphic play-by-play of the Southern Conference championship game as Carolina downed Mississippi State, 37-23.

James Ashmore began an impressive five-year coaching stint with the Tar Heels in 1927. His teams were led by players like Billy Morris, Puny Harper and Bunn and Rufus Hackney. Ashmore's teams compiled a 79-37 mark in his tenure, but they never won a Southern Conference title, in fact never even reached the finals.

Norman Shepard's brother George "Bo" Shepard, took over as coach in 1932. He brought Carolina back to national acclaim quickly. The "Charlotte Connection" provided many of the best players for UNC at that time because of the strong high school and YMCA programs in that part of the state.

Guard Tom Alexander and forward Virgil Weathers, both All-Southern Conference choices, led the '32 team to a 16-5 mark, losing 26-24 in the Southern Conference final to Georgia.

After that '32 season, the Southern Conference lost 13 schools which went on to form what is now the Southeastern Conference. There now were 10 schools remaining in the Southern Conference and the site of competition for the league tournament was changed to Raleigh.

In 1933, Shepard needed a big man for rebounding purposes and to control the jump ball after each score which was a part of the game at that time. He found his man in Jack Glace, who hadn't even made his high school squad. The Heels went 12-5 that season and lost a double overtime thriller to powerhouse South Carolina, 34-32, in the semifinals of the Southern Conference tourney. Late in the game as the Gamecocks were attempting a free throw, the officials called a technical foul on the "home" crowd for its behavior, even though the game was being played 30 miles from Chapel Hill. The call is still questioned today but it helped the Gamecocks tie the score and send the game into overtime where they eventually won.

The 1934 Carolina team finished 18-4, losing to Duke in the Southern Conference tourney. Dave McCachren was the captain of that Carolina squad and was the first of four McCachren brothers to play at UNC from 1931 to '43. Each brother captained the Tar Heel team his senior year and each was elected president of the UNC Athletic Association. Besides Dave, there was Jim, who was probably the best of the four, being named All-Southern Conference three times, as well as Bill and George, who was known by the nickname "Toad."

The 1935 team won the conference championship and compiled a gaudy 23-2 mark in Shepard's last year as head coach. After that season, Shepard stepped down because of health reasons and Walter Skidmore became head coach. Skidmore continued the winning ways in Chapel Hill, leading the 1936 team to a 21-4 record and Southern Conference title. That 1936 unit was led by Pete Mullis and Andy Bershak, who was also an All-America end in football.

Carolina had good years in 1937 and '38, but failed to win the Southern Conference title either time. Then, in 1939, Carolina suffered its first losing campaign in 19 years and Skidmore stepped down as coach. He was replaced for the 1940 season by Bill Lange, then an assistant football coach under Ray Wolf.

The 1940 Carolina team proved to be a very good one. Led by George Glamack, who was nicknamed the "Blind Bomber," UNC went 23-3. The 6-6 junior from Johnstown, Pa., could barely see the basket because of impaired vision, but his foul line hook shot was lethal. Glamack became only the third player ever designated as National Player-of-the-Year by the Helms Foundation twice, both in 1940 and '41. Glamack was also a two-time All-America for the Heels.

Other stars on those teams of the early 1940s were Paul Severin, a two-time All-America end in football, and Bob Rose, an All-Southern Conference player in 1941. Glamack averaged 20.6 points a game for the Tar Heels, an amazing statistic given the fact teams only scored in the 40's and 50's during that era.

As in other sports, the World War II years in basketball were crazy ones. The Carolina team lost many players to service obligations during this time — in fact, only one letterman was available for the 1943 team. In 1944, the Tar Heels played 11 contests against service teams. Lange stepped downn as coach after the 1944 season and his five-year record was an impressive 85-41.

Ben Carnevale took over as head coach in 1945 and the Tar Heels motored to an outstanding 22-6 ledger and the Southern Conference Championship. The star of that team was Jim Jordan, who was named an All-America that season.

The 1946 team was an outstanding one. Led by All-America John "Hook" Dillon, Jordan and 6-6 Horace "Bones" McKinney, it made it all the way to the NCAA championship game before losing to Oklahoma State 43-40. McKinney had left N.C. State to resume his post-World War II career at Carolina and he helped lead the Heels to a 30-5 mark. Carnevale left after the season was over to take the coaching job at the Naval Academy. He was replaced by Tom Scott.

At this time, basketball in the South was booming. North Carolina State was becoming a formidable rival and the Southern Conference Tournament was moved to Duke Indoor Stadium for additional seating.

Scott's first team, in 1947, was led by Jim Hamilton and Bob Paxton. It posted a 19-8 record and lost in the conference finals to N.C. State. Unfortunately, that would be the first of 15 successive losses to the Wolfpack.

Scott produced 20-win seasons in both '48 and '49, but lost thrice to N.C. State each year, including heartbreakers in the tournament. Coy Carson and Hugo Kappler both made All-Southern Conference in 1949.

The next three campaigns produced a trio of mediocre records and Scott resigned following the '52 season. He was replaced by Frank McGuire, a 38-year-old native of Greenwich Village in New York City. Formerly the coach at St. John's in Jamaica, N.Y., McQuire was successful at luring many outstanding New York basketball stars to Chapel Hill through his connections to the area, the first of whom was Jerry Vayda.

McGuire's first team, in 1953, proved to be a scrappy unit. It didn't have great talent, but ended up 17-10 and beat N.C. State in Raleigh, breaking a six-year losing streak to the Pack. During the off-season, Carolina and seven other schools left the Southern Conference to join what has become college basketball's most powerful league, the Atlantic Coast Conference. The next two years produced average records, 11-10 in 1954 and 10-11 a year later, but McGuire was building a foundation for future greatness.

Lennie Rosenbluth, from New York City, debuted for the Tar Heels in 1955 as a sophomore and averaged 25.5 points per game.

In 1956, a great new class joined holdovers Rosenbluth, Vayda, Tony Radovich and Bob Young. The new sophomore class included Pete Brennan, Tommy Kearns, Joe Quigg, Bob Cunningham and Roy Searcy. That '56 team went 18-5 setting the stage for what happened a year later.

In 1957, McGuire had a lineup that consisted of the 6-6 Brennan, 6-5 Rosenbluth and 6-9 Quigg on the front line with Cunningham and Kearns in the backcourt. En route to its 32-0 record, Carolina had to avoid a couple of close calls in the regular season against Duke and a double overtime contest versus Maryland. The closest call of all may have come in the ACC Tournament semifinals when the Heels edged Wake Forest 61-59. Once in the NCAA's, Carolina swept past three opponents to set up a meeting with Michigan State in the semifinals.

It took three overtimes, but Carolina finally vanquished the Spartans, 74-70. That set the stage for a showdown with Dick Harp's Kansas Jayhawks, led by the great Wilt "The Stilt" Chamberlain. At Kansas City's old Municipal Auditorium, UNC needed another three overtimes to subdue KU, 54-53, on Quigg's two free throws with six seconds to play in the third extra session. Thousands turned out at the airport to welcome their conquering heroes home. Rosenbluth concluded his brillant career by being named an All-America, All-ACC for the third straight year and the Helms National Player-of-the-Year.

In 1958, a Carolina team led by All-America and ACC Player-of-the-Year Brennan finished 19-7. Lee Shaffer and Dick Kepley, soon to be Carolina stars in their own right, joined the squad as sophomores. The 1959 team may have been McGuire's second best among his nine teams at UNC. Doug Moe, York Larese and Lou Brown joined the team and Carolina finished 20-5, losing in the finals of the ACC Tournament and in the first round of the NCAA Tournament to Navy.

A year later, Carolina had another outstanding season under McGuire. The Heels finished 18-6 overall, losing to Duke in the ACC tourney. Shaffer was named a first team All-America that year.

The 1961 season produced a good team and a 19-4 record. It was the senior year for Moe, Larese and Kepley. Moe was an All-America that season and together with Larese, they were called the L & M twins. McGuire chose to accept an offer from the Philadelphia Warriors of the NBA at this time. His nine-season record at Carolina was a brilliant 164-58.

The man who stepped into the void was a native Kansan by the name of Dean Edwards

In one of the most thrilling moments in North Carolina basketball history, the Tar Heel bench erupts in joy at the sight of Charlie Scott's last-second shot which beat Davidson, 87-85, at the buzzer to win the 1969 NCAA East Regional championship. Carolina's win at Cole Field House in College Park, Md. sent the Heels packing for their third straight trip to the NCAA Final Four.

Smith. He had been lured to Carolina in 1958 from the Air Force Academy to be McGuire's assistant. He assumed the head coaching duties at age 30 and since has built a program that is a model for integrity and success in college athletics.

Coach Smith's first team in 1962 compiled an 8-9 record, his only losing season as a head coach. But his players did give him a victory in his first coaching outing, 80-46 over Virginia. It would prove to be a harbinger of things to come. After that victory, Smith said, "I've never been as scared in my life."

In 1963, Billy Cunningham, affectionately known as "The Kangaroo Kid" joined the varsity and became an immediate star. Averaging 22.7 points and 16 rebounds, he helped lead the Tar Heels to a 15-6 record. A year later, Cunningham was still awesome, but the Tar Heels' record dipped to 12-12. Help for the future arrived, however, in the form of highly-touted frosh Bob Lewis.

Lewis moved up to the varsity in '65 and with All-America Cunningham, the two combined for 46.4 points per game as Carolina went 15-9. Cunningham left Carolina as its all-time leader in rebounds and one of the most prolific rebounders and scorers in conference history. A two-time All-America and three-time All-ACC selection, he went on to a great professional playing and coaching career, mainly with the Philadelphia 76ers.

For 1966, Cunningham was gone, but Lewis was now joined by soon-to-be superstar Larry Miller. The Tar Heels moved out of Woollen Gymnasium and into 8,800-seat Carmichael Auditorium, which would evolve into one of the most famous arenas in college basketball history. The '66 squad finished only 16-11, but it was obvious greatness was just around the corner.

The 1967 team proved to be Coach Smith's first truly great squad at Carolina. Lewis and Miller were joined on the varsity by sophomores like 6-11 Rusty Clark, Bill Bunting, Dick Grubar and Joe Brown. The season resulted in a 26-6 ledger and the Tar Heels finished fourth in the final Associated Press poll and third in United Press Inter-national's rankings. The '67 campaign marked the beginning of a string of three suc-cessive first-place finishes in the ACC regular-season standings, three straight ACC tourney titles and three consecutive NCAA East Regional championships for Smith and his troops. The '67 squad was characterized by an enthusiastic, gambling defense that has become a trademark of Smith teams.

Lewis graduated after '67, but the great Charlie Scott arrived to take his place in the Carolina lineup as the Heels prepared for the 1968 season. Scott was the first black player on the Carolina varsity and he started from the beginning of his sophomore year. The '68 team was an outstanding one and made it all the way to the NCAA finals before losing to UCLA and Lew Alcindor. The Heels' final record that year was 28-4, best yet under Smith's tutelage. Miller was All-America and All-ACC for the second straight year.

Heading into 1969, Miller was gone, but the remaining core of those great teams returned. Carolina went 27-5, won the ACC's for the third straight year and was again in the Final Four. Scott, Bunting, Clark and Grubar led that team as well as junior guard Eddie Fogler.

The 1970 squad entered that season decimated by graduation. The tremendous seniors of the year before — Bunting, Clark and Grubar — had graduated. Carolina finished 18-9 but was buoyed by the addition of sophomores Dennis Wuycik, Bill Chamberlain and Steve Previs, all solid players. Scott made All-ACC for the third consecutive year and first team All-America for the second. In his final home game, Scott left to a thunderous standing ovation when Smith took him out. The crowd chanted "We want Scott!" and Smith reinserted him in the lineup and of course, Scott responded with a basket. Carolina lost in the first round of the ACC Tournament that year and accepted an NIT bid. It would be the last time UNC failed to win 20 games in a season.

The 1971 team was not expected to do much in the pre-season ratings. But it rolled up a 26-6 record and won the ACC regular-season title and the NIT championship. Sophomore George Karl moved up to the varsity and formed a great backcourt with Previs. Wuycik was a first team All-ACC choice and Chamberlain the Most Valuable Player of the NIT.

Carolina returned to the Final Four in 1972 with a 26-5 record. Robert McAdoo, a junior college transfer, was outstanding for the Heels that year along with returnees Wuycik, Chamberlain, Karl and Previs. Sixth-man Bobby Jones, a 6-8 sophomore, showed great promise for the future. Carolina won the ACC regular-season and tournament titles before losing to Florida State in the NCAA Final Four. After the season, McAdoo declared himself eligible for the NBA draft.

Carolina returned to the NIT in 1973 and reached the semifinals after losing in the first round of the ACC Tournament. The 25-8 squad was led by the play of Karl and, in the first year freshmen were again eligible to play under NCAA rules, Mitch Kupchak showed signs of greatness inside.

The 1974 team was led by All-America and All-ACC player Jones. It compiled a 22-6 record and made a return trip to the NIT after losing to Maryland in the ACC semifinals. That team featured a freshman class of Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and John Kuester, which would lead Carolina back to the Final Four three years later. The season will also be remembered for the memorable comeback the Tar Heels made against Duke in Carmichael Auditorium. Trailing by eight points with 17 seconds to play, the Heels rallied to tie the contest on a half-court shot by Davis as time expired. UNC went on to win in overtime, 96-92. 1974 also marked the last time Carolina failed to make the NCAA Tournament, a streak now numbering a record 16 years.

In 1975, the wonderous Phil Ford arrived on campus as a freshman and he had an immediate impact on Carolina basketball fortunes. He became the first freshman under Smith to start the first game of his freshman year, a feat since matched by Mike O'Koren, James Worthy, Michael Jordan, Kenny Smith, J.R. Reid, Pete Chilcutt and Rick Fox. As a frosh, Ford won the Everett Case Award as MVP of the ACC tourney as Carolina beat defending national champion N.C. State in the finals, 70-66. The Tar Heels had to survive overtime games with Wake Forest and Clemson in the first two rounds of the tourney just to get into the title game. Overall that Carolina team finished 23-8 and was eliminated in the NCAA East Regional by Syracuse.

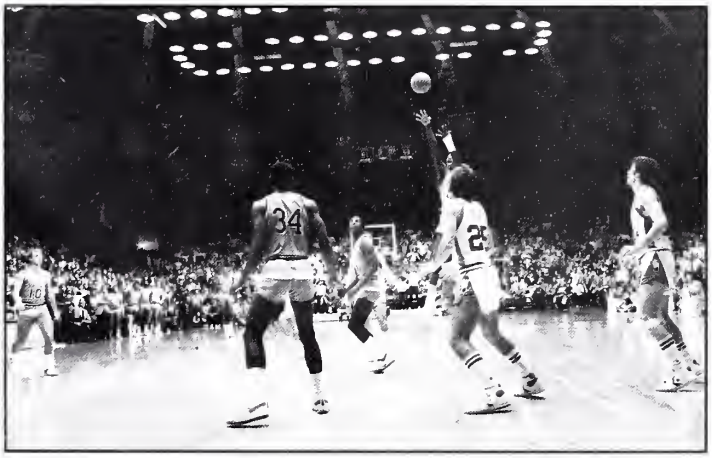
A year later, in Kupchak's senior year, the Tar Heels had one of their best teams ever under Smith, but it was undone by injuries and bad luck at season's end. First team All-Americas Kupchak and Ford led UNC to a 25-4 mark and a 13-1 ACC slate. But Carolina was upset in the ACC finals by Virginia and then lost to Alabama in the first round of the NCAA's with Ford hurt.

That summer, however, Carolina would mine Olympic gold in Montreal in a big way as Kupchak, LaGarde, Ford and Davis would all play on the victorious U.S. squad which was coached by Smith and his Carolina assistant Bill Guthridge.

The 1977 campaign marked a return to the Final Four for the first time in five years as UNC posted a 28-5 mark. A mid-season knee injury to LaGarde ended his career early and then Davis broke his thumb in the ACC tourney semifinals. Led by Kuester, the Tar Heels persevered and beat Virginia in the tournament finals. Carolina used its up-tempo style to perfection in conjunction with the four corners offense in scoring NCAA wins over Purdue, Notre Dame, Kentucky and UNLV. All were of the comeback variety save the win over the Wildcats. Ford was hurt in the Notre Dame game and played the remainder of the tourney at less than 100 percent. After freshman O'Koren helped the Heels into the finals with 31 against Vegas, the Tar Heels fell to Marquette, 67-59, in the championship contest.

The 1978 team had to play minus Lagarde, Davis and Kuester — no easy task. It was Ford's senior year and the Rocky Mount, N.C. native would be tapped for National Player-of-the-Year honors as UNC went 23-8. In an emotional Carmichael farewell, Ford scored a career-high 34 as UNC beat Duke 87-83 to clinch first place in the regular-season standings over the Blue Devils. Losses to Wake Forest in the ACC Tournament and San Francisco in the NCAA Tournament would dampen Tar Heel spirits, but couldn't diminish the greatness of Ford, a three-time All-America and Carolina's all-time leading scorer.



During Carolina's 21 seasons of play in Carmichael Auditorium (1965-86), the Tar Heels were famous for pulling off many amazing comebacks. In December 1982, the Tar Heels trailed Tulane by two points with three seconds to play in regulation. But a steal and long jumper by Michael Jordan (shown here) sent the game into overtime, with the Tar Heels eventually winning in three extra sessions, 70-68. Carolina's all-time record in Carmichael was a staggering 169-20. (Photo by Sally Sather)

The 1979 squad was not ranked highly in the preseason but won Smith ACC and National Coach-of-the-Year honors after finishing 23-6. O'Koren, senior defensive wizard Dudley Bradley and sophomore sharpshooter Al Wood led this squad. During the regular season, UNC beat eventual national champion Michigan State and scored an infamous 70-69 win at N.C. State on Bradley's last-second steal and dunk.

Carolina tied for the ACC regular-season championship with Duke and beat the Blue Devils 71-63 in the ACC tourney finals. The season ended in frustration with an upset loss to Penn in the NCAA's, and Bradley went on to the pros.

The 1980 squad was led by a senior class which featured O'Koren, a first team All-America in 1979 and 1980. The Heels finished 21-8, losing to Duke in the ACC semifinals and to Texas A & M in the NCAA's second round.

The 1981 team would start a string of 10 straight Carolina teams that advanced to the Sweet 16 of the NCAA Tournament. Led by Wood and Worthy, UNC finished 29-8 in 1981 and won the ACC Tournament and reached the Final Four where it beat conference foe Virginia in the semifinals behind Wood's 39 points. Two days later, Indiana beat the Tar Heels for the national championship.

But that only set the stage for a 1982 squad which won it all. Pre-season rated #1, the Tar Heels finished the regular season that way and went on to win the NCAA championship. The squad's 32-2 record equalled the school record for victories in a season as the Tar Heels swept through the ACC Tournament and the East Regional. There were countless heroes on the '82 team. Worthy was co-National Player-of-the-Year and he scored a career-high 28 points in Carolina's 63-62 win over Georgetown in the finals. Sam Perkins was a first team All-America and was joined in the lineup by point guard Jimmy Black, forward Matt Doherty and freshman Michael Jordan. Jordan hit the 15-foot jump shot with 17 seconds left to give the Heels the winning points against the Hoyas.

Worthy was drafted after his junior year by the Los Angeles Lakers, but the 1983 squad returned a strong nucleus led by Perkins and Jordan, both of whom were first team All-Americas that year with Jordan earning some National Player-of-the-Year recognition. The Heels finished 28-8 after an 0-2 start and were ranked #1 in the nation during several weeks in January and February. After tying for the ACC regular-season title, the Heels made it to the finals of the East Regional before being upset by Georgia. Possibly the highlight of that season was a 16-point comeback victory over Virginia in Carmichael in February in a battle of the nation's two top-ranked teams.

In 1984, Smith had one of his best teams before it fell victim to the injury bug. At 28-3, the Heels became only the sixth team in ACC history to go through the conference round-robin undefeated at 14.0. Jordan was a consensus National Player-of-the-Year and Perkins was All-ACC and first team All-America for the third straight year. Point quard Kenny Smith had his wrist broken in the LSU game and he never fully recovered, hurting Carolina in the post-season.

The 1985 team was another one of Smith's over-achieving squads. Ignored in the pre-season Top 20's for the first time in recent memory, UNC went 27-9 minus Perkins and Jordan and finished tied for first in the ACC regular season standings. Junior Brad Daugherty and Smith spearheaded that team to the finals of the NCAA Southeast Regional before losing to eventual national champion Villanova.

The 1986 unit, led by first team All-America Daugherty, produced another outstanding campaign. The Tar Heels finished 28-6, but were decimated in the post-season by injuries to Steve Hale, Warren Martin and Joe Wolf. For the second straight year Carolina was ousted from the NCAA Tournament by the eventual national champion, Louisville.

The 1987 squad proved to be another one of Smith's best. Led by a strong senior nucleus which featured All-ACC players Smith and Wolf, UNC tied the school record for victories in a season with 32 in a 32-4 campaign. For the second time in four years, UNC finished the ACC regular season undefeated at 14-0. Ranked second and third in the final wire service polls, UNC advanced to the NCAA East Regional finals before falling to Syracuse, 79-75. Smith capped a brilliant career as UNC's all-time leader in assists by being named National Player-of-the-Year by Basketball Times.

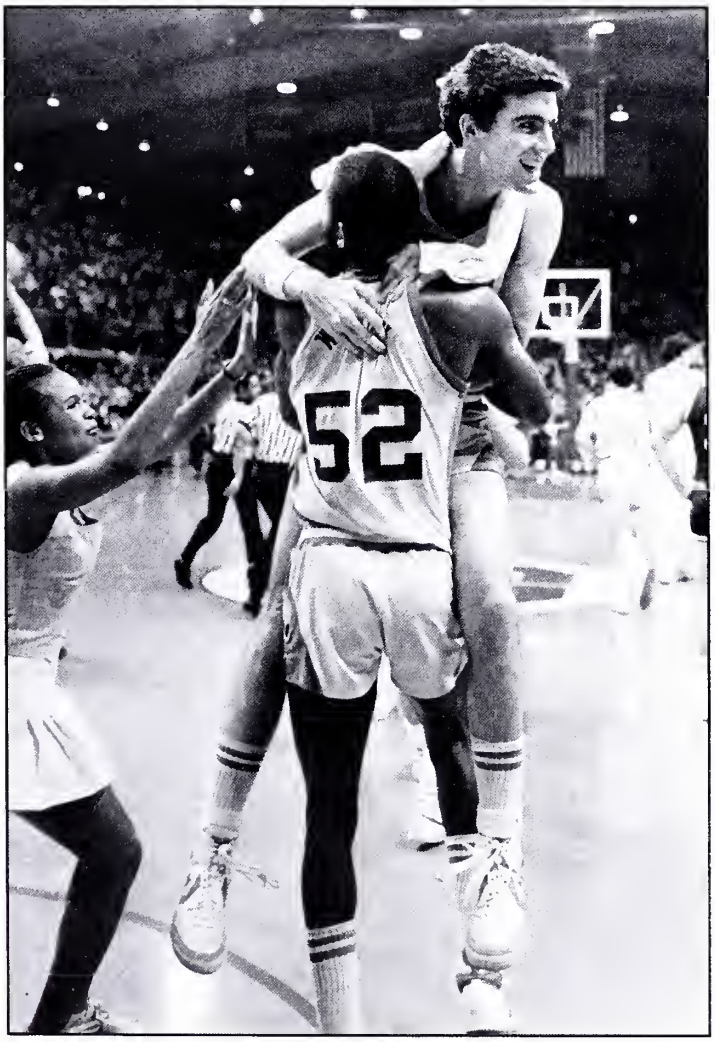
Going into the 1988 season, many experts saw the Tar Heels as an inexperienced bunch that might struggle a little bit more than previous UNC squads. But yet again, Smith assembled a fine Carolina team and coached it to a 27-7 record and a berth in the NCAA Tournament, where the Tar Heels fought their way to the West Regional finals in Seattle behind the play of All-America sophomore forward J.R. Reid. En route to the post-season appearance, the young Carolina team opened the season with a thrilling come-from-behind victory over top-ranked Syracuse in the Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic in Springfield, Mass., setting the tone for another great season in Chapel Hill. The Tar Heels captured the regular-season ACC crown for a second consecutive year and went on to defeat North Texas, Loyola Marymount and Michigan in the NCAA's before succumbing to a loaded Arizona squad, 70-52, in a battle for a spot in the Final Four.

Only Ranzino Smith graduated from the 1988 team, allowing Coach Smith the luxury of an experienced 1989 squad. Led by seniors Jeff Lebo and Steve Bucknall, the Tar Heels won their first ACC Tournament crown in seven years. Carolina went on to the final 16 of the NCAA tournament for the ninth straight year, but fell to eventual champion Michigan, 92-87. Carolina's 29-8 record marked the 19th straight season in which the Tar Heels had won at least 20 games and the ninth successive campaign in which they won at least 27. UNC was ranked fourth and fifth in the final wire sevice polls.

After the 1989 season, Reid opted to forgo his final year of eligibility to enter the NBA draft and was chosen as the fifth player selected in the draft by the home state Charlotte Hornets. Also gone was the entire starting backcourt from that 1989 team in the form of Lebo and Bucknall. Carolina finished the 1990 campaign with a 21-13 record, the most losses for a Carolina team since the 1952 squad finished 12-15. The Tar Heels still finished tied for third in the ACC, extending a streak of 26 successive years in which Carolina has finished third or higher in the league standings. Carolina also won 20 games in a season for an NCAA record 20th straight season and was invited to the NCAA Tournament for the 16th year in a row, a tournament record.

Perhaps the highlight of the season was Carolina's stunning 79-77 upset of top-ranked Oklahoma in the NCAA Midwest Regional second round at Austin, Texas. Carolina was seeded eighth in the Region, while the Sooners were the tournament's top seed. But Carolina advanced to the NCAA Final 16 for a 10th successive year after Fox hit an off-balance bank shot in the lane as time expired.

The Tar Heels finished the 1989-90 season with a 21-13 mark, while Kentucky finished 14-14. That leaves the two storied programs tied for first place in all-time college basketball victories with 1479 apiece entering the 1990-91 campaign.



UNC forward James Worthy (52) gives teammate Matt Doherty a victory ride after Carolina clinched a trip to the NCAA Final Four in 1982 by beating Villanova, 70-60, in the East Regional championship game at Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh. Basketball Tournament Success

By Steve Kirschner
Assistant Sports Information Director

Be it a Thanksgiving Classic, a Holiday Festival or a post-season national championship, in college basketball, there simply is no time like tournament time. For Dean Smith's North Carolina Tar Heels, tournaments are just another part of the phenomenal success story written in Chapel Hill.

No Atlantic Coast Conference program has won more NCAA post-season basketball tournaments or won more ACC tournament titles. And no coach has had near the success that Smith has achieved during his 29-year tenure on the Hill.

The zenith of Carolina's hardwood success is, undoubtedly, shown in the Carolina trophy case in the Smith Center which is home to a pair of national championship tournament trophies.

Carolina's first of three national championships came in 1924 as the Helms Foundation tabbed the Tar Heels as its top team following Carolina's unblemished 26-0 campaign.

It took 33 years before the Tar Heels were again atop the college basketball world, but this time it took a tournament victory to turn the trick.

The NCAA Tournament had begun in 1939 and Carolina had been a participant just twice. The Tar Heels' inaugural NCAA appearance came in 1941 under Coach Bill Lange, but it was two and out for Carolina, losing by six points to Pittsburgh and a point to Dartmouth. Then, in 1946, Ben Carnevale's Carolina team disposed of NYU and Ohio State to reach the NCAA championship game, but was defeated by Oklahoma State, 43-40.

Eleven years later, a multi-talented Carolina squad led by Lennie Rosenbluth rolled to a 32-0 record and the NCAA title. Carolina's semifinal game versus Michigan State and the title matchup against Wilt Chamberlain and the Kansas Jayhawks each were triple overtime affairs.

Carolina won that semifinal showdown with Michigan State 74-70 and then defeated Kansas 54-53 on a pair of Joe Quigg free throws with six seconds remaining in the third overtime session.

In 1981-82, with one of the finest collections of college basketball talent ever assembled, the Tar Heels went 32-2 en route to their second NCAA Tournament championship. Freshman Michael Jordan's jumper with 17 seconds to play and junior forward James Worthy's steal with six seconds left finished off Georgetown, 63-62. Worthy scored 28 points and was named the Final Four's Most Valuable Player. The other starters on that NCAA championship team included all-time Carolina rebound leader Sam Perkins, Matt Doherty, the consummate role player, and point guard Jimmy Black.

Carolina's remarkable 1981-82 team is the last in college basketball to begin the season as the consensus #1 team in the national rankings, finish the regular season ranked first in the polls and then actually win the national championship on the court.

It was the first NCAA title for Smith, but the trip to the Final Four certainly was not a new experience for Smith's Tar Heels.

In fact, Smith stands second only to legendary UCLA coach John Wooden in Final Four appearances and total tournament victories. Wooden led his dynastic Bruin program to 12 Final Fours and his teams won 47 games in NCAA history.

Smith has led seven different Tar Heel squads to the Final Four and he has won 43 tournament games. In 1967-69, Smith's first three ACC Tournament championship teams each went on to the NCAA Final Four. The 1968 Tar Heels beat Ohio State in the semifinals and lost to UCLA and Lew Alcindor in the championship game in Los Angeles. That game marked the first of four trips to the NCAA championship game by a Smith-led Carolina team.

Most recently, Smith's Carolina squad shocked Oklahoma, the #1 team in the nation at the time, 79-77, on a last-second basket by forward Rick Fox in the 1990 tournament's second round. That win moved Carolina into the regional semifinals and extended a remarkable record for post-season success.

Carolina now has advanced to 10 consecutive Final 16's—the second-longest streak in NCAA Tournament history and the longest active streak in college basketball. Only the Bruins of UCLA appeared in more consecutive Sweet 16's. The Bruins' record streak of 13 trips was set from 1967-79. Duke is second in active streaks with five.

The Tar Heels have qualified for the NCAA Tournament a record 16 consecutive times dating back to 1975. That is three more seasons than UCLA's previous tourney record of 13 and four more than Georgetown's second-longest active streak. When you say "March Madness," Carolina is traditionally a part of it.

Under NCAA rules, only one team from the Atlantic Coast Conference represented the league in the NCAA Tournament prior to 1975. To qualify for the NCAA's, an ACC team had to fight through America's toughest conference tournament, something the Tar Heels accomplished five times from 1954-1974.

Since the NCAA Tournament expanded in 1975 and the ACC began placing more than just the tourney champion in the big show, North Carolina has been in every single NCAA Tournament—a fact no other program in the nation can state.

Overall in NCAA action, Carolina has, in 24 appearances, won a total of 50 games. That is third-most in history behind UCLA's 64 and Kentucky's 55. Over the last 11 years, Smith's Tar Heels have won 27 tourney ball games, the most in that span by any school.

Smith's Tar Heel teams have qualified for 20 NCAA Tournaments, tying him for the most tourney appearances by a coach in college basketball history. Smith shares the record with legendary Kentucky coach Adolph Rupp.

Carolina's post-season success was not limited to the NCAA's, as the Tar Heels have participated in four National Invitation Tournaments and won seven NIT games.

Carolina's four NIT appearances came in a span of five years in the early 1970s—at a time when only one ACC team represented the conference in NCAA Tournament play. In 1971, Smith led the Tar Heels to the NIT championship by posting wins over Massachusetts, Providence, Duke and Georgia Tech. The semifinal win over Duke in Madison Square Garden in New York City was, interestingly, the first time in that storied rivalry that Carolina had met the Blue Devils outside the state of North Carolina.

The Tar Heels won that NIT title with a convincing 84-66 victory over Georgia Tech and forward Bill Chamberlain was selected as the tourney's Most Valuable Player. The Tar Heels are 7-3 in NIT games.

Carolina has not limited its tournament success to just NCAA and NIT play, however, as the Tar Heels are the winningest program in the history of the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament. A three-day event which ranks as one of the most elusive tickets in sports, the ACC Tournament is a measuring stick for success. And the Tar Heels have certainly graded out well.

North Carolina has won 11 ACC Tournaments, more than any school in tourney history. The Tar Heels have won 52 games and lost just 25, also more wins than any other ACC school. Carolina's 18 appearances in the championship game is five more than N.C. State, which has the second most. Carolina's 23-8 record and 74.2 winning percentage in first-round contests is the best of any program. The Tar Heels are also the last team to win back-to-back ACC Tournament championships, taking titles in 1981 and 1982. It is a measure of the difficulty of winning this tournament that no team has repeated in the last eight years.

Smith has led Carolina to 10 of its 11 ACC Tournament titles. In addition to the title in 1957 under Frank McGuire, Carolina has also won ACC Tournament titles in 1967, 1968, 1969, 1972, 1975, 1977, 1979, 1981, 1982 and 1989. Smith's 10 titles are six more than any other coach has won in league history. N.C. State's Everett Case and Duke's Vic Bubas each won four titles for the next best bench mark. Smith's Tar Heels have won 10 of the last 24 championships and, in the last 11 years, Carolina's 18-8 record is tops in the league.

Since the Everett Case Most Valuable Player Award was established in 1965, 10 different players in Carolina Blue have earned the honor. Larry Miller was a two-time winner in 1967 and '68 and is joined on that list by Charlie Scott (1969), Lee Dedmon (1971), Robert McAdoo (1972), Phil Ford (1975), John Kuester (1977), Dudley Bradley (1979), Sam Perkins (1981), James Worthy (1982) and J.R. Reid (1989).

The 1957 national champions almost didn't even make the tournament field, playing one of its most trying games versus Wake Forest in the ACC semifinals. Rosenbluth and Pete Brennan combined to score 39 of Carolina's 61 points, though, in a two-point Tar Heel victory.

Dean Smith's first ACC tourney title in 1967 included a three-point, 56-53 win over State in round one. Miller scored 31 versus Wake Forest in the semis and pumped in 32 more in the finals versus Duke for the win. The following year, Miller scored 31, 24 and 21 points for his second straight MVP trophy and Carolina's second consecutive ACC title. An 82-79 overtime win over South Carolina in the semifinals was Carolina's toughest game in the tourney. The next day, Carolina routed State 87-50 in the finals.

The Heels made it three in a row in 1969 behind the dead-eye aim of guard Charlie Scott, who pumped in 40 points in the 85-74 championship game win over the Blue Devils. Scott scored 29 second-half points as Carolina rallied from an 11-point halftime deficit and made 17 of 23 shots from the floor.

In 1975, Carolina won three thrillers en route to Smith's fifth title in nine years. First, Carolina beat Wake Forest 101-100 in overtime behind Walter Davis' 31 and Phil Ford's 25 points. Carolina had to rally from an eight-point deficit in the final 50 seconds to force overtime against the Deacons. In the semifinals, Ford scored 29 to lead the Heels to another overtime win, this one a 76-71 victory over Clemson. Then, in the finals, Ford rang up 24 more points and Carolina defeated defending NCAA champion N.C. State, 70-66. Ford was the first freshman to win the Case Award.

Virginia upset Carolina in the '76 finals, but the Heels got revenge a year later when Kuester led a 75-69 championship game win over the Cavaliers. Two years later, in 1979, Dudley Bradley led a 71-63 win over Duke in the finals and earned MVP honors. Interestingly, Kuester and Bradley earned MVP honors without any large point-production outings. Kuester scored just 13 and 14 points in the two games in '77 and Bradley had just nine and 16 in the 1979 tourney. However, Kuester hit 11-of-12 free throws in the two games, including six-of-six in the finals and led the four corners offense each night as Ford exited on fouls. Bradley scored 16 against Duke in the finals on 7-of-11 shooting and had seven steals.

Perkins tallied 53 points and had 25 rebounds over three games en route to the '81 MVP award. Carolina easily defeated State in the first round, but then just squeaked by Wake Forest 58-57 in the semis and Maryland 61-60 in the title game. The Tar Heel frontcourt—Al Wood, Worthy and Perkins—combined for 50 of Carolina's 61 points in the finals.

In 1982, en route to the national championship, Carolina edged Ralph Sampson and Virginia 47-45 in the ACC finals at Greensboro. Leading 34-31 at the half, Carolina slowed the game down in the second half to force the Cavaliers out of their zone. The Wahoos never budged and Matt Doherty sealed the win with a pair of free throws in the waning seconds.

In 1989, Carolina again hoisted the title plaque high. Steve Bucknall hit a pair of crucial three-point plays and King Rice made key free throws down the stretch and Carolina won its ACC-record 11th tournament title and its 10th for Coach Smith with a 77-74 win over Duke. J.R. Reid averaged 16.0 points a game in the tourney and earned Case Award honors.

Carolina's tournament success is not bound by the post-season only. Carolina, through the years, has won 28 regular season tournaments. The Tar Heels were three-time winners of the very popular Dixie Classic in Raleigh in the late '50s. In 1971-72, Carolina won five tournaments, including the Big Four in Greensboro, the International Christmas in Madrid, Spain, the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans, the ACC in Greensboro and the NCAA East Regional in Morgantown, W.Va.

The Tar Heels win in the Madrid International in December 1971 featured an 83-77 win over Real Madrid in the finals. That game, on Christmas Day, was televised live throughout Europe.

Carolina has won several other tournaments outside of the continental United States. The Tar Heels have three Rainbow Classic titles to their credit, as well as a pair of Great Alaska Shootout championships, the 1983 Greece Invitational crown and the 1987 World Invitation Club Tournament title in London.

Carolina's record speaks for itself—two NCAA Tournament, 11 ACC Tournament, seven NCAA Regional and 28 regular-season tournament championships. And counting.

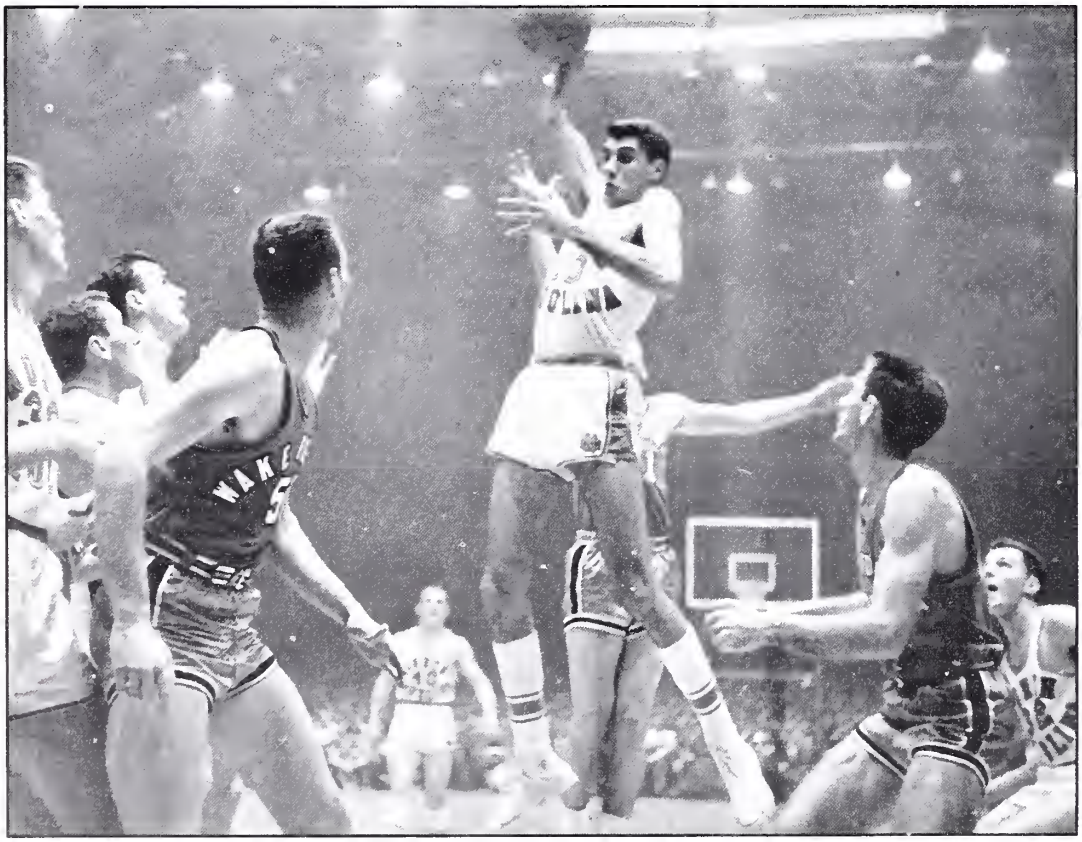
Carolina's Greatest Players

By Brad Bankston
Sports Information Student Assistant

When a visitor looks to the upper East endzone of the Dean E. Smith Center, he sees 13 jerseys—13 jerseys which have been hung in honor for remarkable athletic accomplishment. Six of the jerseys have been retired, the ultimate honor. The other seven are honored for their outstanding achievements in Carolina basketball.

Names such as Cobb, Cunningham, Rosenbluth, Worthy, Jordan and many others bring back memories of great shots, last-second victories and literally years of success. But these 13 individuals are not the only ones to have made a lasting impression on the history of Tar Heel basketball. Over the years, Carolina has had the pleasure of being home to some of the greatest players to have ever played the game.

Two of UNC's finest players under Dean Smith have been forwards James Worthy and Mitch Kupchak. Both went on to outstanding NBA careers. Worthy has won three World Championships with the Los Angeles Lakers, while Kupchak, now assistant general manager of the Lakers, won one with Washington and one with L.A. (Photo by Sally Sather)



The National Player-of-the-Year in 1957, Lennie Rosenbluth led Carolina to the NCAA championship that season. He was also a three-time All-ACC selection.

Years of success have made Carolina, along with Kentucky, the winningest programs in college basketball history, but these years have not come easily. With hard work and strong will, the Tar Heel basketball program continues the tradition that has long been the pride of Chapel Hill. The accomplishments that are Carolina's have been linked to more than a few gifted men. They are the product of many. Players have achieved honors such as Olympic Gold, the monicker National Player-of-the-Year and many other individual feats. North Carolina's success, however, has not only come in individual achievement, but in overall teamwork as well. Carolina's teams have truly been filled with players that can do it all.

The early 1920s brought the first real success in Tar Heel basketball. The 1922 team won the Southern Conference championship and the 1923 squad captured the South Atlantic title. Neither of these teams, though, had a true basketball coach who knew the game inside out. They were coached by two men, Bob and Bill Fetzer, who were experts in almost every sport but basketball. The Fetzers were best known for their expertise in football and track.

When Norman Shepard was hired as coach in 1924, the true excellence that one associates with Carolina basketball most assuredly began. His '24 Tar Heels finished with a perfect 26-0 record, which earned them the Southern Conference championship and the declaration of national champions by the Helms Foundation.

Cartwright Carmichael, Jack Cobb and Monk McDonald were headliners on Shepard's first team. While the style and speed of the game has changed over the years, these three men are still recognized as being three of the finest players to ever play on the Hill.

Cobb received Helms' Player-of-the-Year award in 1926 and was a three-time All-America. When most teams were averaging 30 points a game, Cobb, as a senior, averaged 15. He is presently a member of the Helms Basketball Hall of Fame. Carmichael was twice named All-America while at Carolina and McDonald was an All-Southern Conference performer.

The teams in the 1930s were not stocked with players the calibre of Cobb or Carmichael, but the '30s were full of many exciting players nevertheless. Ivan "Jack" Glace, Earl Ruth, Virgil Weathers, Tom Alexander, Jim McCachren and Stewart "Snooks" Aitken all made the All-Southern Conference squad during that decade.

George "The Blind Bomber" Glamack will be remembered by Carolina basketball fans from the early 1940s. Even though George could barely see the basket while he stood under it, he perfected a hook shot that he used on many occasions. His ability to know where he was on the court in relation to the basket astonished many experts. Glamack was a two-time All-America and the Helms National Player-of-the-Year in both 1940 and '41. He has since been honored with a deserved place in the Hall of Fame.

Despite the disappointment of losing to Oklahoma State in the 1946 NCAA Finals, that year's squad was manned by an excellent starting five. All-America John "Hook" Dillon was a key figure, but he was only one of five stars, a group which included Jim Jordan, Horace "Bones" McKinney, Jim White and Bob Paxton. Jordan previously had been an All-America in 1945 as well as Most Valuable Player in the Southern Conference.

Eleven years later, the 1957 squad, which some call the greatest team in Tar Heel history, defeated Wilt Chamberlain and Kansas in a triple overtime decision by the score of 54-53 to win the NCAA championship.

Lennie Rosenbluth was considered to be the star for the '57 Tar Heels. He averaged 28.0 points a game and edged out Chamberlain for the honor of being named National Player-of-the-Year. Bob Cunningham, Tommy Kearns, Joe Quigg and Pete Brennan, himself later to become an All-America, complemented Rosenbluth perfectly in compiling one of the greatest college basketball seasons ever. Quigg was the deciding factor in '57 when he hit two free throws with six seconds left in the third overtimet o win the NCAA championship and cap off a perfect 32-0 season.

The 1960s were filled with great players, many, that in one capacity or another, are still visible in the sport today. Big Lee Shaffer was a great scorer in his days in Chapel Hill. In 1960, he received the honor of being named Atlantic Coast Conference Player-of-the-Year. Shaffer later went on to the professional ranks, where he was an all-star performer with the Syracuse Nationals. A prolific free throw shooter by the name of York Larese also starred for the Tar Heels in the early '60s. Larese ranks 10th at Carolina in all-time free throw percentage. But Larese was not alone. Doug Moe also led the list of star players in the early '60s. Many consider Moe one of the best all-around players to ever play at Carolina. Until recently, Moe had been the successful head coach of the Denver Nuggets in the NBA.

Playing alongside Larese and Moe was one of Carolina's best-ever playmakers in Larry Brown. Brown not only was fortunate to play at Carolina, but he also had the opportunity to win a Gold Medal on the 1964 Olympic Team. After a fine career as a player and coach in the professional ranks, Brown later went on to coach the University of Kansas to a national championship in 1988. He is currently in his third season as head coach of the San Antonio Spurs.

The latest Tar Heel to hit it big in the professional ranks, forward J.R. Reid was chosen fifth in the 1989 NBA draft by the home state Charlotte Hornets.

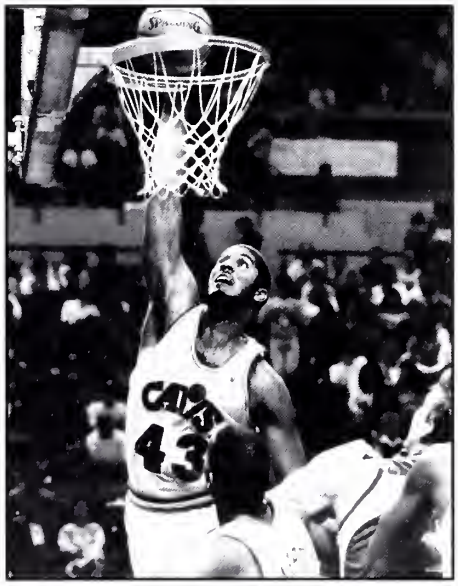
The next Carolina star was "The Kangaroo Kid." Billy Cunningham was a two-time All-America in 1964 and '65 and All-ACC three times. Although he was just under 6-6, he led the conference in rebounding three years in a row. To this day, Cunningham still holds seven North Carolina rebounding records. The "Kangaroo Kid," considered by many to be Coach Dean Smith's first truly great player, later went on to a lucrative career playing and coaching professional basketball for the Philadelphia 76ers organization. Presently, he is vice president of the Miami Heat.

Following Cunningham was a Washington, D.C. native who still holds a unique record at Carolina. Bobby Lewis holds the single-game record for points scored with 49 against Florida State in 1965. He broke a record which had been set the previous year by Cunningham with 48 against Tulane. But no one since then has come close to Lewis' mark.



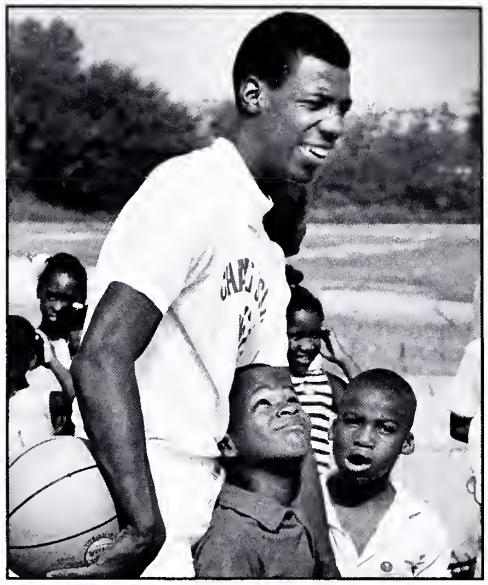
Center Brad Daugherty was the first player chosen in the 1986 NBA draft after completing a brilliant Tar Heel career. He has gone on to be an NBA All-Star with the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Larry Miller followed in the late '60s. Miller's talent, combined with a fine cast around him, brought to Carolina the chance to win another NCAA championship. Miller twice led the Tar Heels to the NCAA Final Four, the first two of seven trips to the national semifinals under Dean Smith. Miller was a two-time All-America in 1967 and '68 and he was twice named ACC Player-of-the-Year. Miller played larger than his body structure, 6-4, 215 pounds, and he amazed crowds as he made driving layups and exercised a wide variety of shots.

In the late sixties, Bill Bunting, Rusty Clark and Dick Grubar all starred on highly successful teams which won three ACC championships, three NCAA Eastern Regionals and made three appearances in the NCAA Final Four. Bunting completed his tenure at Carolina with a great senior season in 1969, making All-ACC. Grubar not only was one of the most popular players to ever wear Carolina Blue, but he also was a fantastic playmaker and defender. Clark was a rugged defensive performer, an excellent rebounder and a Morehead Scholar.

In the years from 1968-1970, Carolina fans watched one of the program's most dominant players. Charlie Scott excelled at every aspect of the game. In his junior and senior years, he was voted All-America. In 1968, he represented the United States in the Summer Olympic Games at Mexico City and returned with a Gold Medal. In 1970, he led the ACC in scoring with 27.1 points a game and was named the ACC Athlete-of-the-Year and a CoSIDA Academic All-America.

A trio of fine frontcourt players consisting of Bill Chamberlain, Dennis Wuycik and Robert McAdoo led the Tar Heels into the successful decade of the seventies. Chamberlain led Carolina to a 1971 National Invitation Tournament championship and was named MVP of the event. Wuycik was known for his fine shooting ability and aggressive rebounding. McAdoo also possessed an uncanny ability to shoot and rebound well, averaging 19.5 points and 10.1 rebounds a game. By 1972, this trio had led the Carolina basketball program to another Final Four appearance.



The first black scholarship athlete in the South, Charlie Scott made many friends among young and old alike during his remarkable career at Carolina in the late 1960s.

Another All-ACC performer in that period was George Karl. Karl was a three-year starter at point guard and was highly popular among the fans. He dazzled crowds with his daring plays and his unselfish act of sacrificing his body for loose balls on the court.

Bobby Jones is considered by many to be one of the most complete college basketball players to ever play the game. Jones possessed acute quickness and superb rebounding ability. These factors, along with his enduring spirit, allowed him to play professionally until he retired five years ago after an outstanding career with Denver and Philadelphia.

The 1976 ACC Player-of-the-Year, Mitch Kupchak, was another great all-around player for Coach Smith. Kupchak showed his senior leadership by spearheading the Tar Heels to a brilliant 25-4 record in 1976. The '76 Olympic basketball team was filled with Tar Heels. Kupchak, Phil Ford, Walter Davis and Tommy LaGarde all played for that team and Dean Smith and Bill Guthridge were on the coaching staff.

Kupchak went on to help the Washington Bullets win the 1978 NBA championship and the Los Angeles Lakers do likewise in '85.

Davis, LaGarde and John Kuester have many things in common. First, all three were considered great shooters and excellent defensive players. Not only did they have similar talents, but they also brought success to the Carolina basketball program. All three played on teams from 1974-77 that won 98 games and only lost 23.

Davis, in fact, is one of the best clutch players to ever run the floor in Carolina Blue. Davis achieved excellence in the NBA by receiving the NBA Rookie-of-the-Year award with Phoenix in 1978. LaGarde received All-America status during his stay at Carolina and many feel his mid-season injury in 1977 may have cost the Tar Heels a national championship. As a senior, Kuester was voted MVP in both the ACC Tournament and NCAA Eastern Regionals.

One cannot talk about UNC basketball without mentioning one of the greatest point guards to ever play the game. Phil Ford not only was National Player-of-the-Year in 1978, but he still holds the Carolina career scoring record and is second in assists. While playing for the Kansas City Kings, Ford earned NBA Rookie-of-the-Year honors in 1979. In 1988, he returned to his beloved Carolina to work under his former mentor, Dean Smith, as an assistant coach.

One of the best defensive players to compete in the ACC was Dudley Bradley. A first-round pro draft choice, Bradley was the 1979 ACC Tournament's Most Valuable Player.

By the late '70s and early 1980s, Carolina had seen its share of great players, but little did anyone know that another fantastic batch was about to emerge. Mike O'Koren, Al Wood and James Worthy started the influx in what many feel was a fantastic decade of recruiting by Coach Smith and his staff. O'Koren is one of the few players to rank among the school's career leaders in scoring, rebounding and assists. He was selected sixth overall in the 1980 NBA draft.

Wood capped a fantastic four-year career at Carolina by leading the Tar Heels to the 1981 NCAA championship game. Always a great shooter, Wood developed into the complete player that Coach Smith wanted. He was the first senior selected in the 1981 National Basketball Association draft.

Worthy may be best remembered for his one-man wrecking crew performance in the 1982 NCAA Tournament. Worthy shared the National Player-of-the-Year award in '82 after he helped lead the Tar Heels to a 32-2 record. He topped off his college career with a 28-point showing against Georgetown to give Carolina its second NCAA championship. He was named MVP for the ACC Tournament, the NCAA Eastern Regionals and the NCAA Final Four. He left Carolina after three years for a professional career with the Los Angeles Lakers, where he has played on three NBA championship teams.

The leader of a team on the basketball floor is assumed to be the point guard and Jimmy Black fit that description perfectly while he was at Carolina. As a senior, Black helped direct the Heels to one of their greatest seasons ever in 1982. He holds the fourth highest all-time assist total at North Carolina and also finished his career as an excellent defensive player.

Matt Doherty, Sam Perkins and Michael Jordan also starred in the Tar Heels' championship season. Doherty, who was one of college basketball's most underrated players, could best be described as an excellent role player. He was capable of doing whatever needed to be done—a big defensive play, an offensive board or a key basket; he was the man to turn to. He and Walter Davis are two of four Tar Heels who have achieved the 1000-point, 400-rebound and 400-assist club.

Perkins stands only behind Ford as Carolina's leading scorer of all-time, and he holds the top spot on the rebound list. But besides being a great offensive player, Perkins also exhibted a superb defensive instinct which helped the 1984 Olympic basketball team win the gold medal. Perkins is one of three Tar Heels to have earned All-America honors three times. He presently is playing in the professional ranks with the Los Angeles Lakers.

Jordan, said to be able to control a game at will, may not be remembered best for his incredible athletic ability, but rather for his NCAA championship game feat. Jordan buried a 15-foot jumper with 17 seconds left in the NCAA championship game against Georgetown to cap a 63-62 Tar Heel victory. After being named the nation's top player his sophomore year, he was voted National Player-of-the-Year in '84, but this time was a unanimous selection. By the summer of '84 Jordan's ability was remarkable and he went on to lead the Olympic team not only in scoring but also to a Gold Medal. His accomplishments led him to decide to leave Carolina a year early. Jordan's feats in the NBA speak for themselves. He has received Rookie-of-the-Year, Defensive Player-of-the-Year and MVP honors during his short six-year career with the Chicago Bulls. The words NBA superstar fit him perfectly and that is why he is considered the most dominant player in the NBA today.

The 1986 NBA draft took UNC's Brad Daugherty as its first pick. Daugherty had an excellent four years while at Carolina. He left as the school's fourth-leading rebounder and was seventh on the all-time scoring list. Daugherty is the most accurate shooter from the field in the history of the school. His 61.99 shooting percentage broke the previous record of Bobby Jones by 1.22 percentage points. Daugherty is presently an NBA All-Star with the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Kenny Smith and Joe Wolf were seniors who led the 1987 squad in tying the school record for victories in a season at 32. Both were selected in the first round of the NBA draft that spring. Smith was named National Player-of-the-Year by Basketball Times, capping a career which saw him rank first in assists at Carolina. Wolf fit in a similar role to Matt Doherty, in that he was a role player. He is thought to be one of Carolina's greatest defensive players.

Next on the scene was 6-9, 256-pound J.R. Reid, who would later be selected in the first round of the 1989 draft by the Charlotte Hornets. Although his college career consisted of only three years, he earned Carolina's third-highest career field goal percentage, 15th highest scoring total and 11th highest number of rebounds.

J.R. Reid is just one of the many to enrich a basketball program that has thrived on excellence since the 1920s. Not only was Carolina basketball made great by the few numbers that hang in the East endzone of the Smith Center, but also by the memories of all the other greats to play basketball at the University of North Carolina.

Basketball in International Competition

By Chuck Brittain
Sports Information Student Assistant

From the four corners of the basketball court to the four corners of the globe, the legendary talents of University of North Carolina basketball players have been displayed not only in the Atlantic Coast Conference, but also throughout the world.

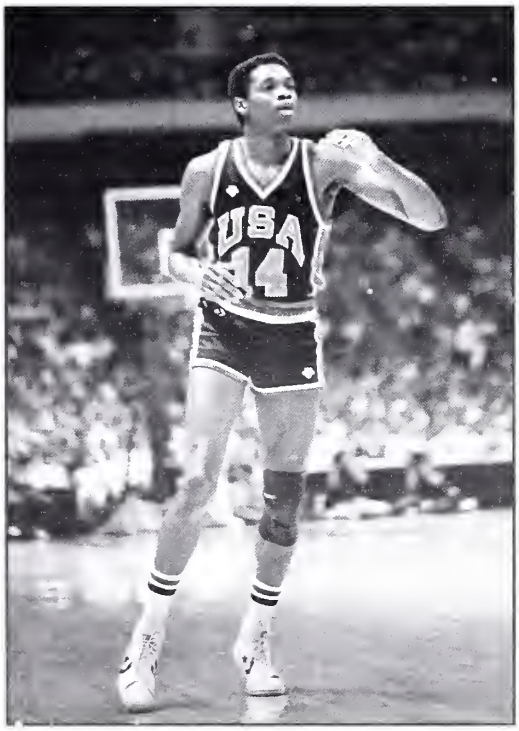
Carolina cagers, while household names in American sports circles, have also gained fame abroad entertaining millions of fans worldwide with their sparkling brand of play.

It has practically become an off-season tradition, and if you ask Carolina basketball players how they spend their vacations, you may get some exotic answers.

From Moscow to Mexico City, from London to Seoul, Tar Heel stars have made names for themselves across the globe by showcasing their talents and leading the United States to many unforgettable wins in international competition.

The international arena may seem a long way from Chapel Hill, but Carolina players seem to adjust with relative ease to the slightly different rules and more physical play of the international game. The play-making wizardry of a Phil Ford, for example, or the eye-popping dunks of a Michael Jordan, were just as amazing to Brazilians and Spaniards as they were to Atlantic Coast Conference rivals.

The most recent Carolina contribution to international basketball came this past summer when rising senior King Rice and sophomore Tar Heel teammate George Lynch played on the Atlantic Coast Conference All-Star team led by Maryland Head Coach Gary Williams in Europe.



Sam Perkins was a co-captain of the 1984 U.S. Olympic Team which swept past eight opponents en route to winning the Gold Medal. He had 12 points and seven rebounds in the Gold Medal game win over the Spaniards. (Photo by Hugh Morton)

The All-Stars completed their 1990 European tour with a perfect 6-0 record, with Lynch leading the team in scoring by averaging 17.7 points per game, while Rice averaged 9.3 points per outing.

In 1989, former Tar Heel Kevin Madden and then junior Pete Chilcutt also spent part of their summer on a basketball tour of the Old World as members of the ACC All-Stars who played in Greece under Clemson mentor Cliff Ellis.

Madden and Chilcutt's trip came on the heels of J.R. Reid's participation in the 1988 Summer Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea. The burly power forward was a member of Georgetown Coach John Thompson's team which won the bronze medal.

Just the summer before, in 1987, Jeff Lebo earned a spot on the U.S. roster to play in the Pan American Games in Indianapolis, where he and his teammates earned a silver medal. Center Scott Williams also got a taste of international competition that year as a member of the U.S. squad which played in the Junior World Cup in Italy.

However, it has been in the Olympic Games, the world's most prestigious athletic gathering, where Carolina's basketball program has received the most international acclaim.

In fact, the last seven U.S. Olympic teams have included at least one Tar Heel each. Beginning with Larry Brown, who played on the 1964 Gold Medal-winning team in Tokyo, a total of 11 Carolina players have been chosen as Olympians. Even Coach Dean Smith and his chief assistant, Bill Guthridge, have been involved, guiding the 1976 U.S. squad to the Gold Medal in Montreal. That championship team included four Tar Heels—Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford. Smith has remained an important figure in international play, serving on numerous Olympic-related committees through USA Basketball, the sport's national governing body in the United States. Those have included selection committees for both players and coaches for various international events.

At the 1984 Summer Games in Los Angeles, Michael Jordan carried on the Tar Heel tradition of excellence with two incredible weeks of basketball. A two-time National Player-of-the-Year, Jordan led the U.S. in scoring at 17.1 points per game and earned rave reviews in the process.

Jordan, of course, wasn't the only Tar Heel to win acclaim in Los Angeles. Sam Perkins may not have been as spectacular as Jordan, but his play nonetheless was brilliant and his consistency unmatched.

Jordan and Perkins, co-captains of the U.S. team, led the Americans to an eight-game sweep for the gold, proving them more than worthy of their leadership roles. Despite his high scoring average, it was Jordan's midair magic which often left opponents standing flat-footed, staring in disbelief.

His long jumpers and acrobatic inside moves thrilled the fans, delighted the news media and awed opposing coaches.

"Today he showed me nothing incredible," Spanish coach Antonio Diaz-Miguel said after his team fell to the U.S. "He is always the same. He comes in there like an airplane. I don't know how he remains in the air while everyone else is going down. He is elastic."

While opposing coaches expressed amazement, Jordan's own teammates and coaches were probably more impressed with him than anyone.

"I'm not sure anyone who watches the Olympics will be able to appreciate Jordan as much as our coaches and players do in practice," said Southern California Head Coach George Raveling, a U.S. assistant coach in the 1984 games. "One day, here in L.A., he made a move to the basket that just stunned the players. (Patrick) Ewing looked at (Wayman) Tisdale and just shook his head. He couldn't believe it."

Jordan was at his best in the first of two games against Spain. He scored 24 points, sinking his last nine shots from the floor to finish 12 of 14 from the field. His steal and 35-foot jumper at the halftime buzzer gave the Americans a 46-41 lead at intermission. The U.S. blitzed the Spaniards in the second half to win, 101-68.

Perkins scored more than eight points a game and was America's third-leading rebounder during the Los Angeles fortnight. His inside defense was also outstanding.

Perhaps no one appreciated Perkins' talent more than U.S. Head Coach Bobby Knight, who repeatedly praised the three-time All-America.

"Give me players like Sam Perkins," Knight said, "and I'll coach forever."

To no one's surprise, Jordan and Perkins were the American heroes in the Gold Medal game. Facing Spain for the second time, the U.S. romped, 96-65. Jordan scored 20 points on nine of 15 shooting, while Perkins had 12 points and seven rebounds.

Carolina's tradition of Olympic excellence, of course, had begun 20 years earlier with backcourt star Larry Brown. Charlie Scott represented the Tar Heels in 1968, when the U.S. swept to the title in Mexico City, and Bobby Jones was a member of the 1972 team, which settled for the silver medal amidst great controversy in Munich.

As a result of that disputed loss to the Soviet Union, there was tremendous pressure on the U.S. to recapture the Gold Medal in the 1976 games. The Americans desperately needed the title to reestablish the nation's international basketball superiority.

The task fell on the shoulders of Coach Dean Smith and his top aide at Carolina, Bill Guthridge. The four Tar Heels featured on the roster each played key roles in leading the Americans to a six-game sweep of the coveted gold.

With Smith stressing aggressive defense and an unselfish offense, the U.S. routed Italy in the opening game. The Americans next encountered a fired-up Puerto Rican team, but managed to avoid an upset thanks to Ford's clutch free throw shooting in the final moments. The U.S. rolled into the finals by defeating Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Canada. In the championship, the U.S. defeated the Yugoslavs to reclaim the gold medal.

Because of the Olympic boycott, the U.S. did not compete in the 1980 Games in Moscow. Still, Carolina's Al Wood starred on the American squad, coached by Dave Gavitt, which compiled a 5-1 record against professional teams in a series of exhibition games held across the country.

When the world gathered in Seoul for the 1988 Olympic Games, J.R. Reid played an important reserve role for Thompson's squad. His best performance by far came against the Brazilians in the United States' third game.

With starting big men Danny Manning and David Robinson in early foul trouble, Reid came off the bench to dominate the Americans' offensive effort. During one stretch, he scored six points in a row and eight of the team's 10. Reid finished with 16 points, hitting seven of 11 shots on the way to a convincing 102-87 revenge win over the Brazilian squad, which had beaten the U.S. in the 1987 Pan American Games championship contest.

The 1988 squad, however, was not fortunate enough to win the Gold Medal in Seoul. After losing to the Soviets in a semifinal game, the U.S. had to settle for the bronze, beating Australia in the third-place game.

Olympic achievements alone, however, do not fully explain why Carolina has had such a strong impact on international basketball. There have been plenty of other shining performances.

The Tar Heels have been represented in the last five Pan American Games. Robert Mitch Kupchak, here dunking on his Cuban opponent, was a mainstay on the U.S. team which won the Gold Medal at the 1973 World University Games in Moscow.

McAdoo played on the 1971 U.S. team in Cali, Colombia, while Tommy LaGarde starred on the 1975 squad at the games in Mexico City. Mike O'Koren co-captained the 1979 team that won the Gold Medal in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Perkins and Jordan teamed up in 1983 to lead the U.S. to the title in Caracas, Venezuela. Perkins was re-garded as the most consistent Ameri can player in that tournament. Jordan keyed a couple of comeback victories with the kind of last-second heroics that Tar Heel fans became so accustomed to during his three years in Chapel Hill. Jeff Lebo made it five Pan Ams in a row for Carolina players with his selection in 1987 for the games in Indianapolis.

One year before his Pan American performance, O'Koren was a starting forward for the U.S. in Gregarian Cup competition in Moscow. LaGarde journeyed to the Soviet Union as well, as a member of the Continental Cup team in 1975. That team also played games in Greece, Yugoslavia and other parts of Europe.

Dennis Wuycik played on the U.S. pre-Olympic team which toured Europe in 1971. In the summer of 1973, a Soviet National Team came to America to meet a U.S. all-star team. Carolina's George Karl and Bobby Jones both played instrumental roles in that series. Later that summer, Karl became one of the first Americans in decades to visit mainland China. He was on a U.S. team, which played there and, again, he was outstanding.

Three Tar Heels have won Gold Medals at the World University Games—Billy Cunningham at Budapest in 1965, Larry Miller at Tokyo in 1967 and Kupchak at Moscow in 1973.

The summer after he helped Carolina win the 1982 NCAA championship, Jordan toured Europe on a U.S. all-star team. In 1983, Matt Doherty played on the U.S. Select Team in Southeast Asia. During that same summer, Steve Hale played in Europe with a team sponsored by Athletes in Action. Two Tar Heels, Brad Daugherty in 1984, and Joe Wolf in 1985, have represented the U.S. in the William Jones Cup Tournament in Taiwan. Both played on teams which went 9-0 and won the tournament championship.

Carolina's success across the seas, though, is more than a collection of fine individual efforts. On five occasions, the entire Tar Heel team has ventured to Europe for tournament competition.

In 1971, Carolina visited Madrid, Spain for the International Christmas Tournament. In claiming the championship, the Tar Heels swept past teams from Barcelona, Spain and Santiago, Chile and beat Real Madrid, the European champion, in the finals. The championship game was televised across Europe, and Carolina responded with a brilliant all-around performance.

Smith took his team back to Madrid for the same tournament in 1974, but this time the Tar Heels were not as fortunate, falling to a veteran Real Madrid Club in the championship game. Carolina did spring a major surprise in that tournament, however, defeating the powerful Cuban National team on a remarkable halfcourt shot at the buzzer by Walter Davis.

London was the destination in 1979 as the Tar Heels entered their third international Christmas tournament of the decade, finishing third. Prior to the 1984 season, Carolina visited Greece and won four games against teams from Italy and the host nation. A Perkins steal leading to a last-second shot by Jordan clinched one win. Perkins, Jordan and Buzz Peterson were selected to the all-tournament team.

The Tar Heels returned to England in December of 1987 to beat the Great Britain National Team in the championship round of the World Invitation Club Tournament. Reid led the way for Smith's squad with 24 points. The hometown hero, however, didn't play for the home team. Carolina's Steve Bucknall, a London native, scored 18 points in the Tar Heels' 87-79 victory.

Many Carolina players have gone on to successful pro basketball careers in Europe. Doug Moe accomplished the most, three times earning European Player-of-the-Year honors. Other Tar Heels who have played professionally in Europe include Dave Chadwick, Kim Huband, Craig Corson, Donn Johnston, John O'Donnell, Donald Washington, Ed Stahl, Bill Chambers, Bruce Buckley, Tom Zaliagiris, Geff Crompton, Randy Wiel, Jeff Wolf, Rich Yonakor, Pete Budko, Tommy LaGarde, John Virgil, Chris Brust, Jeb Barlow, Steve Hale, Warren Martin, Robert McAdoo, Dave Popson, Al Wood and Ranzino Smith. In addition, former Tar Heels Cecil Exum and Curtis Hunter have played professionally in Australia.

It seems that Carolina's outstanding basketball tradition, so well-documented in the U.S., has virtually become a global affair.

Dean E. Smith Center

In May of 1980, the University of North Carolina Department of Athletics, in conjunction with the Educational Foundation, embarked on a mission of unparalleled proportion in college athletics. Five hundred volunteers, motivated by the slogan "Pride Will Build It," set out to do the impossible — raise millions of dollars from private donations to erect an arena to showcase the nationally-prominent Tar Heel basketball team.

"Fund-raising experts told us there was no way to raise that kind of money unless one person made a significant gift of more than $5 million," says Ernie Williamson, the Foundation's Director of Endowment. "Well, we did have one $1,000,000 contribution, but nothing exceeding that. We also had five dollar gifts from children who contributed their allowance. Nothing's impossible when there's that kind of love and loyalty for the University and its basketball program."

However, the real inspiration for the fund-raising efforts came from the campaign chairman, Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles. Always the optimist, Bowles was determined to defy the odds. "Are we going to make our goal? On a scale of 1 to 10, with 10 the most optimistic, I'm a 12!"

Six years and 2,362 donors later, the premier basketball arena in America became a reality.

Dedicated in September of 1986 as the Dean E. Smith Center, the 300,000-square-foot edifice stands on seven and one-half acres on the University's South Campus. Over 20,000 cubic yards of rock were removed to make room for the 340-foot high, 380-foot wide building.

The Smith Center has three levels. The uppermost level features a 1200 -foot long, 22-foot wide concourse with seven concession stands and a souvenir showcase. All are easily accessible from the 68 aisles which empty into the concourse.

The highlight of the second floor is the Carolina Memorabilia Room, designed by Jerry Goodman. Goodman also designed the Professional Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio. The Memorabilia Room houses artifacts of Carolina's rich tradition of successful athletics. Visitors can enjoy the memories of the Tar Heels' 1957 and 1982 NCAA basketball championships as well as Carolina's four consecutive football bowl victories from 1979-82. In addition, the second floor houses the plushly paneled offices of the athletic department as well as the custom walnut-lined basketball suite.

The first floor features six recreational locker rooms in addition to two locker rooms reserved for the Carolina swimming program. Also on the first floor is Varsity Hallway, where Carolina basketball players spend numerous hours preparing for competition. In this self-contained hallway is a modernly-equipped training room and weight room. The basketball dressing area contains a player's lounge complete with computer terminals and study desks for academic support as well as a wide-screen television and stereo system for relaxation.

The Smith Center's design allows it the flexibility to host numerous entertainment events. A large frame grid hangs over the East end zone from which more than 50,000 pounds of sound and lighting equipment can be attached. A recently-installed curtain system allows for the adaptability of the arena to various seating configurations to allow smaller events the opportunity to use the building. There are 14 speaker clusters located around the top of the facility which are capable of delivering 300,000 watts of sound. Other technologically-advanced features include computer-controlled lighting and two 29-foot-long message centers.

Some of the most heralded stars in the entertainment business have performed in the Smith Center. Since Kenny Rogers staged the first concert in the arena on April 6, 1986, entertainers ranging in appeal from Bruce Springsteen to John Denver, Janet Jackson to James Taylor and Pink Floyd to Bill Cosby, have performed to enthusiastic crowds. Performance Magazine named Smith Center the 1987 "Venue of the Year" and by a poll of its peers, Smith Center received the Pollstar Readers Poll Award for the "Best New Major Concert Venue," placing it at the forefront of outstanding facilities in the nation.

But the main attraction, and indeed the very reason for the Smith Center's existence, is Carolina basketball. When the 95 mercury vapor lights blaze down on the Spring-aire maple floor and the 21,572 powder blue seats are filled with Tar Heel fans, the stage is set for one of college basketball's most successful programs to display the teamwork and tenacious defense that has been its trademark. In the East end zone, the jerseys belonging to such Tar Heel greats as Billy Cunningham, James Worthy and Michael Jordan keep a vigil over the hardwood which has been home to Carolina Basketball since January 18, 1986. On that Saturday afternoon, Kenny Smith spotted an open Warren Martin in the lane for the first Carolina basket scored in the Smith Center as the #1-ranked Tar Heels defeated Duke 95-92. Since that time, Carolina has won 51 of 58 home games.

The Smith Center has also hosted a wide range of athletic events. In 1987, the arena served as the site for United States Olympic Festival basketball, which attracted a Smith Center record crowd of 22,713 for the gold medal game. In 1988, the venue served as the site of the first and second rounds of the NCAA East Regional. Each November, 327 teams begin the journey which will hopefully lead them to Chapel Hill for the North Carolina men's high school basketball championships held in the Smith Center each March. On December 6, 1990, the Smith Center will be a site for the ACC/Big East Challenge.

A 10-man maintenance team is responsible for insuring that the physical transformation from one event to another is successful. Whether it be concerts or basketball, theatre or exhibitions, the transformation is a laborious task requiring the use of a 150-foot loading tunnel near the East end zone. Through this tunnel passes the tons of equipment required for the more than 160 events for which the Smith Center has played host.

Adjacent to the Smith Center is the Maurice J.

Koury Natatorium. One of the finest and fastest swimming facilities in the country, the natatorium features an eight-lane, 50-meter pool with a turbulence control system which minimizes water resistance. The natatorium was the site of the 1987 U.S. Olympic Festival, hosting swimming, water polo and modern pentathlon events, as well as the 1989 U.S. Swimming Short Course National Championships and the annual North Carolina High School Athletic Association Swimming and Diving Championships. Home to Carolina swimming and diving, Koury was the site of the Atlantic Coast Conference championships in 1987 and 1989 and will again serve as host in 1991.

Housed in the Koury Natatorium are the offices of the Educational Foundation which are atop the marble-floored room named after the man who made the fund-raising efforts a reality — Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles. Utilized by various university groups, Bowles Hall serves as a reminder of the perserverance and determination of loyal alumni to see the dream of a new basketball facility come to fruition.

Tabbed by The Wall Street Journal as "a veritable hoops palace," the Dean E. Smith Center serves as the embodiment of what Carolina Director of Athletics John Swofford has called the University's "commitment to excellence." Almost two million people have attended events at the Center and experienced first hand the nation's premier basketball facility. Most all would agree, "Pride Built It."

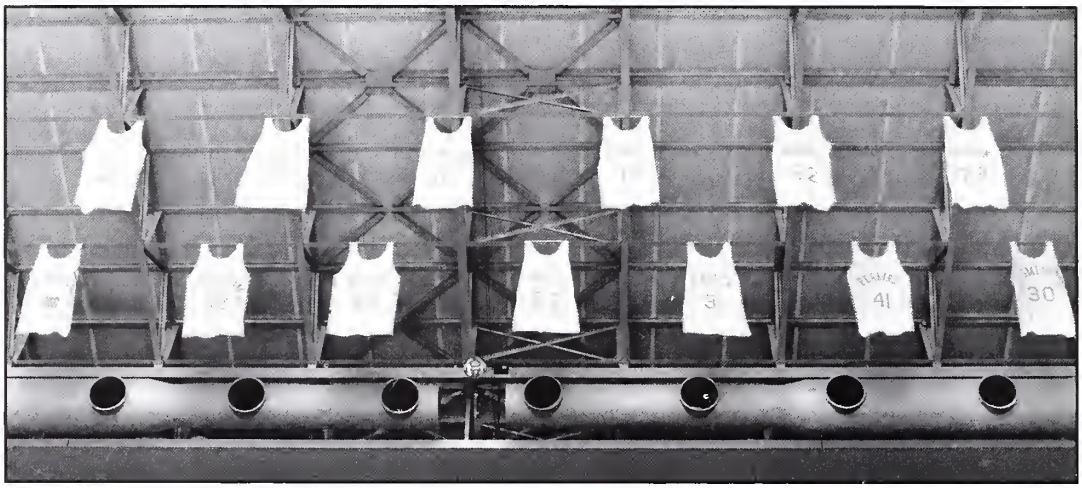
Smith Center Jerseys

By Bobby Evans and Jared Forman
Sports Information Student Assistants

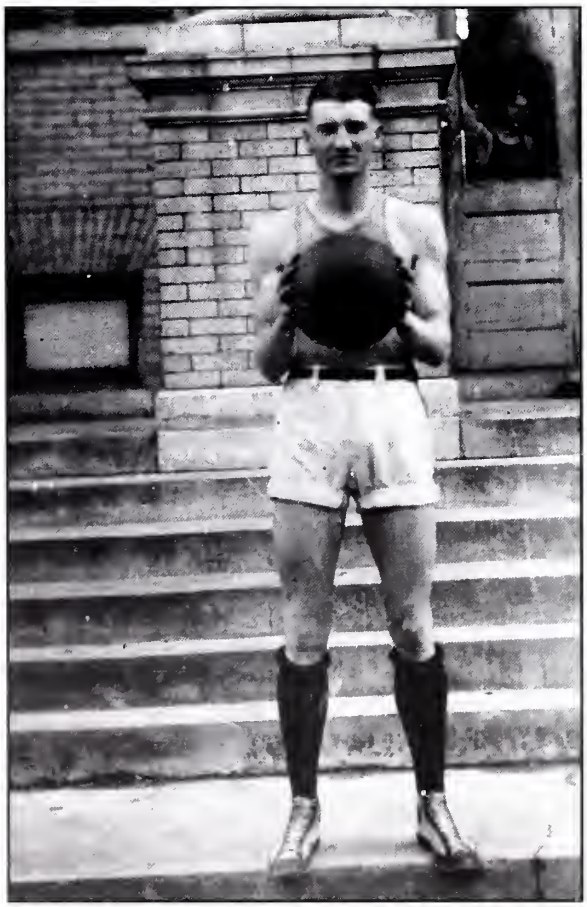


Hanging from the rafters of the Dean E. Smith Center are 13 Tar Heel jerseys, which together serve as a symbolic reminder of Carolina's consistent success in its 80 seasons of college basketball competition. The players that wore those jerseys are a part of the legacy of outstanding competitors who have helped make North Carolina, along with Kentucky, the winningest programs in college basketball history.

When the Smith Center opened in 1986, it was decided the new building needed a proper tribute to honor those who helped make Carolina basketball what it is today. After all, the Smith Center would not exist if it weren't for the players who have worn the Carolina Blue and White over the past 80 seasons. To that end, on Dedication Day, September 6, 1986, 12 jerseys were hung in the rafters in the East endzone. The 13th jersey, belonging to Kenny Smith, was added following the 1986-87 season.

The six jerseys in the front row belong to men who have earned National Player-of-the-Year honors. These numbers have been retired. The seven in the back row belong to men who were named first-team All-Americas twice or more. Their numbers hang in honor of their accomplishments.

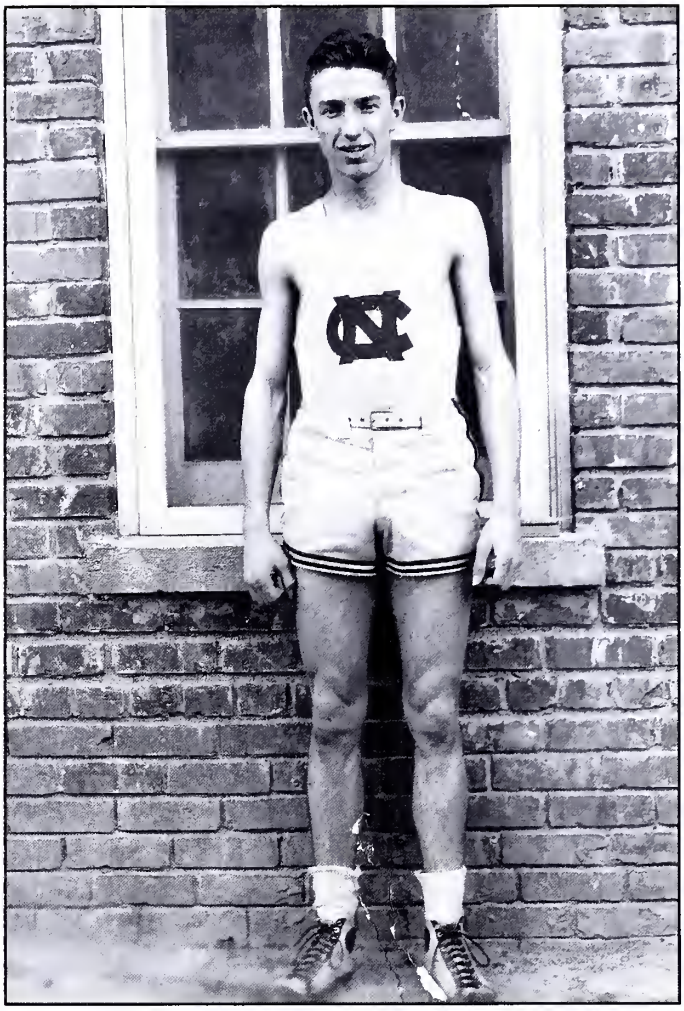
The retired jerseys belong to Jack Cobb (a numeral), George Glamack (#20), Lennie Rosenbluth (#10), Phil Ford (#12), James Worthy (#52) and Michael Jordan (#23). The honored jerseys include those of Cartwright Carmichael (a numeral), Billy Cunningham (#32), Larry Miller (#44), Charlie Scott (#33), Mike O'Koren (#31), Sam Perkins (#41) and Kenny Smith (#30).



Cartwright Carmichael

Won first-team All-America honors in 1923, becoming Carolina's first All-America in any sport. Regarded as an excellent shooter in his day and respected as a graceful player overall, Carmichael was tabbed an All-America again in 1924 and garnered All-Southern Conference honors from 1922-24. During his three varsity seasons at Carolina, the Tar Heels were 55-7 and he led teams to two Southern Conference championships and an undefeated season in 1924 good for a national championship as voted by the Helms Foundation. Carmichael and his brother, William D. Carmichael, Jr., are the only brothers to ever play together (1924) on the same Carolina basketball team. A versatile athlete, Carmichael also lettered as an outfielder in baseball.

Jack Cobb



Was a teammate of Carmichael's on the national championship squad in 1924 and was the school's first three-time All-America in any sport. He captained the 1925 squad during his junior year and, in 1926, he earned National Player-of-the-Year accolades from the Helms Foundation. Amazingly, during his three varsity seasons, Cobb averaged 15 points per game while the entire Tar Heel team averaged only 35. Known as "Mr. Basketball," Cobb was a 6'2" forward who could do it all. He was a slick passer and a great rebounder in addition to being a scoring threat. Shortly after he graduated from UNC, Cobb was involved in an automobile accident in which he lost part of his left leg. Nevertheless, he devoted most of his spare time to coaching Little League baseball teams. He died in 1966 at the age of 62. Cobb is a member of the Helms Hall of Fame and the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame.

Had an amazing career as a player who literally could not see the rim on the basket. He shot the ball according to the lines on the court, thus his nickname, "The Blind Bomber." In 1940 and 1941, he was named All-Southern Conference, All-America and National Player-of-the-Year by the Helms Foundation. A master at maneuvering in the paint, Glamack had a deadly hook shot with either hand, which helped him lead Carolina to a 1940 Southern Conference championship. As captain of the 1941 Tar Heels, he averaged 20.6 points per game, an incredible mark for the 1940s. He led the 1941 team to UNC's first appearance ever in the NCAA Tournament. He played five seasons in the professional ranks in the 1940s. Glamack always hoped his career would be an inspiration to other handicapped persons who dreamed of participating in organized sports.

Lennie Rosenbluth

Led the Tar Heels to a perfect 32-0 season in 1957 as Carolina won the national championship game in triple overtime over the Kansas Jayhawks and Wilt Chamberlain. The Helms Foundation's 1957 National Player-of-the-Year, Rosenbluth set UNC records for scoring average in a season and a career, with 28.0 and 26.9 points per game respectively, both of which still stand. He currently holds nine school records, and his 2,045 career points—third in Carolina history—was tops in the Tar Heel record books for 21 years. Rosenbluth was a three-time All-ACC selection and was tabbed ACC Player and ACC Athlete-of-the-Year in 1957. Born in the Bronx in 1933, Rosenbluth chose to attend UNC in large measure because then Carolina Head Coach Frank McGuire was also from New York City. After his career as a Tar Heel, he played for a brief time in the NBA before becoming a high school teacher and basketball coach in Florida.

Nicknamed "The Kangaroo Kid" for his exceptional leaping ability, he gained notoriety for leading the ACC in rebounding three years in a row. Cunningham still holds six of eight UNC rebounding records, and is the second-leading rebounder in Tar Heel history. He was named ACC Player-of-the-Year in 1965, All-ACC three times and first-team All-America twice. He led the ACC in scoring two years in a row, with 26.0 points per game in 1964 and 25.4 in 1965. Cunningham was tabbed as Carolina's MVP three straight years and twice he made the All-ACC Tournament team despite not playing in the finals either year. In 1965, the College Sports Information Directors of America named him to its Academic All-America team. Cunningham was picked in the first round of the NBA draft in 1965 by the Philadelphia 76ers. He played 11 years of professional basketball, including two years in the ABA and nine years in the NBA, and he coached the 76ers to the 1983 NBA Championship. He was inducted into the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass. in 1985 and currently is the vice president of the Miami Heat franchise in the NBA.

Larry Miller

Led UNC to ACC titles and the NCAA Final Four in 1967 and 1968 and was named All-America and ACC Player-of-the-Year both of those years. The ACC Athlete-of-the-Year in 1968, Miller was one of only two players ever to be MVP of the ACC Tournament on two occasions. He once scored in double figures a school-record 64 consecutive games and is still UNC's sixth-leading scorer and eighth-leading rebounder. His rebounding statistics are even more impressive considering his 6'4" size. Miller was named to the NCAA All-East Regional teams in both 1967 and 1968 and he was also on the all-tournament team in the 1968 Final Four. He played one of the greatest games in ACC Tournament history in the 1967 finals, hitting 13 of 14 field goals and scoring 32 points in an 82-73 victory over Duke. Miller, a left-handed shooter, used his deadly outside shooting in the professional ranks, playing for seven full seasons in the ABA. In the 1971-72 season, he averaged 18.4 points per game for the Carolina Cougars, including one game in which he scored an ABA record 67 points.

A superb all-around athlete, he helped direct UNC to its second and third straight Final Fours in 1968 and '69, in the days when a conference was allowed to send only one team to the NCAA Tournament. He was a first-team All-America in 1969 and 1970 and a three-time All-ACC selection. He was named UNC's MVP his junior and senior years, MVP of the East Regionals in the NCAA Tournament in 1969 and ACC Athlete-of-the-Year in 1970. Scott is UNC's fifth-leading career scorer, 18th-leading rebounder and is 13th in assists. He scored 40 points in the ACC Tournament finals against Duke in 1969, rallying Carolina from a nine-point halftime deficit to an 11-point victory. In 1970, he led the ACC in scoring with 27.1 points per game and was named to the 1970 CoSIDA Academic All-America Team. Scott played for the 1968 Gold Medal-winning U.S. Olympic Team, and he played 10 seasons of professional basketball.

Phil Ford

Now an assistant coach at Carolina, he is one of college basketball's all-time best guards and is perhaps best remembered for running Dean Smith's famed "Four Corners Offense" with tremendous precision. He is UNC's all-time leading scorer with 2,290 points and he ranks second in assists with 753. A three-time All-America in 1976, 1977 and 1978 and the 1978 National Player-of-the-Year, Ford directed Carolina to three straight first-place ACC regular-season finishes as well as ACC Tournament titles in 1975 and 1977. Ford played on the 1976 Gold Medal-winning U.S. Olympic Team under the leadership of Coach Smith, and is one of only eight players under Smith to start in the first game of his freshman year. Ford, in fact, was the first player tabbed for that honor by the veteran coach. The ACC Athlete-of-the-Year in 1977 and 1978 and the ACC Player-of-the-Year the latter season, Ford scored a career-high 34 points in a 1978 victory over Duke in his last regular-season game at Carmichael Auditorium to give the Tar Heels the ACC title. Ford's teams went 99-24 in his four seasons at UNC, while he compiled impressive shooting statistics of 52.7% from the field and 80.8% from the line. (Photo by Garren Lobraico)

Known for being a solid all-around player, he currently ranks among school leaders in scoring (11th), rebounding (10th) and assists (12th). He won first-team All-America honors in 1979 and 1980. O'Koren led the ACC in field goal percentage as a sophomore (64.3) and ranked second nationally. A four-year starter, he scored 21 points in the 1977 ACC Tournament finals against Virginia to lead the Tar Heels to victory, and he had a career-high 31 points in the NCAA semifinals in a win over Nevada-Las Vegas. The 1977 and 1979 All-ACC Tournament selection had a sensational game against Duke as a junior with 17 points, 20 rebounds, seven assists and four steals and he held Blue Devil star Gene Banks scoreless in the second half of that 74-68 UNC victory. O'Koren co-captained the 1979 U.S. Pan American Games team, which captured the Gold Medal, and he later played eight seasons in the pro ranks. (Photo by Sally Sather)

Led Carolina to its third national championship in 1982 with a career-high 28 points against Georgetown in the finals. He was named MVP of the ACC Tournament and the NCAA East Regionals as well as first-team All-America and co-National Player-of-the-Year his junior season. Worthy missed the second half of his freshman year with a broken ankle, but he came back to average 14.2 points per game and finish third in the ACC in rebounding as a sophomore. He helped Carolina reach the national championship game in 1981 with his outstanding play in the ACC Tournament and NCAA West Regionals. After consulting with Coach Smith, Worthy passed up his final year of eligibility to become the first player selected in the 1982 NBA draft, chosen by the Los Angeles Lakers. He has gone on to become an NBA All-Star and he has won three world championships with the Lakers. He was named the Most Valuable Player of the 1988 NBA Finals against Detroit. Worthy's intelligence and court presence make him much more valuable than any statistics could reveal, and he is especially well-known for his clutch play in pressure situations. Sam Perkins

#41

A 6'9" center/forward with long arms and an uncanny jumper, he is Carolina's all-time leading rebounder and second-leading scorer. He is one of only three Tar Heels to be first-team All-America three times, the others being Ford and Cobb. Perkins was also a three-time All-ACC selection from 1982-84 and was ACC Rookie-of-the-Year and MVP of the ACC Tournament in 1981. He went to the Final Four in 1981 and 1982 with his Tar Heel teammates and was named to All-Regional teams both years as well as the All-Final Four team in 1982 when UNC won the national crown. He played with Tar Heel teammate Michael Jordan on the 1983 U.S. Pan American Games team and the 1984 Olympic team, both of which won Gold Medals. He played his first six NBA seasons with the Dallas Mavericks and now plays for the Los Angeles Lakers with former UNC teammate and Tar Heel great James Worthy. (Photo by Hugh Morton)

Was one of the most electrifying Carolina players ever. As a freshman, Jordan hit a jumper with 17 seconds left to give UNC its third national title in 1982, and he was named ACC Rookie-of-the-Year due in part to his 13.5 scoring average. He is one of only eight freshmen under Dean Smith to have started the first game of his career. Against Virginia in 1983, Jordan won the game with a last-minute steal and dunk, and he sent a game versus Tulane into overtime earlier that season with a steal and a 35-foot jumper at the end of regulation as UNC went on to win in triple overtime. Jordan led the ACC in scoring in 1984 with 19.4 points per game and was subsequently named ACC Player and Athlete-of-the-Year, adding to his 1983 and 1984 National Player-of-the-Year kudos. He was the leading scorer on both the 1984 U.S. Olympic team and 1983 U.S. Pan American Games team, both of which won Gold Medals. Jordan passed up his final year of eligibility after consulting with Coach Smith and entered the NBA draft, where he was chosen third by the Chicago Bulls. He has gone on to be a superstar in the pro ranks with Chicago, and he is widely considered to be Julius Erving's successor as the NBA's international ambassador of basketball. (Photo by Al Steele)

A unanimous first-team All-America his senior season, he was named National Player-of-the-Year by Basketball Times in 1987. That same year, Smith was an All-ACC choice, leading the Tar Heels in scoring with 16.9 points per game as well as in assists with 209. One of only eight freshmen under Dean Smith to start the first game of his career, he had 86 assists in NCAA Tournament play, which was then the most in that storied event's history. Smith led UNC to undefeated ACC marks in both 1984 and 1987, and he poured in a career-high 41 points during that 1987 season in a 108-99 comeback win at Clemson. Smith finished his career as Carolina's all-time assist leader with 768. His game-high 23 points against the Soviet Union in the championship game of the FIBA World Championships propelled the U.S. team to a Gold Medal-clinching victory in 1986. Smith won the Patterson Medal, the highest athletic award at Carolina, as the top senior athlete on campus in 1987. Smith now plays for the Houston Rockets of the NBA, after playing his first three years with the NBA's Sacramento Kings and Atlanta Hawks. (Photo by Sally Sather)

1990 Diet Pepsi Tournament of Champions Pairings
Charlotte Coliseum, Charlotte, N.C.

Diet Pepsi Tournament of Champions Preview

The Diet Pepsi Tournament of Champions was created in 1988 to revive the spirit of the Dixie Classic, the successful holiday tournament played in Raleigh during the 1950s and 1960s which showcased the Atlantic Coast Conference. Held in the Charlotte Coliseum each year, the Tournament is structured to pit an ACC host against three national basketball powers. North Carolina and N.C. State alternately host the Tournament.

In the opening round of play, the Tar Heels meet South Carolina for the first time since the 1972 NCAA Eastern Regionals. With the addition of scoring threats Edmond Wilson and Jamie Watson, the Gamecocks will be striving for their second NCAA Tournament berth in the past three years in 1990-91.

In the other first-round contest, the Cougars of Houston take on the Iowa State Cyclones. An NCAA Tournament entry last year, the Cougar squad returns seven players, including three starters—Craig Upchurch, Byron Smith and Derrick Daniels. The Cyclones welcome back four of their starters from the 1989-90 season and add red-shirt freshman Mike Bergman who averaged 24.1 points and 10.5 rebounds as a high school senior.

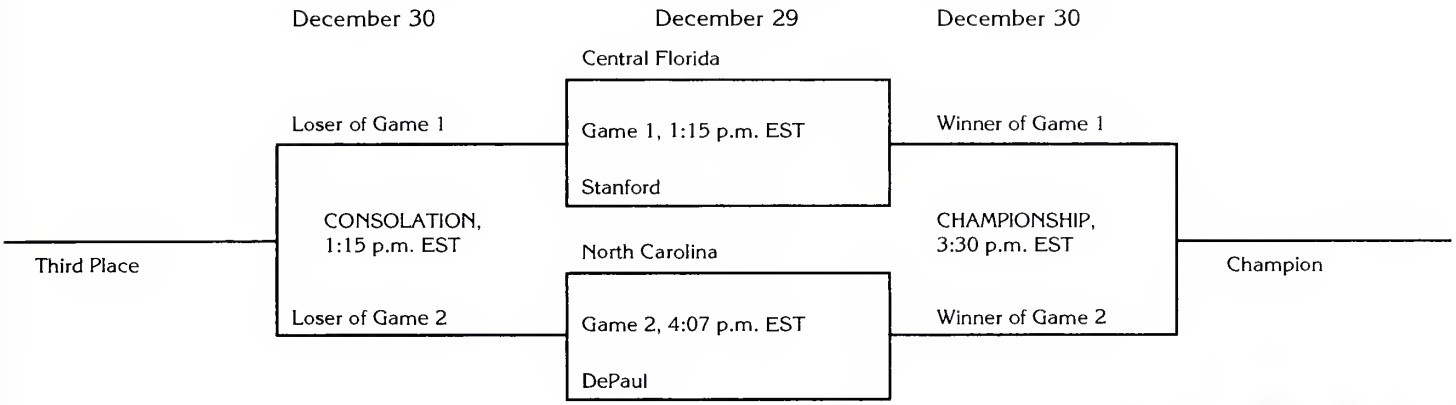
1990 Red Lobster Classic Pairings
Orlando Arena, Orlando, Fla.



Red Lobster Classic Preview

Carolina squares off against a young, but talented DePaul squad in the first round of the Red Lobster Classic at the Orlando Arena December 29. The Blue Demons return all five of their starters from last year and carry the momentum gathered from a 17-8 finish to the 1990 regular season that left them just short of an NCAA invitation. Junior standouts David Booth and Stephen Howard lead the way for Joey Meyer's club.

In the other first-round game, the Stanford Cardinal squares off against the host Knights of Central Florida. The Cardinal return all five starters from last year's squad, including All-America candidate Adam Keefe, who in 1990 averaged 20 points and led the Pac-10 in rebounding. Ken Leeks, a member of the 1989 All-Red Lobster Classic Team, who poured in 21 points against Georgia in last season's tournament, returns to lead the Knights.

Carolina's game with DePaul in the first round will be nationally televised by ABC Sports. The other three games in the tournament will be carried in the state of Florida by the Sunshine Network.

Crimson Tide Outlook

The Crimson Tide enters this season with the hopes of securing its third straight NCAA Tournament berth. Although the defending Southeastern Conference Tournament champions lost three of their top scorers, they return three talented starters from last year's squad. All-SEC senior Melvin Cheatum, 6-8, is the top returning scorer and rebounder for the Tide, averaging 15.7 points and 6.7 rebounds per game in 1989-90. Robert Horry, a 6-9 junior forward, returns after a promising 1989-90 season in which he averaged 13.1 points and 6.2 rebounds per game. During last year's 26-9 season, Cheatum and Horry combined for 1,095 points and 452 rebounds. Senior assist specialist Gary Waites, 6-2, Alabama's floor general, will anchor the backcourt for the Tide. Waites contributed 4.6 assists per outing and, along with Cheatum, started every game for the Tide in 1989-90. Head Coach Wimp Sanderson fields one of the deepest backcourts in the history of Alabama basketball, composed of 11 guards, led by returnees "Snake" Brown, Bryan Lancaster, Kenneth Rice and Darby Rich. The Tide will look to 6-9 freshman Cedric Moore, who averaged 25.7 points and 17.7 rebounds as a high school senior, to help out inside.

Bulldogs' Outlook

Randy Nesbit, The Citadel's third all-time winningest coach, enters his sixth season as head basketball coach at The Citadel, and welcomes back five returning lettermen, including two starters from last season. Senior forward Ted Mosay returns to lead the Bulldogs. Mosay averaged 10.6 points per game, second highest on the 1989-90 squad, and pulled down 5.1 rebounds per game. Leading the backcourt will be 6-2 sophomore guard Aaron Nichols, the first Citadel freshman in five years to be named to the Southern Conference All-Freshman Team. As a frosh, Nichols averaged 8.6 points and 2.3 assists per game. Junior guard Todd Holstein and sophomore guard Andre Harris will see playing time for the Bulldogs. Last season, Holstein shot a team-best 86.0 percent from the foul line and dished out 2.3 assists per outing. Harris played in 25 games last season and shows promise in the frontcourt.

Tigers' Outlook

The defending regular-season Atlantic Coast Conference champions return only two starters as they look to repeat their successes of the 1989-90 season. First-Team All-ACC forward Dale Davis, who led the league last season in total rebounds and field goal percentage, returns to anchor the Tiger frontcourt. The 6-11 senior averaged 15.5 points and 11.3 rebounds per game during the 1989-90 campaign. The Tigers will look to 6-4 junior guard David Young to direct the backcourt. Young averaged 6.1 points per game and dished out 142 assists, setting a University record for assists in a season by a non-point guard. Senior forward Sean Tyson, who averaged 8.5 points and 4.1 rebounds, and red-shirt senior letterman Ricky Jones return to provide depth down low.

Huskies' Outlook

Despite having lost two key starters, the regular-season Big East Conference co-champion and Big East Tournament champion Huskies will look to duplicate their successes of the 1989-90 season. Junior guard Chris Smith will again lead the Huskies' backcourt charge. Smith averaged 17.2 points and 2.5 rebounds per game last season. The Huskies return two veteran players to the frontcourt, forward Scott Burrell and center Rod Sellers. Burrell, a freshman last year, averaged 8.7 points and 5.5 rebounds. Sellers, who led the team in field goal percentage with a 53.8 percent success rate, rounds out a strong Huskies' frontcourt that will also include the services of 7-1 junior forward Dan Cyrulik. Cyrulik is one of nine other lettermen returning to Jim Calhoun's club. The Huskies will miss the backcourt magic of Tate George, now with the New Jersey Nets of the NBA, and the frontcourt wizardry of Nadav Henefeld, who returned to play professional basketball in his native Israel after an outstanding freshman season at UConn.

Big Red Outlook

With its top four leading scorers, four of five starters and nine lettermen overall returning, the Big Red should have the experience and the depth to make a serious run for the Ivy League title in 1990-91. Two key performers, 6-2 junior guard Shawn Maharaj and 6-9 senior center Bernard Jackson, return to lead Cornell. Maharaj led the squad in scoring in 1989-90, averaging 12.6 points per game, and he hit a Cornell University-record 59 three-pointers. Jackson, who has led the Ivy League in blocked shots the last two years, swatted away 65 shots last year to shatter all existing University blocked shot records. Joining Maharaj in the backcourt will be senior guard Steve Johnson, a scoring threat who averaged 10.5 points per game last season. The Big Red will look to 6-7 junior forward Rich Medina, who started 23 games last season, to provide help down low.

Blue Devils' Outlook

After their fourth NCAA semifinal appearance in five years, the Blue Devils will look to junior center Christian Laettner and sophomore guard Bobby Hurley to fill the void left by graduated starters Robert Brickey, Alaa Abdelnaby and Phil Henderson. Laettner, the team's second leading scorer (16.3 ppg) and leading rebounder (9.6 rpg) last season, will most certainly be a catalyst for this season's Blue Devil team. Hurley led Duke in assists with an average of 7.6 per game and his total of 288 for the season was the second-highest single season total in ACC history. The remaining Blue Devil returnees are among the most experienced corps in the ACC and should contribute considerably. Senior Greg Koubek, junior Brian Davis and sophomores Billy McCaffrey and Thomas Hill will be among those Coach Mike Krzyzewski will look to to fill the remaining starting positions. Duke also had a standout recruiting campaign with freshmen Grant Hill and Antonio Lang expected to provide immediate help.

Yellow Jackets' Outlook

After winning the 1990 ACC Tournament and reaching the NCAA Final Four before losing to eventual champion UNLV, the Yellow Jackets are coming off one of the most successful seasons in Georgia Tech history. The Yellow Jackets will be a different team this year without two members of the "Lethal Weapon 3" trio. Gone are Dennis Scott and Brian Oliver to the Orlando Magic and Philadelphia 76ers of the NBA, respectively, leaving Georgia Tech to rely heavily on sophomore point guard Kenny Anderson, the National Freshman-of-the-Year and the ACC Rookie-of-the-Year. Anderson, who led the ACC in assist average with 8.1 per game in 1989-90, will be counted on to run, shoot, pass and dribble and probably a little bit more. He will get help, however, from Malcom Mackey, a 6-10 sophomore and the team's leading rebounder a year ago with 7.5 boards per game. Center Matt Geiger, a 7-0 transfer from Auburn, is now eligible after sitting out a year under NCAA transfer rules.

Dolphins' Outlook

The Dolphins, seeking to improve on last year's 13-16 record and sixth-place conference finish, return only one starter from the 1989-90 squad. Senior forward Reggie Law, 6-8, who averaged 14 points and 6.7 rebounds per game last year, will anchor the frontcourt for the Dolphins. Joining Law in the frontcourt will be 6-9 senior center Steve Gilbert, who averaged five points and four rebounds per game, and 6-8 forward Al Powell, who chipped in 3.3 points and 2.3 rebounds per game. Sophomore forward Alonzo Harris, 6-5, will also see some frontcourt action. In the backcourt, the Dolphins will feature 6-4 Tabarris Hamilton and 6-3 Willy Ivory.

Wildcats' Outlook

Experience is on the Wildcats' side in 1990-91. With four starters returning, Kentucky is expected to figure prominently in the Southeastern Conference race. Under 1990 SEC Coach-of-the-Year Rick Pitino, the Wildcats have a lot going for them as they prepare for the upcoming campaign. Senior leadership will be provided by forward Reggie Hanson, last season's leading rebounder with an average of 7.1 boards per game and second-leading scorer with an average of 16.4 points per game. Hanson will team up with junior forward Deron Feldhaus (14.4 ppg, 6.7 rpg) for a potent frontcourt combination. Feldhaus and fellow juniors John Pelphrey and Sean Woods all add considerable experience to the Wildcat team in starting positions. The Wildcats' depth doesn't stop there, however. Jeff Brasow, Johnathon Davis and Richie Farmer will come off of the bench to provide Pitino with a very talented reserve corps. Both the Wildcats and the Tar Heels enter the 1990-91 campaign with 1,479 victories in their illustrious histories.

Terrapins' Outlook

With only one starter and four lettermen returning, the Terrapins will look to this year as a rebuilding one under Coach Gary Williams. Williams will have to rely heavily on junior guard Walt Williams to fill the void left by Jerrod Mustaf and Tony Massenburg, both taken in last spring's NBA draft. Williams, the third-leading scorer and rebounder for the Terps last season, will be expected to be the main contributor on the court this season. The remaining returnees for the Terrapins, senior Cedric Lewis, junior Vince Broadnax and sophomore Evers Burns, despite seeing limited playing time in the past, will fill bigger roles in the Maryland scheme this season. Last season, the Terrapins swept the season series from the Tar Heels for the first time since 1980. The Tar Heels had won nine in a row over the Terps prior to those two Maryland victories.

Wolfpack Outlook

Under first-year head coach Les Robinson, the Wolfpack, despite returning only seven lettermen, hopes to be among those teams contending for top honors in the ACC this season. After losing two starters, the Wolfpack still returns one of the most powerful backcourt duos in the nation. Heralded seniors Chris Corchiani and Rodney Monroe were the scoring and assist leaders for the Wolfpack last season and are counted on to give repeat performances. Corchiani led the ACC in steals and and is the ACC career leader in assists per game (7.6). Monroe was second in the ACC in scoring with an average of 23.2 points per game and he led the ACC in three-point field goal percentage at 48.3%. Tom Gugliotta, a 6-9 junior, will also be expected to contribute significantly to the Wolfpack's otherwise inexperienced inside game. Gugliotta led the Wolfpack in rebounding with an average of seven per game last year.

Fighting Irish Outlook

Entering his 20th season at Notre Dame, Coach Digger Phelps will look to junior LaPhonso Ellis as the key man for the Fighting Irish. ND was 16-13 a year ago and earned an at-large bid to the NCAA Tournament, losing a first-round game in the Southeast Regional at Richmond to Virginia. Ellis, who averaged 14.0 points and 12.6 rebounds last season, will be the dominant force in the Notre Dame frontcourt. The other returning starter for the Fighting Irish is junior Elmer Bennett, a 6-1 guard who averaged 10.9 points. Notre Dame will have a strong supply of reserves coming off the bench. Look for senior Kevin Ellery and juniors Tim Singleton, Daimon Sweet and Keith Tower to make considerable contributions to the Notre Dame team. Carolina and Notre Dame will be meeting at the Meadowlands for the second straight time. The last time these two powers met was 1987 with UNC upping its series lead to 12-3 by beating the Irish in an NCAA East Regional semifinal.

Boilermakers' Outlook

After finishing second in the ultra-competitive Big Ten Conference a year ago, the Boilermakers will have to overcome the loss of three valuable starters, including center Steven Scheffler, the 1990 Big Ten Player-of-the-Year, point guard Tony Jones, who led the Big 10 in assists per game with 5.9, and forward Ryan Berning. The Boilermakers, who finished 10th in both major wire service polls in 1990, have only two returning starters, sophomore guard Woody Austin, Indiana's Mr. Basketball in 1988, and senior forward Chuckie White. Austin is one of the Big Ten's most dangerous three-point threats with a 56.5 percentage from the perimeter in league games last year. White led the Boilermakers in blocked shots, was second in steals and third in rebounds and assists. All in all, fiery Coach Gene Keady returns nine lettermen. This will be Carolina's first trip ever to West Lafayette where Mackey Arena presents one of the toughest road atmospheres in the entire nation for visiting teams.

Aztecs' Outlook

San Diego State will look to seniors Marty Dow and Arthur Massey, the only two returning starters for the Aztecs, to lead Jim Brandenburg's club in 1990-91. Dow, a 7-1 center, was third on the team in scoring last year with 12.3 points per game, and second in rebounding with 6.1 boards per game. Massey led the team in three-point field goal percentage a year ago and was third on the team in assists. Returning lettermen Neil Steinly, a 6-11 senior center, and Vern Thompson, a 6-6 senior who displays versatility at both the guard and forward positions, will combine with Dow and Massey as the only experienced players on the Aztec team. San Diego State will look to this season as a rebuilding one after losing six lettermen, three of whom were starters. This game represents a return trip on Carolina's schedule for the Tar Heels' venture to the West Coast two seasons ago, a trip which resulted in a sellout crowd at the San Diego Sports Arena and a comeback UNC win.

Cavaliers' Outlook

The successful tenure of Terry Holland as head basketball coach at the University of Virginia came to an end last season. This year, the Wahoos will look to new head coach Jeff Jones, a player and assistant coach at UVa under Holland, for direction. Like many of their ACC counterparts, the Cavaliers will be among those contending for top honors in the league. Virginia, however, has a distinct advantage: they did not lose any of their starters off a team which made the finals of the ACC Tournament last season. Seniors John Crotty and Kenny Turner will provide the Wahoos with true leaders on the court. Last season, Crotty led the team in assists, while Turner led the Cavs in rebounding. Junior Bryant Stith captured first-team All-ACC honors last season and will be expected to be the main scorer again for Virginia. Junior Anthony Oliver and sophomore Ted Jeffries finish up the returning starters and will be looked to as solid all-around players. Coming off the bench will be Matt Blundin, Terry Kirby, Dirk Katstra and Doug Smith, all of whom Jones can use as capable backups for his starting players.

Demon Deacons' Outlook

With four starters returning, the season looks bright for Coach Dave Odom and the Demon Deacons. Juniors Chris King and Anthony Tucker, last year's leading scorers and rebounders, will combine to create a powerful force in the frontcourt for Wake. Senior Robert Siler, one of the team's most talented all-around players, could rank as one of the ACC's best backcourt players. Junior point guard Derrick McQueen rounds out the returning starters for Wake, giving the Demon Deacons one of the most experienced teams in the ACC. Look for Phil Medlin, Tom Wise and David Hedgecoe to contribute significantly off the bench. One of the nation's premier recruiting classes will be joining Wake this season, helping make the Deacs a true force to be reckoned with.

(M) = Manager

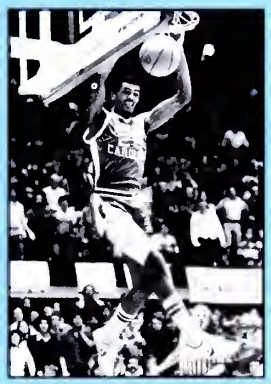
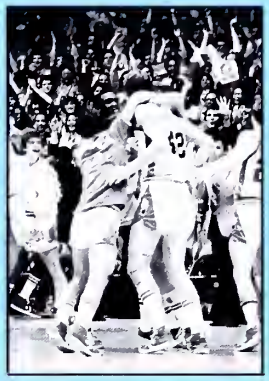
1977-78: O'Koren provides Ford with victory ride after Carolina clinches ACC regular-season title against Duke behind Ford's career-high 34



1978-79: Dudley Bradley's infamous steal and dunk gives Tar Heels a most memorable win over N.C. State at Raleigh



1979-80: Jeff Wolf's slam dunk heroics against Ralph Sampson and Virginia leave Carmichael in a frenzy on a cold February Saturday night

1980-81: Al Wood's NCAA semifinal-record 39 points against Virginia lead Tar Heels into NCAA championship game against Indiana

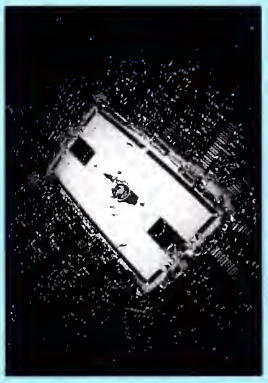
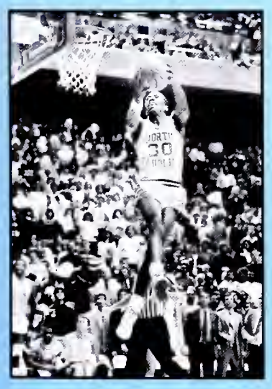
1982-83: Jordan's steal and dunk cap a miraculous comeback from 16 points down with less than nine minutes left against Virginia at Carmichael Auditorium

1983-84: Jordan and Perkins combine forces to earn UNC a #1 ranking and unbeaten ACC season and the U.S. an Olympic Gold Medal in Los Angeles

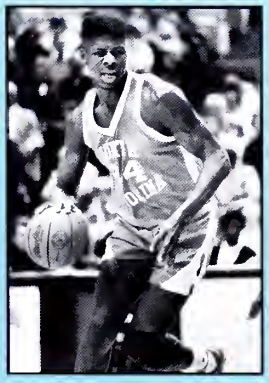
1984-85: Brad Daugherty's steady inside presence and All-ACC season pace Tar Heels to ACC regular-season title and Final 8 of NCAA tourney



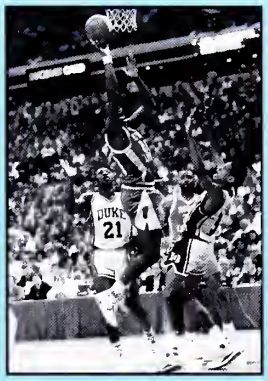
1985-86: The beautiful 21,572-seat Dean Smith Center opens January 18 with #1 Carolina beating #2 Duke 95-92 in a classic backyard battle



1986-87: Senior leadership from National Player-of-the-Year Kenny Smith helps Carolina to record-tying 32-win season and second unbeaten ACC campaign in four years



1987-88: A young, underrated Tar Heel team boosted by All-America J.R. Reid's performance captures the ACC regular-season title and advances to the NCAA Final 8



1988-89: Steve Bucknall's three-point plays down the stretch ignite the Heels past Duke in ACC tourney finals, 77-74

1989-90: Rick Fox's buzzer beating banker knocks off top-ranked Oklahoma and sends Tar Heels to a 10th straight NCAA Final 16

1990-91: A team with great promise led by a trio of talented seniors closes out Coach Smith's third decade at Carolina in style
